Open House Held At Sanatorium

Mrs. Ellen Willis, Mrs. Luanna Hayes, Mrs. Richard Neeley and Miss Pat Cook visited McCain Sanatorium last Thursday along with representatives from eleven other counties to observe "Sanatorium Day."

The open house sponsored by the Mid-State Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association in cooperation with the sanatorium, M.A. Boehm, President of the Mid-State TB-RD Association, said the idea of having a special visit to the sanatorium was arranged to give board members and volunteers a chance to see first hand how the sanatorium operates.

"The people who came to the sanatorium from the twelve counties had an opportunity to visit with patients from their area and many of them brought gifts, clothing, materials for sewing and magazines," Boehm said.

The open house began at eleven a.m. The first hour was devoted to visiting patients. Then, at noon, the delegation convened for lunch and sanatorium personnel and TB-RD Association workers presented an outline of the activities of the sanatorium and the work that is being carried on there to aid tuberculosis and other respiratory disease victims.

Mr. Boehm said about one hundred people attended the "Sanatorium Day" activities. The counties represented at the event were those that made up the Mid-State TB-RD Association. They include Alamance, Anson, Chatham, Harnett, Hoke, Lee, Montgomery, Moore, Randolph, Richmond, Scotland, and Stanly Counties.

TB Association Met At McCain

M.A. Boehm of Alamance County was re-elected President of the Mid-State Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association for 1970-1971 at the Annual meeting at McCain Sanatorium Wednesday, April 29.

Other officers included: Mr. J.J. Croft, Jr., of Ashboro, President - Elect; Mrs. Marvin Caviness of Asheboro, Vice President; M. Huitt Reep of Sanford, Vice President; Mrs. H.C. Trullinger of Dunn, Secretary; Durward P. Grady of Southern Pines, Treasurer.

Serving on the Executive Committee for the coming year are: Mrs. Martha McK. Harris of Mt. Gilead, Lawrence Johnson of Southern Pines; Robert G. Rector of Siler City; Dr. Alfred G. Siegel of Carthage; Charles H. Wells of Burlington, and Dr. W.J. Steinger, of McCain.

Representatives selected to serve on the Board of North Carolina Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association are: Charles H. Well, M.A. Boehm and Mrs. H.C. Turlington.

The Honorary Chairman of the 1969 Christmas Seal Campaign, Dr. J. Earl Danieley, President of Elon College, reported on the results of this year's campaign at the meeting. Dr. Danieley reported that the Association raised $73,337.00, which was an increase of $3,243.00 over last year's Christmas Seal Sale. This was the second campaign to be conducted by the Mid-State Association. Another report was delivered by the Executive Director of the Mid-State TB-RD Association, Mrs. Edith B. Huff of Burlington. Durwood P. Grady presented the financial statement and budget for 1970-1971.

Dr. W.J. Steinger, Medical Director of the N.C. Sanatorium at McCain, spoke to the group on the treatment of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases at McCain and the other three state sanatoriums. He said: "After July 1, there will be curbs in funds for drugs and other allowances for the treatment of tuberculosis, emphysema, and other respiratory diseases. The miracle drug, streptomycin, came out in 1947 and by 1953 there were many people who felt that TB was all but wiped out. However, in North Carolina during 1969, 1,157 new cases were discovered which was only 50 less than 1968 and 90 less than 1967. There are only 13 states with a higher case rate than N.C."

Dr. Steinger stated that emphysema is one of several respiratory diseases being treated in the sanatoriums. It disables 30,000 people and kills 30,000 more in the U.S. each year. At this time, doctors do not know how to prevent emphysema and continuing research is being conducted to find answers to many questions about this disease. The speaker pointed out that the role of the tuberculosis association in respiratory diseases is primarily an educational and informational supplement. He suggested they continue to conduct seminars for doctors and nurses, exert influence to help secure funds for health department budgets, conduct educational programs for the public and to continue patient service programs.

Dr. Steinger was introduced to the group by Mrs. Lora Tinder, Social Worker at McCain Sanatorium. Mid-State T.B. and R.D. Association is made up of twelve counties in central North Carolina and includes Hoke County. Members of the board of directors from Hoke County are: Mr. Lora Tinder and Dr. W.J. Steinger, McCain.

Hoke Extension News

Gloves have been an important accessory of dress since early times. Like the early foot coverings, the first hand coverings were crude, probably animal skins covering the hands to keep them warm and to protect them from scratches, etc. The word glove is thought to be derived from the old Saxon work glaf, meaning to hide or cover. Through the years, gloves became symbols of love, loyalty, friendship, security, high honor and integrity, hatred, defiance, and challenge.

Gloves are considered the finishing touch of the costume. Proper gloving means good grooming. Some fashion operating procedures on what gloves to wear and when to wear them are listed below.

Rule one is that all outside occasions require the hand to be gloved, the style of the glove of course determined by the occasion. Glove styles seem to be endless in number, but they are all designed from a few basic types based on "button length." Each button is a French inch, about one-twelfth of an inch larger than the standard inch. Length is measured from the base of the thumb to the top of the glove; a one-button glove is approximately one inch in length from the thumb. A twelve-button glove, about thirteen inches in length, is approximately elbow length.

The "button" or "clasp" glove is of short or medium length within a button or other fastener at the wrist, either on the palm side or on the back of the glove. The "clasp" glove is made to fit the hand of regular width but with shorter than average fingers. The "finger-free glove" has a strip of leather or fabric extending around both sides and around the end of each finger; there is no seam at the tip. The "gauntlet" is a four-or-six-button slip-on glove with a flared top obtained by the insertion of a separate triangle-shaped gore above the wrist. The "mitten," which preceded the fingered glove, has one section for the thumb and another larger one for the fingers and hand. The mitten is mainly for warmth in casual dress or sportswear. The "mousquetaire" (term seldom used now) is a long glove - eight to twenty buttons - with an opening at the wrist. This allows the hand to be put out through the placket and the fingers of the glove to roll back. It is a dressy glove worn with short-sleeve or sleeveless afternoon or evening dress. The "shorty" is a wrist-length glove with either a side or center opening. The "slip-on" is usually two to four buttons in length, with a slight flare above the wrist but no fastenings or openings; it is just slipped on.

One novel style for evening wear is the two piece glove, where the short glove may be removed and the arm section left on the arm. Novelty gloves are made with unusual combinations of materials, trimmings, or cuffs; they are often made of the same fabric as the dress with which they are to be worn.

In choosing gloves, one may look for design, color, material, comfortable fit, ease of care, price, and suitability to oneself, one's wardrobe and the occasion for which the gloves will be worn. The emphasis placed on any one of these factors will vary with individual tastes and needs.

U.S. Air Force Sergeant Ronald E. Prince, son of Mrs. Eugene E. Angstadt of Raeford, has received three awards of the Air Medal for air action in Vietnam.

Sergeant Prince, a communications specialist at Tan Son Nhut Air Base, was cited for his outstanding airmanship and courage on successful and important missions completed under hazardous conditions.

The sergeant, a 1966 graduate of Hoke County High School, attended Pembroke State University.

His father, Willie E. Prince, resides on Rt. 3, Tappahannock, Va.

BRIGHT AND SHINY NOW - One of Raeford's first fire trucks, believed to have been in use here in 1926, has been refurbished, tuned and shined by city mechanic Billy Barefoot (seated left.) City manager John Gaddy drives the old engine in the Loyalty Day parade while Billy Barefoot, Jr. gets a ride.

VETERANS ON PARADE - An old-fashioned car rolls down Main Street in honor of an old-fashioned virtue during the Loyalty Day parade Friday sponsored by the DAV and VFW in Raeford.

Thanks...
My heartfelt thanks and appreciation to the splendid people of Hoke for your gracious support of my candidacy for Commissioner in the Democratic Primary.
