Allen receives IBM assignment

The International Business Machines Corporation in Kingston, New York has offered Genise Merchel Allen of Raeford, a temporary job assignment in their Cooperative Education Program with Lab Operations and Development.

This job assignment is to begin January 6, and is to end May 2, 1986.

Genise, the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Bobby G. Allen of Raeford, is the first Psychology major in the Cooperative Education Program, at Fayetteville State University to be chosen by IBM.

Yule merry for students

Upchurch Junior High has sponsored two activities recently designed to help the community.

Upchurch students, at Thanksgiving helped provide less fortunate community members with food.

Six families were chosen by individual school communities. Students brought non-perishable items for distribution.

During Christmas week activities December 16-20, Upchurch students established a "Wishing Well."

By dropping change in the well, students sought to create a happier Christmas for community children.

The money was used for toys for those children selected by social services.

In Chicago

Leah Hendrix, Rt. 3, Raeford, was a delegate to the 64th National 4-H Congress November 30-December 5 in Chicago, Illinois. She is shown with Dr. Mike Davis, associate state 4-H leader with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service at North Carolina State University. Hendrix, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hendrix, received the trip from Montgomery Ward & Company as one of 24 winners across the nation in the 4-H consumer education program.

Shortcuts make cleaning easier

Here are some ways you can shortcut - or prevent - many common cleaning chores.

--Wipe up food spills on your range or cooktop as they happen, before they have a chance to bake on.

--Don't let gas flames lick the sides of your cookware; they cause heat stains.

Use a spatter guard (or an inverted colander over the skillet) when you fry anything with popping grease, such as bacon or chicken.

--Avoid cooking alkaline foods such as spinach or potatoes in aluminum cookware. It will darken the aluminum, making scouring necessary.

--If you need to boil eggs in an aluminum pan, add a little vinegar to the water to keep the aluminum from darkening.

--To remove burned or scorched food from the bottom of an aluminum pan, fill the pan with water and bring it to boiling. Then remove the softened food with a wooden spoon or pot scraper.

--To brighten aluminum cookware, use it to cook acidic foods, such as apples or rhubarb.

--To loosen food from enamel cookware, fill the utensil with cold water and let stand until the food is softened.

--For food burned onto enamel cookware, fill the pot or pan with a water and baking soda solution (2 teaspoons soda per quart of water) and bring to boiling. The food will loosen enough to be removed with a scraper or plastic sponge.

--Remove stains or cloudiness from glassware by filling glasses with water to which a teaspoon or two of ammonia has been added. Let stand for several hours or overnight, then rinse thoroughly.

--To whiten a porcelain sink, fill with lukewarm water, add a little chlorine bleach, and let stand for a short time.

--Rinse egg dishes with cold water. Extremely hot water will cook the eggs to the surface, making them difficult to remove.

--For burned spots on glass ceramic cookware, fill utensils with a water and baking soda solution and let it stand.

The almond toffee recipe that was printed in the special Christmas edition last week was not clear. I am running the recipe again and hope it will be clearer.

Almond Toffee Candy
1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 teaspoons light corn syrup
1/2 cup almonds, blanched
3/4 cups sugar
2 tablespoons water
9 ozs. milk chocolate

Combine the butter, sugar, corn syrup, and water in a 1 quart saucepan. Stir while melting the butter and heating the mixture. After the sugar is dissolved, stir fairly frequently to keep the mixture from burning. Boil the candy to a final temperature of 300°F., being careful not to burn any portion of it. Stir in half of the chopped blanched almonds and pour onto a jelly roll pan. Spread the candy into a layer about 1/4 inch thick. Over hot water, melt half of the milk chocolate and spread over the surface of the candy. Sprinkle generously with finely chopped
