Election

N. Main St.; Raeford #2, Sandhills Community College, 127 W. Elwood Ave.; Raeford #3, Hillcrest Fire Department, Highway 401, Business; Raeford #4, Hoke County Civic Center, South College Drive; Raeford #5, Upchurch School Gymnasium, Turnpike Road North; Rockfish, Rockfish Fire Department, downtown Rockfish; Stonewall, Stonewall Fire Department, Highway 20.

On election day, voters will be asked to make several local, district, state and national decisions.

On the local front, the race for two seats on the Hoke County Board of Commissioners will be fought by Cleo Bratcher Jr. and James A. Leach, Democrats, and Jim Knott and Gene R. Shelnett, Republicans. There will also be a fight for two seats on the Board of Education among John F. Harry, John D. McAllister and Leland D. Strother.

There will be several other countywide elections on the ballot in which citizens are running uncontested, including Raz Aury for Soil and Water Conservation Supervisor; Della Maynor for Register of Deeds; and Jean E. Powell for District Attorney.

The statewide election will also leave voters with several choices. In the race for Dist. 17 of the State Senate, J. Richard Condor and Aaron Plyler, Democrats, will face W.P. (Bill) Davis and Clayton Loflin, Republicans.

In Dist. 30 of the State Senate, David F. Weinstein, Democrat, is running unopposed.

In the Dist. 16 House of Representatives race, Douglas Y. Yongue, Democrat, will face off against Jonathan D. Breeden, Republican.

In the Dist. 85 House of Representatives race, Ronnie Sutton, Democrat, is running unopposed.

The Dist. 87 House of Representatives race pits Donald A. Bonner, Democrat, against Frances M. Cummings, Republican.

The 8th Congressional District race ballot for United States Senator and Member of Congress will contain candidates from four different parties including Harvey B. Gantt and W.G. (Bill) Hefner, Democrats; Jesse Helms and Curtis Blackwood, Republicans; Ray Ubinger, Libertarian; and J. Victor Pardo and Thomas W. Carlisle, Natural Law.

On Nov. 5 voters will also have the opportunity to vote for or against several constitutional amendments and a bond referendum. They are listed below.

Constitutional amendments granting veto power to the Governor; constitutional amendment to provide that probation, restitution, community service, work programs and other restraints on liberty are punishments that may be imposed on a person convicted of a criminal offense; constitutional amendment adding Victims' Rights Amendment, giving crime victims basic rights to participate in the justice system; the issuance of one billion eight hundred million dollars ($1,800,000,000) State of North Carolina Public School Building Bonds constituting general obligation bonds of the State secured by a pledge of the faith and credit and taxing power of the State for the purpose of providing funds to counties, with any other available funds, to pay the cost of public school building capital improvements; the issuance of nine hundred fifty million dollars ($950,000,000) State of North Carolina Highway bonds constituting general obligation bonds of the State secured by a pledge of faith and credit and taxing power of the State for the purpose of providing funds, with any other available funds, through the application of not in excess of five hundred million dollars ($500,000,000) of the bonds to pay the capital costs of urban loops, the application of not in excess of three hundred million dollars ($300,000,000) of the bonds to pay the capital costs of Intrastate System projects and the application of not in excess of one hundred fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) of the bonds to pay the capital costs of projects constituting a part of the State secondary highway system resulting in the paving of unpaved roads.

Shelnett

polished politician." After he filed and declared his intent to run for the county office, Shelnett said he spoke with a lot of local residents who shared his concerns. So if elected, there are several things he'd focus on, including working with the sheriff's department to reduce crime, making sure county employees live within the county, creating a friendly atmosphere as a liaison between the county and developers interested in the local market and working on the county's budget.

"I feel there's a need to streamline the daily operations of county government," he said.

Shelnett said he also thinks Hoke County's volunteer firefighters should receive some kind of compensation, such as help with dues to the North Carolina Firemen's Pension Fund, monetary payment for each answered alarm or possibly even payment to help them attend training programs.

"One of the county's most important assets is volunteer firemen and they should be rewarded in some way," Shelnett said.

Shelnett also is concerned about the crime in the county, especially among young people.

"One thing I feel is very important right now is the truancy problem I see within the county's schools," Shelnett said.

Although he admits he doesn't know how to prevent the problem from happening, he said he has spoken with officials and is working on a solution.

Shelnett, one of the few Republicans to run for office in the predominantly Democratic Hoke County, said what's more important than the party he's registered with is his involvement as a citizen. The only way to arrive at satisfactory results is for everyone to become involved — regardless of party affiliation, he said.

"The Republican party is growing," Shelnett said, "but I'm part of the concerned citizens and we're much larger. I'd rather run on principles rather than politics."
