Couple, 5 Children Lived There

Fire Destroys Farm Home

Fire possibly caused by a defect in an electric stove destroyed a farm house on SR 1450 about 2 1/2 miles southeast of Raeford about 9 a.m. Monday. The family who lived there --

Wayne Cummings, 30, his wife, Mary, 29, and their five children, ages 5 to 10 -- lost everything but some clothing and a small television set; and three cars, several years old, which were in the side yard. Mrs. Cummings said Monday afternoon, answering a reporter's questions.

She said no one was in the house when she saw the fire, which broke out in the kitchen of the old one-story, frame house.

Neil McKenzie, chief of the Stonewall Volunteer Fire Department, whose district the home is in, said the couple told him there had been some "trouble with the stove" earlier Monday morning. He said the fire seems to have come from an electrical problem in the kitchen.

Cummings told the reporter that "the stove blew up or something."

His wife said they had no insurance to cover the loss. She said the house was owned by Tommy Upchurch and that her husband farmed for him. Cummings said he was working in Red Springs when the fire broke out.

McKenzie said the house was a total loss. It was in flames when the Stonewall firemen arrived. He said 10 to 12 men of the Stonewall department answered the alarm. They were helped by five to six men from the North Raeford Volunteer Fire Department and several from the Antioch Volunteer Fire Department.

He said the house, T-shaped, contained two and possibly three bedrooms, and a living room, besides the kitchen.

Mrs. Cummings, answering another question put by the reporter, said the family would stay with her husband's family. The latter's home is a mile or so north of the burned house, she indicated with her hand.

The Cummings' children are Dianna Carol, 10, William, 9, Janie Lee, 8, and Theresa and Telana, the 5-year-old twins.
