Polling Places Names For Tobacco Referendum -- Polling places for the July 16 referendum on acreage-poundage marketing quotas for flue-cured tobacco have been designated by the Hoke County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

All growers 18 years of age or older who share in the 1970 flue-cured crop or its proceeds are eligible to vote. Where no tobacco is produced in 1970 on a tobacco allotment farm, only the owner and operator are eligible.

Acreage-poundage quotas have been in effect since 1965. Flue-cured tobacco growers must now decide whether or not to continue the program.

If two-thirds or more of the votes cast are "YES", the quotas will continue in effect for the 1971, 1972, and 1973 crops. Growers may carry undermarketings from a short crop over to the next year. They also may market up to 10 percent over the farm's poundage quota, penalty-free.

By deducting the difference from the next year's crop. A penalty will apply to marketings over 110 percent of the farm's poundage quota. Private support on up to 110 percent of the farm's quota will be available to growers who produce within their allotment acreage.

If more than one-third of the vote is "NO", there will be no marketing quotas and no price support in effect for the 1971 flue-cured tobacco crop. No limits will be put on the production of flue-cured tobacco.

If marketing quotas are rejected in this year's referendum, another referendum will be held next year. If quotas are continued, the next referendum will be held in 1973.

County ASC Committee Chairman Ken W. McNeill urges all flue-cured tobacco growers to vote on this important question.

WASHINGTON -- The postal reorganization bill which won Senate approval on June 30th contains a "union shop" provision which I strongly opposed during debate on this measure. The Senate version of the bill to convert the Post Office Department into an independent government agency differs from the House version which eliminated the compulsory unionism requirement for employees of the proposed U.S. Postal Service.

I voted for the Fannin Amendment which would have assured all employees of the Postal Service the right, without fear of reprisal, to form or join labor organizations, or to refrain from such union activities. I regret that the Fannin Amendment was rejected by the Senate, because I believe that every man should have the right to join a union or the right to refrain from joining a union -- it makes no difference whether they are Federal employees or employees of a private employer -- they should have the right to negotiate through representatives of their choosing with their employer, whether it be the Federal Government or a private employer, in respect to conditions of their employment insofar as those conditions are not regulated by acts of Congress.

The Senate-passed bill proposes for the first time in American history that Federal employees shall be compelled to pay the labor unions sums of money for the privilege of working for their government.

It would give to unions as autocratic a power as the kings of France had in their most despotic days. Once the kings of France possessed almost absolute power over the lives of their subjects, and Frenchmen had to pay their king for the right to earn a living during that tyrannical era.

Today, we find this doctrine enunciated by those who advocate compulsory unionism in the Postal Service. In essence, what is now proposed in the Senate-passed bill is that the right to work in the Postal Service is a labor union right which the labor union can sell and the individual postal employee must buy if he is allowed to earn a livelihood for himself and his loved ones.

During a previous generation, labor unions rightly condemned "yellow dog" contracts whereby employees were required to agree either to join a union selected by their employer or to abstain from joining any union whatever.

The current demand for compulsory unionism in the Postal Service, in my judgement, is actually a demand for a "yellow dog" contract in another form.
