McGeachy Plans To Run For Attorney General

Democratic State Senator Hector McGeachy of Cumberland County this week in a statement released to all North Carolina news media, confirmed speculation printed in a Raleigh newspaper a few days ago regarding his possible candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

"A large number of people, from all sections of North Carolina, in all walks of life, have encouraged me to seek the Democratic Party nomination for Attorney General if Bob Morgan runs for another political office," McGeachy said.

"While this encouragement was not solicited by me, it was a matter that had to be carefully considered and weighed. Consequently, after evaluating my legal qualifications and experience my work in the legislature to improve law enforcement and help law enforcement officers, plus my desire to see that both the consumer and distributor receive fair and equitable treatment in the market places of North Carolina, I have unofficially decided to seek the office of Attorney General if the present incumbent runs for another political office," McGeachy added.

"Before making an official announcement of my candidacy for the office of Attorney General, my immediate plans are to visit with Democratic political leaders and voters in all sections of North Carolina to discuss the possible issues of the campaign with them," he noted.

McGeachy has served five terms in the State Senate. During the 1969 General Assembly session, he served as President Pro Tempore and Democratic Party Majority Leader. Throughout his entire legislative career, Senator McGeachy has been a strong supporter of law enforcement

3-D Illusions Tested As Camouflage

FT. BELVOIR, Va. (ANF) --Optical illusions giving the appearance of depth may have applications in camouflage and countersurveillance, according to the U.S. Army Mobility Equipment Research and Development Center at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Certain optical conditions can produce the illusion of depth, and more recent developments produce the depth illusion in a thin, flat, self-contained package, similar to the "3-D" photographs gaining widespread use in commercial advertising.

Know Meats To Assure Best Buys

RALEIGH--Chances are meat accounts for one-third of your family food dollar. So it figures that you'll do well to become a wise meat shopper.

One way to stretch that meat dollar is to know meat cuts and the different names they may be packaged under, believes Mrs. Ruby Uzzle, extension consumer marketing economist, North Carolina State University.

For example, Swiss steak, pot roast and London broil are not the names of meat cuts. They are clues to the way you should cook the meat.

Cuts labeled Swiss steak usually come from the beef round or arm chuck. Cuts labeled pot roast generally come from the blade chuck and heel of the round.

London broil may be cut from the sirloin tip, top round or flank.

All these meats--Swiss steak, pot roast and London broil--come from the less tender parts of the animal. That means they must be cooked by moist heat, such as braising or stewing, to become juicy and tender.
