Hoke, Scotland Favor Present District

City and county officials and officials of the Democratic and Republican parties of Hoke and Scotland counties have signed a letter favoring leaving the present Hoke-Scotland State House district as it is, opposing the N.C. General Assembly's reapportionment plan which would have Hoke and Scotland in a new district with Robeson County.

The letter is addressed to the chief of the Voting Section of the Justice Department.

The Hoke County people who signed the letter are County Commissioners James A. Hunt, John Balfour, Daniel DeVane, Mabel Riley and Neill McPhatter; Raeford Mayor John K. McNeill, Jr.; County Republican Chairman J.H. Blue, Jr.; and County Democratic Chairman Harold L. Gillis.

Each name listed the signer's race. The signers include whites, blacks and Indians.

The text of the letter follows.

Dear Sir:

We are citizens of Scotland and Hoke Counties, North Carolina, who strongly object to the recent reapportionment of the North Carolina House of Representatives. As the present plan for reapportionment now stands, Scotland and Hoke Counties, with a combined population (according to the 1980 Census) of 52,656 people, was left in a three-county district with Robeson County, which has a population of 101,577 people. It is our contention that the three-county district.

(1) Does not comply with the one person one vote requirement because it denies the citizens of Scotland and Hoke Counties the opportunity to elect a representative from either one of those counties since the population of Robeson County is almost twice as much as the combined populations of Scotland and Hoke Counties; and

(2) It does not dilute the vote of minorities, but, in some instances, actually enhances their voting power. This is readily apparent from the population figures (according to the 1980 Census) shown on Exhibit A attached to this letter.

HISTORY

Prior to redistricting in 1965, Scotland County and Hoke County each had one representative. After redistricting, the Scotland County representative was defeated in 1968 and Hoke County's representative was beaten in 1972. Neither Hoke nor Scotland County has had a representative since 1972 -- all of the representatives coming from Robeson County. It is important to note that in the redistricting plan of 1971, Robeson County actually lost population according to the 1970 Census, while Hoke and Scotland Counties gained, but as a result of the loss of population by Robeson County, the total number of seats in the House district was reduced from four to three, even further reducing the opportunity for Scotland and Hoke Counties to have a representative.

As the North Carolina House of Representatives began to consider the present reapportionment plan in the spring of 1981, the County Commissions from both Scotland and Hoke Counties passed resolutions supporting a district made up of Scotland and Hoke Counties with one representative. Delegations from both counties made up of women, men, and minorities appeared at all public hearings held by the House Redistricting Committee (East) and urged that we have a district composed of Scotland and Hoke Counties and urged that we be separated from Robeson County. As the debate went on in the House during the regular legislative session and during a specially called session to deal with reapportionment in the fall of 1981, there were numerous plans proposed but the end result was to leave Scotland and Hoke Counties with Robeson County, thereby depriving us of any reasonable opportunity to elect a representative from either Hoke or Scotland Counties.

The delegation that went to the General Assembly from Hoke and Scotland Counties received the commitment from each one of our present representatives from Robeson County to not oppose a district composed of Scotland and Hoke Counties.

MINORITIES

Scotland and Hoke Counties are proud of the fact that minorities have been able to win elections in our counties on City Councils, County Commissions, and School Boards. Scotland County presently has Blacks serving on the Laurinburg City Council, on the Wagram City Council, and on the School Board. Hoke County has an Indian and Black who serves on the Board of County Commissioners as well as a female. There are also females serving on the Wagram City Council and the Scotland County Board of Commissioners.

As shown on Exhibit A, Whites have 52% of the population in Scotland and Hoke Counties, Blacks have 38%, Indians 9%, and Black and Indians 47%. Robeson County has 39% White, 25% Black, 35% Indian, and a combination of 60% Black and Indian. Dividing the Robeson-Hoke-Scotland district diminishes Black strength in Robeson County by only 5% but at the same time, it would increase Black strength in a Scotland-Hoke district by 8%. With Robeson County as a separate district, Indian strength would be increased in that County by 9%. If Robeson County was to remain by itself the total percentage of Blacks and Indians would be 60% as opposed to 56% if Robeson County is placed with Scotland and Hoke Counties. Therefore, the three-county district as it is now constituted dilutes the Indian population in Robeson County and dilutes the Black population in Scotland and Hoke Counties.

CONCLUSION

We argue that because of the size of Robeson County as compared to the combined populations of Scotland and Hoke Counties the present plan will deny the people of Scotland and Hoke Counties the opportunity to elect a representative and therefore they will be denied a representative under the present system. It is our contention that this does not comply with the one person one vote requirement. Furthermore, minority voting rights would not be diluted, overall, if Scotland and Hoke Counties comprised a district and Robeson County comprised another district. The request we have presented is not racially motivated, but is done to insure that the people of Scotland and Hoke Counties might have an opportunity for electing a resident legislator from either one of those counties.

We ask you to consider this information as you study the North Carolina reapportionment plan.
