Approximately 63 members of the clan started gathering from far and near on Friday afternoon for the weekend festivities. Some stayed with relatives, some in motels and some camped on the banks of Rockfish creek just behind the home place, where they all gathered each day for the daily activities and reminiscing. They came with coolers filled with food and chairs to enjoy the coolness of the tree shaded area and the huge parachute, hung for unshaded

The highlight of the occasion took place Saturday afternoon with a cookout and picnic. Group entertainment and live music made this a festive affair.

After the Sunday morning breakfast on the banks of the creek, worship services were conducted by Ronald Stevens, son of Blanche Stevens, and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. McKeithan.

The group disbanded and headed for Emerald Isle for several days before returning to their homes, and looking forward to gathering here again next year the first Saturday before July 4.
