Bigger College Bills Greet Local Parents

(Special to The News Journal)

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 - Parents in Hoke County, who will be sending their offspring to college this fall, are finding the cost to be higher than ever.

A survey of more than a thousand colleges and universities across the country shows that about seven out of every eight have increased their rates, some of them considerably.

On the average, the boosts range from $93 for public co-educational colleges to $204 for private women's colleges. Some have gone up even more than this and some less.

The bill that Hoke County parents will have to meet this year for tuition, fees and other expenses will be approximately $1,400,000, it is estimated. The facts and figures on college enrollments and costs are based upon data compiled by the Department of Commerce, the Life Insurance Agency, Management Association and others. They show that the number of college students has been rising sharply in the last few years. More than 8 million are expected this fall, compared with 2.9 million in 1960.

There will be close to 500 in the contingent from the local area this year, as against 210 in 1960.

For those who are going to state colleges, the median cost will be $1,293 for those residing in the state and $1,940 for non-residents, according to the findings.

As private co-educational colleges, the median this year is $2,672, or $200 more than in 1970. Some charge considerably more than this and some quite a bit less.

Not included in these amounts are the outlays for such necessities as books, clothes, transportation and incidentals.

All told, to send a youngster to a private college this year might cost a family as much as $3,500 or more. At a publicly-supported college it will run about $2,100, on average.

The total cost of $1,400,000 facing Hoke County families with college-bound children assumes that half of the students will be going to state colleges and half to private ones.

Hoke Highlights

by Debbie Anderson

Summer vacation is over and school has once again opened. Students must buckle down for another nine months of studying, along with a little fun!

I am Debbie Leach and will be presenting you with the "Hoke Highlights" this up coming year. My purpose is to keep you up on all the happenings at HHS and I will try my best to do just that. Also, I would like to welcome all you freshmen to HHS. You have probably been told many things about high school that frighten you but don't let them! High School means more studying but it also means more fun! You'll see!

The Bucks have their first game of the season tonight at Reid Ross. They have been working and practicing hard this summer to keep up their last year's title. This year the Bucks plan to go even higher, so let's show them how much we care and really give them our full support!

The Junior Varsity team has their first game here Friday night when they will also battle Reid Ross. They, too, need our support so let's give it to them! Remember, they are our future varsity players!

Also I would like to remind all club presidents that it would be most appreciated if they would report all club news to me so that it could be printed. Thanks!
