Library News

Walls Going Up

We here at the library have been accused of visiting the new library site every day. We don't admit to every day but when you see Mrs. Cameron ask her if she has any pictures. It really is nice to see the walls going up. Its nice also for our friends to come in and tell us of any changes as the building progresses. We can feel the mounting interest you have as well as our own. The loyalty of so many friends and businesses toward a rewarding goal makes us always grateful. As we look back again at our scrap books we realize how much your efforts have brought forth. The gifts are still coming in and it will be nice when we crack our piggy bank to know the money is being used to such a great advantage for our whole community. It will be a grand and gala occasion when we open our new doors.

In this special season of offering thanks, we want to wish all our friends the very best Thanksgiving you've ever had. You may remember a very special day of Thanksgiving but we will remember and enjoy many special days because of community wide dedication.

NEW BOOKS

We have many new books of all interests. If you haven't been in lately you may have not realized this. Our regular patrons are really enjoying the many new fiction. We probably have some new ones you haven't read yet. The non-fiction, is most interesting also. Some of these are:

PROFESSIONAL FURNITURE REFINISHING FOR THE AMATEUR by Jessie D. Savage.

With rising prices and the often shoddy workmanship of new furniture, it becomes a wise policy to buy old, well made furniture, whether antique or not, and get it back into excellent condition. You end up with sturdier and more beautiful crafted furniture.

SILTON SEASONS, from the diary of a countryman, by R.D. Symons.

In the timeless spirit of Thoreau's "Walden", R.D. Symons has written a loving account of the virtues of a life spent close to the soil and a provocative commentary on the "advantages" of modern urban society.

A FATHER...A SON...AND A THREE-MILE RUN by Keith J. Leenhouts.

"We of ten think of the late sixties and early seventies as years when an outbreak of 'generation gaps' occurred, when children and parents became increasingly alienated from each other, when family and social relationship as we had known them generally broke down. Many, then, would say that the awesome father-son relationship described in this book just could not have happened during this turbulent era. It did.

THE MOUNTAIN ARTISANS QUILTING BOOK by Alfred Allan Lewis.

The techniques, patterns and designs of the famous West Virginia cooperative. Over 300 illustrations.

WOMEN IN TRANSITION developed from THE WOMEN'S SURVIVAL MANUAL.

A feminist handbook on separation and divorce. A very complete look into the loneliness of separated women and the needs of children in this transition.

Agents Ask

"To Knee or Not to Knee"

"To Knee or Not to Knee" translates into what hem length should a woman wear.

Understanding proportions is the key. The length one wears a garment is not dependant upon whether you are tall, medium or short in height. It is determined by your leg length proportion. As hemlines drop, achieving a pleasing hem length becomes a concern to many women.

The total leg is composed of two divisions (1) thigh joint to knee joint and (2) knee joint to ankle bone. The ideal leg has equal or approximately equal measurements between the two dimensions with nicely muscled calves.

With these "truths" in mind, check your own leg length in a full length mirror.

- Measure length of leg from thigh joint to knee joint. Record measurement.
- Measure from knee joint to end of ankle bone. Record measurement.

Generally, a difference of two or more inches between the two divisions, with the longer length is the thigh to knee area, means that your hemlength will have to be on the short side. Legs that have less than a two inch difference between the thigh to knee and knee to ankle bone are the women who will look best in two inches below the knee and mid-calf hemlines.

In essence, what you are striving for, is to give an ideal balance to your legs through optical illusion - optical illusion being your hem-length.

There is one exception to this guideline. Women who have equal leg division measurements but have very thin or non-developed calves will also have to opt for the shorter hem lengths.
