So let's make this a gala affair and show support for the local chamber. See you there.

in the schools, but in the every day walks of life.

Of course, no one at this time knows what the costs would be, but if discipline could be taught, it would be worth the price.

We feel that the school board would get the unit if they thought the people of the county were willing to pay for it, so let your feelings be known now.

The graduation section of The News-Journal will be published on Thursday, June 9. This has become one of the special issues for the paper and we want to make sure that everyone that wants an advertisement in this issue will make the deadline.

Mrs. R.E. Neeley let me read an article published on Friday, April 15 in the Durham Sun. It was about Mr. and Mrs. Fred Culbreth who lived in Raeford for many years and now make their home in Durham.

The article was written by Allison Adams and was mostly an interview with the Culbreths' son, Fred Jr. As most of you know Mrs. Culbreth has Alzheimer's disease and Mr. Culbreth is stricken with multi-infarct dementia.

Fred Jr. relates the problems he and his sisters, Connie and Carolyn, have had with the sickness of their parents and how they have, at the time, solved these problems.

It is an interesting article and I know Mrs. Neeley would be glad for anyone interested to read it.

The problem is something that would happen in one way or another to all of us. We commend the Culbreths family for their togetherness and close family ties.

Last week I read with interest the school board meeting and the item about an ROTC unit for the Hoke County High School. Being a veteran and an old National Guardsman for many years, that was good news to me.

Since that time many people have mentioned the item to me and everyone was in agreement that it would be a good thing.

We think that the unit would start teaching discipline once again. It seems that this is one thing that has become lax, not only

Hoke High Band Plays At Disney

The Hoke High School band spent four days last week as guest performers at Disney World's Magic Kingdom.

The band, which left last Wednesday, May 11 and returned to Raeford on Sunday, May 15, had a wonderful time, one band member said.

Everyone seemed to agree that being chosen was an honor and performing at Disney World was a "thrill."
