I was talking to the editor Monday and we were discussing the violent and tragic happenings of the day. Anytime you pick up a paper or listen to radio or TV, something of a violent nature will come up. The editor stated that this country and the world was progressing in technology but was doing an about face as far as morals and decent living were concerned.

I thought about this and wondered what our forefathers would say if they would return to this earth for a day. Would it be to marvel at the automobiles, airplanes, radios. TVs, etc., or would it be to observe the breakdown of law and other and the turn away from the order and the turn away from the principles that they had when they founded this great country.

We will soon be celebrating the 200th anniversary of our freedom and this country has come a long ways in that time, but it will not take 200 years for it to become a second rate power when we lose law and order and forget that we must stand on our morals.

I didn't mean to start preaching but I didn't mean to start preacting but this is one subject that maybe all of us should start thinking about. Remember all our progress in technology will be wasted if we as a BREAKFAST TIME - Fourth and fifth graders at South Hoke School enjoy breakfast together in the school cafeteria. Free and reduced meals are served to approximately 300 of the students enrolled in the school, as part of the Federal free meal program.

Free Breakfasts Served South Hoke Students

An expanded free breakfast program was inaugurated this year at South Hoke School, which brings meals to 300 of the 435 students enrolled.

Although this is actually the third year for the program, until this term it had been in effect on a much smaller basis. A letter from State Director of Food Services Ralph Laton informed the Hoke school district of the appropriation of additional Federal funds for the program. South Hoke was the only school in the county to apply for funds.

Fourth and fifth graders at South Hoke who take part in the program are offered a breakfast of cereal, milk and juice each morning on either a free or reduced price

South Hoke principal Earl Oxendine Former Raeford Woman said the meal costs the school approximately 22 cents to serve and they are reimbursed 20 cents by the Federal government through the National School Lunch Program. In previous years the government only paid 15 cents per meal and the rest came out of local funds Oxendine said about 240 of the 300 students are receiving free breakfasts. The price of the meal for those who pay is 15

Students who participate in the program line up as soon as they arrive at school, approximately 8 a.m., and are served their meal during the free time before classes begin at 8:25. Oxendine said the whole procedure takes only about 20 minutes, and no class time is interrupted.

interrupted. Two of the six cafeteria workers begin a half hour earlier to set up the meals in time for the children to arrive.

Oxendine said the instructors at the school have been "very enthusiastic about the program. Many have remarked that they noticed a marked improvement in the energy of their students because of the breakfasts served."
