Cousins To Make Debut In September

Anna Hughes Jordan and Elizabeth Faye Jordan are among 198 young ladies who will be presented to North Carolina society at the Raleigh Terpsichorean Club's 47th Debutante Ball to be held in September. The two are students at Wake Forest University, and already are receiving invitations to numerous events on the Deb calendar.

Anna, a rising junior, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Julius F. Jordan. She's spending the summer at home, helping her Dad in his office, playing on the Girl's softball team, swimming, sewing, and getting excited about the round of festivities that will fill the weeks ahead.

She's accustomed to staying busy, though, and it may take a bit of doing to even find time for the deb-fun. At Hoke High, she was a member of the National Honor Society, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, French Club, Ekoh Staff, Monogram Club, Pep Club, Glee Club and Chorale, and Future Teachers of America. She also found time to serve as a cheerleader and a class officer for two years.

Anna is accomplished in piano, voice, and art, and she works with the Children's Choir at First Baptist Church.
