Hoke Agricultural Extension News

by Willie Featherstone, Jr. County Extension Chairman

A new sweet potato cultivar was released in 1981.

"Pope" was named for Dr. Daniel T. Pope who was the sweet potato breeder in North Carolina from the early 1950s until his retirement in 1975. Pope developed the cultivar "Jewel" which has become the most important sweet potato in the United States.

Pope is a high-yielding, early-maturing cultivar which has high resistance to Fusarium wilt, southern rootknot nematodes and flooding damage ("souring"). It has moderate resistance to Streptomyces soil rot (pox) and internal cork virus. It is equal to or slightly better than "Jewel" in its resistance to wireworms and grubs and has moderate resistance to sweet potato flea beetle. Pope has excellent baking and canning quality. Pope texture is not as creamy and smooth as "Jewel", but it consistently rates higher in taste panels because of flavor.

This new cultivar has been tested in yield trials with Jewel and Centennial for several years. In North Carolina and in national trials, Pope yielded more than either Jewel or Centennial. Sprout production is equivalent to that of Jewel. Pope roots can be stored for 9 to 12 months with little internal breakdown.

High yields, resistance to flooding damage and moderate resistance to Streptomyces soil rot should make Pope valuable to growers in North Carolina. Pope is highly recommended as an addition to the cultivars now available.
