

Mosquito Control Methods Listed

With the recent weather and abundance of water in low lying areas, many Hoke County citizens presently or shortly will have a mosquito problem.

Adult mosquitoes frequently rest in grass, shrubbery, or other foliage; but they never develop there. Mosquitoes develop only in water. Stagnant water can produce a brood of mosquitoes in a few days.

The Hoke County Health Department and Agriculture Extension Office recommend the following cleanup activities to reduce the mosquito population.

Empty, remove, cover, or turn upside down any receptacle that would hold water, particularly old bottles and tin cans.

- Change water and scrub vases holding flowers or cuttings twice each week or grow cuttings in sand.
- Discard old tires or store them indoors. Discarded tires should be sent to approved disposal sites or reclamation centers.
- Screen rain barrels and openings to water tanks.
- Repair leaky plumbing and outside faucets.
- Fill or drain areas that hold stagnant water.
- Connect waste-water drains to approved sewage disposal systems.
- Clean clogged roof gutters and drain flat roofs.
- Fill holes in trees with sand or mortar. Drain or spray them as required.
- Stock ornamental ponds with mosquito fish.

- Change water in birdbaths twice weekly; in wading pools, weekly; and in watering pans, daily.

Other techniques can minimize the mosquito problem, such as use of a repellent on exposed skin and clothing; installation of tight fitting window screens and doors; and use of the proper insecticide to kill the mosquito. These are individual efforts that may be taken to reduce an individual exposure to mosquitoes.

Free informational materials concerning mosquito control are available through the Hoke County Health Department (875-3717) or Agricultural Extension Office (875-3461).

Kids See Turks Grow From Cells

Mrs. Sandra Horne's West Hoke School kindergarten students have been learning about young turkeys, and from the very beginnings of the little birds at that.

They were given four eggs about Easter time by the Tar Heel Turkey Hatchery, and from then on watched the birds develop daily from the beginning of life till they were ready to come out of their shells. They didn't see them actually break out, because the little turks did this the night of May 4 in the classroom. But they saw them the next morning when they arrived for class.

What allowed the children to see inside the eggs while the turkeys were developing was a special instrument used the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It was loaned to the students by the husband of Eloise Furr, the class teacher's assistant. He works for the USDA.

The children also took care of the turkeys before they came out of their shells; they turned the eggs over each day till three days before the birds were hatched. Mrs. Furr noted, "The turkeys hatched just in time for Mother's Day."

The babies came into the world 28 days after life started in the eggs.

The eggs were kept warm and dry inside a special closed box heated by a light bulb. They also saw chickens develop through all stages. The chicken eggs were given by Charles Wilson.

Watching the turkeys develop from their beginning in their eggs till after they were hatched is part of the study of living creatures the children have been doing. Before they got the turkey eggs, the students also studied the life cycles of insects and frogs, even making models of them.

Hours-old turkeys with some of their 'guardians' in Mrs. Horne's class: L-R, Kevin Scott, Stacy Dunagan, Shelley McCoy, Chiquita McQueen, Latoya Morrissey, Missy Taylor, and Jason Melton.
