BRIDGE

Mrs. Matheson

Bridge club members and one visitor, Mrs. Chandler Roberts, were guests of Mrs. R.A. Matheson on Thursday night. She served a dessert when guests arrived.

Arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums decorated the living room and dining room.

Mrs. J.W. McPhaul won the club prize and Mrs. Roberts was remembered with a gift.

Mrs. Ashley

Mrs. George Ashley was hostess for her bridge club on Thursday night. She served dessert and iced beverages before the game.

The high score prize went to Mrs. Hank Richards and a visitors gift was presented to Mrs. Jimmy James.

Mrs. Hendrix Jr.

Honored Saturday

Mrs. Brown Hendrix Jr. of Lumberton, formerly of Raeford, was honored with a floating stork shower Saturday night. Hostesses were Mrs. Donald King and Mrs. Julian Barnes.

Mrs. Hendrix was presented a corsage of white carnations.

The dining room table was centered with yellow and white baby motif with white candles. Punch, cookies, toasted pecans and cheese straws were served. The honoree opened and displayed gifts from relatives and close friends.

Raeform UDC Meets Friday

Mrs. N.B. Blue was hostess for the Raeform Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy Friday afternoon at her home on W. Edinborough Ave.

After the business meeting, when reports were heard, yearbooks were presented to the members.

The president, Mrs. Blue, read a letter from the State Division president, Mrs. Allie Moore of Wilmington, giving the goals of the organization.

Mrs. Floyd Monroe gave a report from the recent convention in Charlotte showing that the chapters are doing constructive projects to combat today's problems. Some of the services done are through a fund for veterans of Vietnam in hospitals. The fund is used to supply color TV sets and guitars for these patients - they are not supplied by the government.

The book, Courageous Caroline, by J.M. Turner, was reviewed by Mrs. Tom Sinclair. This is a biography of Caroline Goodlet, founder of the UDC. Mrs. A.K. Stevens invited the chapter to meet with her in December.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner

The fall of the year is planning time in the fruit, vegetable and flower gardens. If you plan well now, you can avoid costly mistakes later. You can also have the varieties you like best and those best suited to your environment.

If you are not subscribing to one or more good gardening magazines, you might give yourself a Christmas present. If you are well supplied, you may wish to remember a friend who is horticulturally minded.

If you have house plants with large leaves and smooth foliage - philodendrons, dracaenas, palms, fatsheadera, rubber and other similar plants, you can improve the appearance by washing the leaves with a sponge dipped in soapy water and squeezed out. Examine your coleus, geranium and other pot plants. If they have become root bound, they should be repotted.

Remove old corn stalks, bean, tomato and other refuse from the vegetable garden and have the soil tested. If the test indicates a need for lime and phosphate, apply the recommended amounts and plow under. Plowing now will accomplish many things. In the first place, leaving the ground in rough fallow during the winter will flocculate the soil particles and give you a better seed bed in the spring; and secondly, the hibernating quarters of many insects will be destroyed, and the lime and phosphate will be placed in the root zone.

Prune grapevines, fruit trees and deciduous and evergreen shrubs, except the early flowering shrubs such as forsythia and spirea.

Muscadine grapes should be pruned the latter part of this month or in early December. Pruning now will permit healing of the wounds and prevent bleeding.

If you want to plant some muscadines, you might select from the following varieties: Albemarle (blue-black), Pamlico (light green), Chowan (bronze), Roanoke (white with tinge of golden yellow), and Magnolia (white). All of the varieties are self-fruitful and will pollinate the Scuppernon which is self-unfruitful.

For bunch grapes in the Piedmont and mountains, Ontario, Fredonia, Niagara, Delaware and Steuben are good.

Keep the lawn free of leaf accumulation by raking and composting the leaves. If you shred too many leaves on the grass with your mower you may injure it.
