

United States Inviting World To Birthday Party

An all-embracing, global guest list is being prepared for the United States observance of its 200th birthday.

Invitations to visit America in 1976 are being sent to groups as broadly diversified as the peoples who comprise this Nation, the National Geographic Society says.

As part of a project called "Open House U.S.A.," organizations across the country are urging their opposite numbers abroad to come and see them during the Bicentennial Year.

The invitations are going out from fraternal and service clubs, professional and historical societies, civic bodies, and international organizations to members of sister cities and affiliated groups abroad.

The hosts offer to open their homes to their guests and invite them to observe and participate in the numerous festivals and commemorative programs planned by various towns, cities, and states.

Open House U.S.A. was conceived by the Wally Byam Foundation, named for a manufacturer of travel trailers. Several years ago the foundation organized a program called Caravan America, to encourage foreign visitors to see wider areas of the United States.

It provided funds, cars, and trailers to take families from Britain, France, West Germany, and Switzerland on cross-country trips. The motor tours also included families of foreign diplomats stationed in Washington, D.C.

From these activities came the idea for Open House U.S.A., which was adopted in July 1970 by the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission as part of the Government's program for the observance.

As the list of groups extending overseas invitations grows, other organizations have pledged their support. The Recreational Vehicle Institute has offered to obtain 1,000 campers, trailers, and motor homes to be donated by firms for use by persons visiting the United States during 1976.

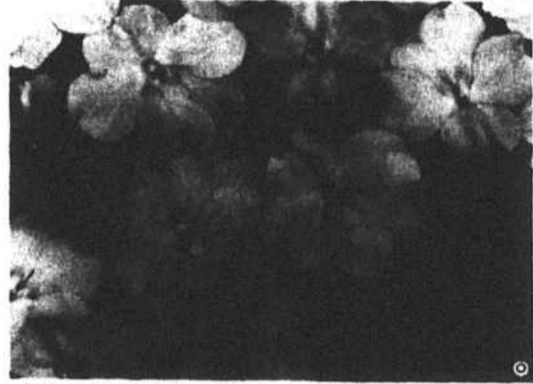

The Society of American Travel Writers has agreed to turn its 1974 annual convention into a flying trip around the world, to deliver invitations to peoples in other lands to join in America's Bicentennial celebration.

Open House U.S.A. has been chartered in the Nation's Capital as a non-profit company to solicit funds from private foundations and other groups for partial travel grants. It also is organizing the mass of invitations and acceptance, and the related entertainment.

"Open House U.S.A. should inspire beautification drives to get the United States ready for its birthday party," said Mrs. Carolyn Bennett Patterson, chairman of the Byam Foundation and an assistant editor of National Geographic.

"It also will help correct the balance of payments in this Nation's travel account, since Americans spend more abroad than foreign tourists spend here.

"But the program's greatest significance should be in the international goodwill we believe this effort will engender."

Lessons In The Arts Available At Shop

"The Calico Cupboard", owned and operated by Mrs. Reynold Tucker in Southern Pines, will open on September 13 at 165 East New Hampshire Ave. The shop will be a combination of instruction in the arts for children and adults, sale of supplies and a gallery of art works.

Associated with her in the Cupboard will be Mrs. William Bryant, formerly of Joce Crafts, who will teach decoupage; Mrs. Jerry Smith, an expert in country painting, the art of decorating furniture, wood products and metal; and Mrs. Margaret Ellis, a professional designer of needlework, who will teach this art in the form of crewel, decorative and creative embroidery as well as teaching students to design original needlework.

Other courses offered will be in the fields of ballet and music. Mrs. Heyward Bartholomew, with a long background of teaching classical ballet, will teach this, which will be held in the Campbell Train House. She will also teach a women's exercise class in the morning. Students from areas surrounding Southern Pines are invited to form a car pool type of agreement and a set time once a week will be arranged for them.

Piano will be taught by Mrs. Ward Hamm, a graduate of the Syracuse Conservatory with a major in piano and minor in organ. Mrs. Hamm also attended Julliard School of Music. She will be sharing piano students with Mrs. John Hatcher, who will also teach flute.

Instructing in guitar will be John Lookabaugh, a well-known young guitarist in the Sandhills.

Electric Organ will be taught by Nelson Logan, who formerly taught at Julliard. After retiring and moving to the Sandhills, he has been associated with Sandhills Community College in the field of piano.

Mrs. Tucker will instruct art classes for children and adults. She has been associated with the Episcopal Day School for three years, as well as teaching in her studio. She will continue to teach at the Day School.

Children's gift items will be a specialty, in addition to various locally produced arts and crafts of high quality.

Persons interested in taking courses are invited to call Mrs. Tucker at 692-2021.

Army Specialist Five Lewis Tyler Jr., whose parents live at 192 Sands St., Brooklyn, N.Y., recently received The Bronze Star Medal near Da Nang, Vietnam.

He was presented The Bronze Star Medal for distinguishing himself through meritorious service in connection with military operations against hostile forces in Vietnam. The medal, adopted in 1944, recognizes outstanding achievement.

Spec. 5 Tyler received the award while assigned as a Power Train Technician with Company C, of the 23rd Infantry Division's 723rd Maintenance Battalion.

His wife, Annie, lives on Route 3, Raeford.

City Stores Can Sell Beer On Sunday

At least for now, beer sales after 1 p.m. on Sunday are legal in the city, according to city authorities.

According to a state law passed by the legislature this session, beer and wine may be sold on Sunday between 1 p.m. and 2 a.m. However, cities and counties may prohibit the sale by local ordinance.

The county commissioners met in a special session Aug. 10 to pass an ordinance prohibiting the sale of beer or wine on Sunday.

The city council has not yet considered the question. City manager John Gaddy said the first chance the council would have to take up the matter would probably be at a special meeting Monday which has been called to discuss the water problem with representatives from Moore Gardner Associates, the city engineering consultants.

The council does not have a quorum to do business this week, Gaddy said. Councilmen Franklin Teal and Mayor John K. McNeill are out of town and there is a vacancy on the council due to the death of J.D. McMillian.

Several local storekeepers sold beer in the city last Sunday. City police chief L.W. Stanton said that as far as he knew now, Sunday beer sales were legal after 1 p.m. He had received no complaints about beer sales, he said, but two merchants called to ask about the legality.

County manager T.B. Lester said that according to what he had read, Sunday beer sales were not legal anywhere until after Oct. 1. This was the opinion given by the state attorney general, he said.

The new state law allows sales of beer and wine each day between the hours of 7 a.m. to 1 a.m., except during daylight saving time, when sales are allowed until 2 a.m. Beer or wine may be consumed on the premises of places having such a license until 1:30, or 2:30 EDT, on Sunday, beer and wines may be sold after 1 p.m. until the closing hour.

However, the law also gives local governments the right to regulate Sunday sales. "The governing bodies of all municipalities and counties have full power and authority to regulate and prohibit sales from 1 p.m. on Sunday until 7 a.m. on Monday," the law states.

The county commissioners are given authority over all areas not inside the corporate limits of a municipality, under the state law.

had money appropriated before the freeze and then have the contract invalidated. To me, a contract that is entered into and signed can not be voided, even by the president and that is why I think that the freeze will be tested in court."

"Of course, no one wants to do anything to interfere with the concept of a freeze," he said.

Rep. Lennon commented on his vote against the public works bill that gave about $5 million to North Carolina.

"When the bill first was introduced, North Carolina had $11,689,000 but sixty days later the Department of Labor had cut our part to $5,000,000 and had imposed population criteria to qualify money," he said. "I supported it on the representation that North Carolina would get $11 million and I voted against it when $6 million was taken from the state."

Lennon was in Hoke County Tuesday as part of his visit in the Seventh District during the congressional recess. He met people at the court house in the morning and then attended a luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce for Pentagon officials visiting the county. That afternoon, Lennon said he planned to go to Moore Memorial Hospital to visit city councilman J.D. McMillian.

community.

"The high call of the military mission requires dedication," he said. "The people we saw this morning (in the health programs) were dedicated."

Rep. Lennon told the group that if more of the military could become involved in programs of the type here, that "we could change some of the things that people say about the military." He deplored the poor image of the armed forces that is sometimes portrayed, Lennon said.

Lt. Gen. Hay thanked the Chamber of Commerce for the luncheon.

The group left by helicopter at 1:45 to go to Anson County where they will see several other domestic action programs.

Dr. McLucas said that the tour here was one of several taken by the domestic action council to inspect military projects. The health program here appears to be highly successful, he said.

Dr. McLucas also said they were told briefly about a recreation project now underway in the county.

The Rev. Allen Smyth gave the invocation.
