

Lumbee-Marval Promotes Two

Jack Lee, plant manager for Lumbee-Marval, has been named general manager for Marval's Lumbee Division. Announcement of the move came last week from Paul Fox, vice-president in charge of operations.

David Hodgkin has been named to succeed Lee as plant manager.

A longtime Raeford resident, Lee took over as plant manager shortly after Marval assumed the responsibility for sales and management of the Lumbee Farms plant.

Lee began his career in 1959 with Priebe and Sons Inc. of Raeford, then a nationally known producer of poultry products. In 1962, he joined Raeford Turkey Farms, Inc., where he later became packaging supervisor. In 1964 he joined the N.C. Department of Agriculture as a licensed poultry grader. One year later he returned to Raeford Turkey Farms and was shift superintendent at the time of his move to Lumbee-Marval.

"Jack is probably one of the most knowledgeable members of our industry, and certainly one of the most capable. He did an excellent job as plant manager, and we feel he will be even more effective as general manager," Fox said.

Hodgkin came to Lumbee Farms from Raeford Turkey Farms Inc., where he supervised the further processing segment.

Stonewall Report

By Mrs. James O. Miller

As The News-Journal reaches the realm of its many readers this week the biggest and most exciting item of news is that our young people are out of school for summer vacation. Most homes in our community are affected by this grand occasion, if not by their children then by the grandchildren that will now be more frequent visitors. Let us all strive to spend as much time this summer enjoying our youngsters as we possibly can. All too soon they are going to be grown and the leaders of tomorrow.

A few well deserved words of praise and gratitude is extended to all the teachers in our Hoke County School System for their dedication and effort these past nine months. Also a very special salute to Mrs. Martha Ann Phillips and Mrs. Margaret Farmer, teacher and teacher's aide for the Trainable Class at J.W. McLaughlin School. Families not familiar with the needs of a retarded child cannot comprehend the outstanding qualifications passed by these wonderful teachers, that of love and patience as well as knowledge. Thus, from Cathi and myself "Thank you for your assistance in helping her develop her potentials to the best of her ability, and to the Board of Education for providing this class and opportunity."

Sunday services at our area churches:

Ephesus Baptist - Topic "Love" delivered by pastor Rev. Willard Singletary, attendance good.

My apologies for any incoherent sentences or news items this week. Several of my little ones have been sick as well as my self during the last few days and as this goes to press I have another one to go to the doctor. It has really been quite hard for me to concentrate, so please forgive any errors.

Take care everyone, stay well and have a nice week!

July Fuel Charge To Rise

Carolina Power & Light Co. has asked the North Carolina Utilities Commission to authorize an "approved fuel charge" of .074 cents per kilowatt-hour (kwh) on customer's bills during July.

The "approved fuel charge" reflects monthly variations in the company's actual cost of fuel up or down from the amount CP&L is permitted to collect for fuel in its base rates.

The additional charge during July would amount to 74 cents per thousand kwh above base rates or 64 cents more than in June when each retail customer will pay an "approved fuel charge" of 10 cents per thousand kwh. It takes into account the previously approved temporary surcharge of .089 cents per kwh.

The increase is necessary, according to CP&L, because the Brunswick nuclear plant was out of service during the entire period on which the July charge is based, requiring the use of more expensive coal at other plants.

Mental Health Meeting June 8

The Sandhills Mental Health Center area board will meet Tuesday, June 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Moore/Hoke Unit in Pinehurst, it was announced last week.
