BARTLETT PEARS
"Fresh pears aplenty" is the word from growers this year. So why not take advantage of the big supply of Bartlett pears?

Besides being low in calories -- pears are generous in flavor. Pears don't need dressing up. Serve them fresh at any meal, for dessert or as a snack. Or, for a change of pace -- you may wish to try one of these ideas:

Cut pears up into a fresh fruit salad. Or try serving a fresh pear topped with grated cheese or cottage cheese. Pears and cheese go great together.

Or, if you don't mind spending a little time in preparation -- try baking pears. Glaze them like apples and use them with meat -- especially pork.

Or fix a pear crisp for a change. For a special treat, serve it warm or cold, topped with whipped cream.

PLANTING TREES

OCTOBER marks the beginning -- The best time to plant or transplant trees and shrubs is during the autumn and winter months, between October and late February. In early fall, the only plants available are container grown. After deciduous plants become dormant and lose their leaves in early winter, they may be dug either bare - rooted or balled - and burlapped. If your plant is balled - and - burlapped, the ball size should be 8 - 10 inches per inch of trunk diameter.

Some folks have the idea that they must wait until spring arrives before planting shrubs and trees. This is true for some areas where winters are intense, as at the high altitudes of western North Carolina. In milder areas, it is advisable to plant in fall - winter. This allows plant material to establish a root system in the new soil before hot weather of summer approaches. Root activity takes place in relatively cool soil even though the top of the plant is not actively growing.
