MRS. DOROTHY CAMERON

The Sandhills Region professional librarians met in the library on Monday, May 16 to discuss new plans and regional staff changes. A delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Cameron and her staff.

Please, if you have a March 7, 1977 issue of "U.S. News and World Report" magazine and are not planning to keep it, we need one to finish our collection before binding them.

We have received the last issue of John Jakes' Bicentennial series "The Warriors." If you enjoyed "The Bastards", "The Rebels", "The Seekers", "The Furies", and "The Titans", you will want to read the last of the series. There have been exceptionally good reports on these books and if you like the historical books and have not read these you will want to soon.

In accessioning our old, old books we find some of them are too good to discard and cannot be replaced. These we are giving a new face-lift with a wallpaper jacket. The wallpaper samples were given to us by McLaughlin Co. and we are very grateful. Our shelves look so much better with shiny new jackets.

conference room, come by and ask for a convenient time. We are most anxious to keep a nice display in there at all times. The art that is on display now will be here for some time so please take time to see this. Our Hoke County artists are very talented. Sometimes we hear, "There's just not anything to do in Raeford." You have only to look around or read your local News-Journal to realize the many, many projects that are offered through the Sandhills Community College. Of course, we all know these may not be exactly what some folks call "something to do."

We are still having groups to tour the library. If you or a group would like to come down for a grand tour we would be glad to have you.

quired for moving any buildings into the city.

Before adjourning, the council also discussed the anticipated cut in the federal public works grant and the effect on the proposed annexation of the College Drive area.

The city manager said that they can expect only about half of the $484,000 applied for under the second round of the public works appropriation recently approved by Congress. Drumwright said it would be too expensive to undertake the sewer outfall construction unless the whole project could be completed.

Last year, when the funds were applied for, the plan was to put in the outfall line from S. Main St. near the Summerfield Industries plant, looping it west and north to Hwy. 211 West to take in the College Drive residential area.

Councilmen agreed to wait until June 3, when the North Carolina sub-grants will be announced, before making any decision on altering plans for the project.
