At this meeting, the coordinators nominated Jo Ann Hocutt from Massey Hill High School, Charles Gainey from Seventy - First High School, and Don Steed from Hoke High School to run for District IV Governor. There are nine districts in North Carolina, each having one governor elected for a two year term. The governors officially take office at the annual summer conference when all the D.E. coordinators from the state meet for a week. Some of their duties are to help plan the future summer conference bringing in suggestions from their districts, to select the D.E. employer of the year, and to preside at all district leadership conferences. Hoke County's coordinator, Don Steed, was very pleased to learn that he had been chosen as District IV Governor.

Local Business

In advertising, value is not always to be judged by surface appearances.

For instance, there is the problem of "Waste Circulation." To the merchant who wishes to get maximum return on his advertising investment, waste circulation is a matter worth careful attention.

The total coverage of an advertising outlet may be no indication of its value to a particular merchant. Only circulation, among potential customers is of real worth to any advertiser. The suburban retailer who advertises in a metropolitan publication may pay for circulation which is 95 per cent outside of his trade area.

The same is true of the merchant who buys radio or television time on the basis of circulation over several counties.

When any medium charges for advertising on the basis of circulation outside of a natural trade area, the rates are likely to be expensive regardless of the total head count.

This fact has accounted for the rapid growth of community newspapers in the suburbs of large cities. For the community newspaper - whether on the edge of a great city or in a rural county - sells no waste circulation.

A retail trade area and the circulation area of a community newspaper are identical. The limits of each are defined by the same factors.

The people who subscribe to the local newspaper are the people who are most likely to trade in local stores. Which means, of course, that the retailer knows he is always getting a sound value in local newspaper advertising, with little or no "waste circulation."
