Doings

Christmas closing — The library will be closed Friday Dec. 22-Monday Dec. 27 for the Christmas holidays. Be sure to get your books for the holiday reading before closing date.

If your book is due back on any of the days we are closed you will not be charged overdue fines for these days. All dates after Mon. Dec. 27 will be fined the usual 5 cents a day. Remember, all over due dates up to Dec. 22 and after Dec. 27 will have a fine if books aren't returned on time.

Art Display — James Linehan, assistant professor of art at St. Andrews Presbyterian College, has won the 11th annual Competition for North Carolina Artists.

"Rain" — a 5-by-5 composite using wood, canvas and paint — was selected from more than 250 entries.

Jurist Peter Plagen said he chose the work because it was typical of what was going on in the art world today.

Linehan's work, along with 29 other pieces, is on exhibit at the Fayetteville Museum of Art through Dec. 23.

Colonial Williamsburg — For a quarter century, one of the most anticipated and ageless delights of Colonial Williamsburg's holiday season has been nostalgic glimpses of Christmases past created by the Abby Rockefeller Folk Art Center. This year will be no exception when the museum's 25th annual Christmas exhibition unfolds Dec. 11 through Jan. 2 before appreciative audiences wistfully savoring the warm glow of bygone yuletides.

CHRISTMAS DINNER — Christmas dinner was held Friday from 10:30 a.m. till noon at the Hoke County Civic Center, for the students of the county Trainable Multi-handicapped Classes. Here are some of the teachers, parents and students at the dinner.

Hypothermia A Winter Danger

Conserving energy in the winter usually means lower temperatures in your home or workplace.

The cooler surroundings don't present a health hazard to most people.

But when temperatures are very cold, some people — particularly the elderly and chronically ill — are at risk of developing hypothermia, a condition where the body temperature drops dangerously low.

According to the North Carolina Medical Society, the most common victims of hypothermia traditionally have been hunters and campers — people who are exposed

When making pattern adjustments, make sure the total waist and hip adjustments are divided equally between the front and back so that the design of the garment is not distorted.

It is not safe to use the contents of a can that is bulged or swollen; it should be discarded. Cans that have stained labels, small amounts of rust or minor dents are okay, as long as there is no leakage.

to cold temperatures for long periods of time.

Hypothermia is not always recognized because the expected symptoms — shivering and turning pale — do not occur.

In fact, the hypothermia victim often feels comfortable while those around the victim complain about the cold.

Slurred speech, irregular heartbeat, or dizziness are symptoms of hypothermia.

A special thermometer which registers below the normal 94 degree mark is needed to detect it.

Seek medical attention immediately if you suspect someone is suffering from hypothermia.

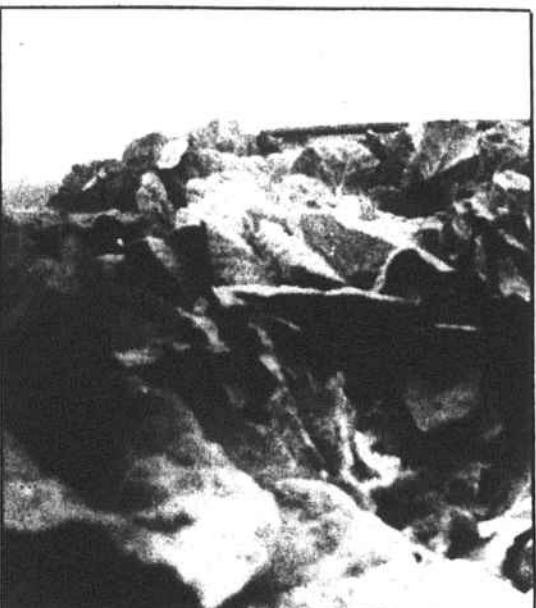

MOST TICKETS — Shriner Jimmy McMillan of Red Springs, member of the local Mecca Shrine Club, is shown receiving an award for selling the most fish fry tickets for the 1982 Annual Shriner's Fish Fry. Presentation was made by Shriner Jimmy Attaway at their meeting on December 7, at Edinborough Restaurant.
