

EASTER MUSIC-- The Chapel Chorus of Ft. Bragg presents "The Seven Last Words" by Haydn in a program at the Raeford Presbyterian Church Friday.

Harlan Duenow Conductor

Chapel Chorus To Present "Seven Last Words" Here

The Chapel Chorus of Fort Bragg will perform at the Raeford Presbyterian Church on Friday evening, April 9, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. The composition being performed will be the "Seven Last Words" by J. Haydn. The work features a vocal quartet and mixed chorus. The original version of the music was written for string quartet. The reason for such work to be requested of Haydn was meditation purposes. Each musical portion was performed after a discourse of each spoken word for the congregation to meditate during the liturgical Good Friday services. Each of the words are sung by the chorus with the exception of the fifth word which is introduced by a tenor solo. Following the statement of each word, a discussion of the word is sung by the chorus. The quartet portions of the composition will be sung by Trudy Johnson, soprano; Gerri Cathcart, alto; Willard Griffin, tenor; and Bryan Miller, bass. All four soloists have been very active in various musical groups in North Carolina. They are all members of the Cumberland Chorale and have been previous soloists with the Chapel Chorus. The Fort Bragg chorus had the distinction for many years of being the only all volunteer chorus to rehearse and perform for a complete concert season in the entire United States Army. Since their birth in 1963 the chorus has made three long-playing records and performed numerous times on area television stations. They have performed the complete "Messiah" with orchestra which is another first with army musical groups. They have the distinction of performing "The Passion and The Nativity According to St. Luke" by Randall Thompson. Their normal concert season includes four major concerts at Fort Bragg plus engagements at other church functions and communities.

John E. Williams, Professor of Organ at St. Andrews College of Laurinburg, N.C. will accompany the group. Mr. Williams has been rehearsal and performance accompanist with the chorus the past four seasons. Harlan F. Duenow, has directed the group for the past eight seasons. He is the organist-choirmaster of the Main Post Chapel at Fort Bragg and is the musical director of the Fort Bragg Playhouse. He formed and conducts the Cumberland Chorale of Fayetteville, N.C. and is presently serving as president of Fayetteville Symphony Association.

This year's presentation of the work by Haydn will mark their second performance. They first presented the "Words" to the Fayetteville-Fort Bragg Community in 1968. The public is invited to attend the performance.

The possibility of conducting a one or two week Cotton Classing Short Course at Morehead City, N.C. in late June for producers, ginners, shippers and mill employees is being considered. The course would cover instructions and practice in cotton grading, stapling and machine testing using micronaire and Pressley equipment. It will take a minimum of 15 students to make the course possible. Tuition for the two weeks course will be from $25.00 - $30.00. Persons interested in enrolling should contact the county agent's office before April 15, 1971.

Cotton growers should consider several things this coming year. (1) There may be a problem of a short supply. This could escalate prices too high and could cause a shortage of certain grades and staples. The results could be that synthetics will gain ground. (2) D.D.T. will probably be used this year but hearings will be held shortly on the subject. (3) A grower can produce up to 10% more acreage, over and above allotment. (4) Herbicides should be incorporated 2-3 weeks before planting for better stand maintenance and early weed control. (5) Planting on beds provides early germination of seed and more vigorous seedling development. (6) Apply minimum nitrogen at planting (12-20 lbs.). Early nitrogen stress will enhance early fruiting. A publication "Tarheel Timberman" is a new newsletter for the professional logging and pulpwood contractors. It is being published by the Agricultural Extension Service at N.C. State University. The purpose is to help logging contractors develop business management skills and provides a place to answer questions on any subject related to logging and timber management.

Questions concerning the publication can be answered by County Extension Agents. Persons wishing to receive this publication free should send his name and address to 3033 Biltmore Hall, N.C. State University, Raleigh, N.C. 27607.
