

SCS Activities

By Oval Richie
District Conservationist

Recently there was a tour of the North Central Piedmont RC&D Project located in the Greensboro area. Personnel associated with SCS, FmHA, ASCS, the N.C. Extension Service, members of conservation district boards, etc., from various Coastal Plain counties including Hoke took part in the tour. Some of the conservation work seen included sedimentation control measures, flood control projects, and recreational development.

RC&D stands for Resource Conservation and Development. Specifically, an RC&D project is a locally initiated, sponsored, and directed project in which residents work to improve their economy and environment through conservation development and better utilization of natural resources. An RC&D project must be sponsored by local public bodies that have legal authority to undertake resource development activities. Usually eligible are soil and water conservation districts, county governing bodies, municipalities, towns, local and state agencies, etc. RC&D usually covers more than one county. In Hoke County's case it would probably cover the counties in Region N which includes Scotland, Hoke, Robeson, and Bladen.

RC&D can provide technical, financial, and loan assistance for resource conservation and development activities that have community benefits. RC&D can help the project sponsors achieve these goals:

- Reduce Flooding
- Develop water supplies
- Develop forest resources
- Develop recreation areas
- Provide local government with basic resource data
- Promote added economic opportunities

Soil and water conservation districts have an important place in RC&D project operations because of their authority under state laws to carry out broad land use programs. Various USDA agencies will assist the sponsors in carrying out those phases of the program for which each agency has authority. State and local governmental units will act as contracting agencies, receive federal or other funds, and operate and maintain works of improvement.

A tour can be arranged for local people to visit an RC&D project in operation. If there is enough interest in RC&D, sponsors may make an application to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Womack To Shift Emergency Room Beginning May 20

The emergency room at Womack Army Hospital at Ft. Bragg will be temporarily relocated within the hospital building for a three-month period starting May 20.

The temporary location will be in the E-wing next to the main elevators, or the present location of women's Primary Care Clinic.

The ambulance entrance will also be closed and ambulances will use the emergency room entrance.

Walk-in patients should continue to use the hospital's main entrance.

These changes are a result of electrical and mechanical upgrade work underway in the hospital.

Four Homes On Tour Scheduled Saturday

The Hoke County Extension Homemakers will sponsor a tour of interesting homes on Saturday, May 14 from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Tickets for all the houses included are priced at $2 and maps and a writeup on each house can be obtained at the county office building on Magnolia St.

Tickets may also be purchased at the individual homes on the tour for 50 cents.

Homes on the tour are the Harless Wright residence in the South Hoke area, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Wright near the airport, the Julian Johnson home, also near the airport, and the McNeill farmhouse, the residence on 401 build in 1821.

For further information, call the extension service at 875-2162.

A portion of the proceeds will go to the Raeford Woman's Club for its summer camp program for underprivileged youngsters.

Housing Tips

How To Spot A Tornado
Know the tornado season for your area. In a typical year, tornadoes begin to develop over the Gulf states about February. Month by month they move north and east. April, May and June are big tornado months in the Midwest, although tornadoes may strike anytime between March and September. Although tornadoes don't usually occur during winter months, they are technically possible anytime of the year. Most tornadoes occur between midday and 9:00 p.m.

Learn to recognize weather signs. Tornado weather is usually hot, humid, and oppressive, with southerly winds. Thunderclouds may be present. An hour or two before the storm the clouds may have a greenish-black color, and may seem to bulge down instead of up. Rapidly moving lower clouds may be shot with lace-like lightning.

Know what a tornado looks and sounds like. The funnel of a tornado looks like a spinning, twisting rope at its bottom, and fans out into a rotating funnel shaped cloud extending down from the base of a thundercloud. It is usually gray or black. A nearby tornado usually sounds like the roar of a jet plane or a diesel freight train.

Tornadoes usually move from southwest to northeast. They may form in a series of two or more, with a large primary tornado and one or more secondary or lesser storms.

Some tornado funnels never touch ground. Some touch down, rise again, and touch down in another place.

A severe thunderstorm out of the southwest often follows the tornado. Heavy rain and hail may add to the damage of the tornado itself.
