Hoke High's Deborah Davis named Hoke Teacher of the Year

Deborah Faye Davis, a Home Economics teacher at Hoke High School, was named Hoke County's Teacher of the Year. Davis, a graduate of N.C. Central University, is in her 17th year of teaching, all 17 of them in Hoke County.

The workaholic is at school by 6:30 a.m. and usually doesn't leave until after 6:30 p.m. But it's her treatment of students that stands out. "I treat every student that comes into my classroom, and even the students just in my midst — I treat them with lots of love and care. I give them my undivided attention," she says.

"I stress the importance of education, of putting goals first and setting high goals.

"I give them the feeling that they are intelligent and can do anything they want to if they just try it," she says.

Davis is a Raeford native who returned. She lives with her mother, Sallie L. Davis, who she described as "definitely my backbone — she supports me highly."

Active in several Home Economics-related organizations, she has helped write two curriculums used in N.C. public schools: food and nutrition and Future Homemakers of America-Home Economics Related Occupations (FHA-HERO) leadership.

She says the highlight of her career came last year when she was recognized at the state and national level as a master advisor for her role in helping two students (Ann Richards and Missy Barker) attain state FHA-HERO office.

Davis was selected by an interview team comprised of faculty representatives from all Hoke schools. She was chosen from Teachers of the Year at each school.

Other Teachers of the Year are:

•Mary M. Bounds, J.W. McLaughlin Elementary. She too is in her 17th year and teaches second grade. She is a graduate of Pembroke State University.

•Vicki Bennett Szwaja, South Hoke Elementary. In her sixth year, she teaches kindergarten and first grade. She holds a Business Administration degree from Richmond Community College, and a B.S. degree in Early Childhood and a masters in Elementary Education from Pembroke State University.

•Audrey Dunkley, East Hoke Middle School. She is in her 24th year and teaches eighth grade Communication Skills and Social Studies. She holds a master's degree from Fayetteville State University and a B.S. degree from Arkansas University.

•Kim Tuttle, Upchurch Elementary. In her fifth year, she teaches first grade. She holds an Early Childhood, K-4 degree from UNC-Wilmington.

•Clarrie Miles, West Hoke Elementary. In her 15th year, she teaches a fifth grade self-contained class. She holds a B.S. degree from Fayetteville State University.
