

Turlington Students Give 'The Best Year'

"The Best Year" was the title of the play presented last Friday to the Sixth Grade student body by Mrs. Beverly Bowden's homeroom students at J.W. Turlington Elementary School.

The play, written by Mildred Hark and Noel McQueen, vividly captured the importance of beginning the new year with a positive and assertive attitude.

The 33-member cast held the audience spellbound with a performance pulsating energy, enthusiasm, and expressiveness.

In addition to the play, the talented group of boys and girls further electrified spectators with a heartwarming commemoration of the January 15 birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. This recognition, consisting of poetry and prose recitations by Tammy West, Dorchelle Hurst, and Christopher Clark, was brought to a stirring and momentous conclusion with Brietta Smith's dramatic interpretation of Dr. King's immortal speech, "I Have A Dream."

The musical talents of Mrs. Betty Upchurch, reading teacher, further enhanced the program while serving as a melodious vehicle which transported the program's mood and spirit in gracious style and ease.

The observance of Dr. King's birthday also "kicked off" the school's upcoming celebration of National Brotherhood Month and Black History Week during the month of February. Mrs. Jeanette Watson, chairman of the Black History Committee at Turlington reveals a few of the scheduled activities:

"The children will have an opportunity to observe audio-visual presentations of famous Black Americans, participate in an essay contest detailing the importance of Black history, and display their creativity and understanding of brotherhood through artistic designs."

Mrs. Enima Mims, principal, commented on the committee's plans: "I'm very pleased with the work put forth by the committee, and I feel confident that the children will find these activities both enjoyable and educational."

WOMAN INJURED -- A fire of undetermined origin Sunday night injured an elderly invalid and caused this damage. Mrs. Maggie McKinnon was in serious condition at Duke University Hospital in Durham Tuesday afternoon, a hospital spokesman said. She was under treatment at the hospital's burns center. The house is just north of Raeford and near St. James Church. Mrs. McKinnon lived there with her daughter and grandchildren. The North Raeford Fire Department fought the fire. [Staff photo by Pam Frederick].

WATER STUDY -- This map was drawn by Robert Gatlin of Raeford to go with the water resource study he made in connection with North Carolina 2000 for Hoke County. The map shows a lake proposed for establishment by damming Nicholson Creek. The lake would extend to SR 1301 near Upchurch Milling Co. The proposed water source was referred to in general terms at the Hoke County commissioners' meeting of January 18 during the discussion of the proposed rural water system but is not directly involved in the county system plan. North Carolina 2000 is a statewide program initiated by Gov. Jim Hunt to prepare the state for the 21st century. North Carolina people are participating, and the Commission on the Future of North Carolina will be considering actions the people can take now to shape the state they want to have in the year 2000. NC 2000 committees in the state's counties, including Hoke, are working closely with the state commission.
