Fair Features

Swine Show

RALEIGH - A swine show will return to the 1970 N.C. State Fair after being withdrawn last year because of hog cholera quarantines.

The show will begin the first Saturday of the nine-day fair, which runs October 16-24, and winners will be on display throughout the fair.

Judging for the market barrow show begins at 7 p.m. October 17. In the senior show, judges will rate Durocs, Poland Chinas and Spots at 2 p.m. October 19. The next day Tamworths, Berkshires, Hampshires, Yorkshires and Landraces will start into the ring at 9 a.m.

The junior show begins at 3 p.m. October 17 and the showmanship contest starts as soon that day as the junior show ends.

All swine herdsman are automatically entered in a herdsman's contest with prizes of $20, $15, $10, $8 and $5. The contest is designed to promote neatness, courtesy, and all round efficiency among those in charge of animals.

Animals must be in place by noon on the day of the show in which they are entered. Senior Swine Show animals must arrive at the Fairgrounds before October 18 unless they are coming from another show or out-of-state.

The swine being shown at the State Fair will have to meet all health requirements as stated in the fair catalogue including on-the-farm inspection before moving.

Dining

For I say with Epicurus that one should not so much consider what one eats as with whom one eats it. There is no dish so sweet to me, and no sauce so appetizing, as those derived from the company.

-Michel de Montaigne (1533-1592)

Distaff DEEDS

By JANICE R. CHRISTENSEN

Families hosting foreign guests through the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE) run into all types of experiences. But you'd have to go a long way to beat this one from Mrs. Paige Norman, Yadkin County.

Mrs. Norman, her five-month-old son, Bryan, and her daughter Jeannette drove their Spanish-speaking guest Telesilda Velanques to Winston-Salem to catch a bus. They got caught in heavy traffic so Jeannette jumped from the car, ran to the bus station, bought the needed ticket and tried to hold the bus until Telesilda arrived.

At the bus, Mrs. Norman asked Telesilda to hold Bryan while she and Jeannette went back to the car to get the rest of the luggage.

When they got back, there was no bus, no Telesilda, no Bryan.

A closer look revealed that the bus had not left, although the driver tried to do so.

Spanish-speaking Telesilda would not sit down. Instead she stood in the aisle, holding the baby and crying. It was only after Mrs. Norman, equally frantic, climbed aboard the bus to retrieve her youngest son, that the driver understood what was happening.

In the two weeks she was with the Normans, Telesilda had learned to love them. Even so, she didn't think she should leave with the baby as a souvenir, Ann Kanipe, assistant home economics Extension agent, Yadkin County, reports.

"I didn't realize that learning the art of decoupage would pay off so soon," Mrs. Arnelia Martin, Vance County, said, as she held a pocketbook she made in the Extension-sponsored workshop.

"One lady offered me $45 for the bag during the workshop," Mrs. Martin noted. "Within two weeks, I had orders for three more bags," she added.

Mrs. Martin enjoys doing decoupage and believes the extra family income will help her buy materials for her other hobbies, Mrs. Esther Roscoe, home economics Extension agent, relates.

From learning to thread her sewing machine to making a satin bridesmaid dress in two sewing workshops is the story of Mrs. R.N. Hawkins, Louisburg.

Mrs. Hawkins attended a beginner sewing construction class in July. There she learned to thread and use her machine and to cut, mark and make a simple dress.

She returned to an advanced clothing construction workshop in August.

The last Friday of the workshop, Mrs. Hawkins came in rather disturbed. The night before her daughter from Washington came home with a dress pattern and satin fabric. She wanted her mother to make the bridesmaid dress so she could wear it in a wedding on Saturday.

Tar Heel Bankers To Conduct 4-H Campaign

North Carolina bankers are kicking off a Statewide 4-H Bank Campaign in October on behalf of America's 4 million 4-H members.

Dr. J.W. Pou, vice president, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Greenville, is serving as 1970 Statewide 4-H Bank Campaign Chairman. He joins bankers in 35 other states also conducting campaigns.

Pou said funds raised in North Carolina will help support the youth programs of the National 4-H Club Foundation in Washington, D.C. The Foundation owns and operates the National 4-H Center in suburban Washington.

The Center, which is now limited to about 20,000 persons annually, is conducting a $8 million expansion program. Construction includes a dormitory, cafeteria and seminar center with classrooms, library, chapel and auditorium. When expansion is completed, the Center can handle 60,000 people each year. Some $3.8 million has been pledged by individuals, businesses and corporations in the United States.

Pou said funds contributed to the bank campaign would support the Center in areas of citizenship education, leadership development and 4-H international programs.

Dr. Chester Black, state 4-H leader at N.C. State University, said some 228 Tar Heel 4-H members and adult leaders have participated in programs arranged by the 4-H Foundation this year.

United Fund. The council agreed to meet with a representative from the state department of recreation to review the recreation program in the city and county and to get recommendations for action from the state.

Ken Davis of The A.K. Lovin accounting firm, presented and explained the city audit to the council.

A call was approved for a public hearing on a zoning change from residential to commercial requested by 401 Auto Sales.

Sales to the highest bidder of surplus equipment were approved by the council. Jackie Maxwell bought three dump trucks and a garbage paker. Harvey Young made the high bid on a station wagon and a pick-up truck. No bids were received on other equipment advertised.

For Pennies,

you get a lot of value from your electric service. With a penny's worth of electricity, you can shave every day for a year. Or toast 40 slices of bread. Or listen to a radio an hour a day for a week. Your electric service bill isn't just pennies - but then think of all the lights you use, toast you make and TV you watch (not to mention clothes you wash, rugs you vacuum and teeth you brush.) You pay more mainly because you use more. Electricity. Perhaps the last real bargain left in America.
