HINT: Sueded vinyl upholstery fabric on furniture provides a soft, rich - looking nap. But the good looks belie the easy care. Most dirt brushes away with a little help from detergent or soap and water. Along with the elegance, durability and cleanability, there are colors to suit every room scheme.

SYNTHETIC SUEDE
A '76 PACESETTER Washable, Soft and Wrinkle-Resistant

If you have looked in fabric departments lately, you probably noticed the new synthetic suede materials that are now on the market. This new fabric combines the plushness of suede with the easy care properties of synthetic blends, and is used to create dresses, sportswear and menswear. Available under various trade names, the luxury fabric may also be seen in accessory items such as handbags, hats, belts and in home furnishing that include pillow and chair seats.

The snappy newcomer comes in navy, teal and earth tones such as rust, olive, tobacco, tan. Blends include 60% polyester/40% non-fibrous polyurethane; 95% polyester/5% non-fibrous polyurethane; 80% triacetate/20% nylon. And, the latest arrival is 100% polyester!

Laundrying and drying instructions vary, so be sure that care labels are read and followed carefully.

When sudsing suede synthetics by hand, care should be taken in rinsing not to squeeze or wring the items. To remove excess moisture, roll garments in a towel. Lay flat or hang to dry.

The wrinkle-resistant characteristic of the elegant fabric has made it a favorite for traveling. Touch-up ironing can be done with a low heat setting, pressing on the reverse side with a press cloth. A light brushing, in one direction, restores the nap. Comfortable in any season, the material is light and won't stretch out of shape. A boon to home sewers, the fabric is suitable for tailored garments, such as vests, pants and pillows. It can be draped, pleated, gathered or stitched for a full flowing effect. Though lining is not necessary with synthetic suedes, it may be used. Pre-shrunk interfacings are recommended so a finished garment is completely machine launderable.

In America today, there are more than 4,000,000 home accidents each year - 30,000 are fatal; 225,000 accidents involve washing machines, stoves, power mowers and heating devices; 30,000 accidents involve extension cords. The message is plain - great caution must be used in using heating and electrical equipment and machinery with moving parts. Parents should stop and analyze the dangers involved in each household appliance and then carefully explain the risks to children and instruct them in safe operation.
