crats and is vice-chairman of Raeford precinct #2.

She and her husband, Raeford city councilman Crawford Thomas, Jr., have a six year-old daughter.

"I'm certainly not running in any negative way, against anybody or anything, because I feel with our location, we have a very efficient school system," she said.

"I don't feel there is any issue, per se, that I am running on. I am running because I feel a responsibility to keep it top-notch," she said.

"I don't even know who has filed, because I made my decision if I would run, it would not be because of someone else not running," she added.

Although a woman has never been elected to the school board, Mrs. Thomas said she did not feel any handicap.

"If I felt I would do a job that was inferior to any man's, it might be necessary to mention I'm a woman, but I feel individuals should run on their own merits," she contended.

"I feel like the people who know me as an honest person, with a real concern for Hoke County, will say I'm the candidate," she said.

The response also alleged the action by the defendant did not constitute "willfull misconduct" as set forth, because conduct must be done in bad faith toward the public office and trust and the defendant's action did not have such intent.
