BELLS -- Workmen began hanging Christmas decorations Monday in Raeford. The bells and Santa Claus decorations were a bright addition to what was a winter weary day.

Alcohol Linked To Fatalities In Medical Examiner Study

The toxicology laboratory of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner analyzed the bloods of 4,382 operators and pedestrians killed on the highways of North Carolina during the six years 1970-1975. The results represent all of the samples submitted to this laboratory during these years that could be identified and categorized.

Of 1,824 operators killed in single-vehicle crashes, 1,055 (58 percent) were under the influence of alcohol, 181 (10 percent) had been drinking, and 588- (32 percent) were sober.

Of the 1,544 killed in multiple-vehicle crashes, 451 (29 percent) were under the influence, 117 (8 percent) had been drinking, and 976 (63 percent) were sober.

Of the 1,014 pedestrians over age 15 killed, 576 (57 percent) were under the influence, 51 (5 percent) had been drinking and 387 (38 percent) were sober.

Blood alcohol concentrations of .10 percent were considered sufficient to influence a person. Those sober had no alcohol.
