HINTS TO BUSINESS MEN!

Good advertising consists in the selection of a few strong, quick sell specialties, to stand as the representatives of your stock in price, pattern and quality.

Invite patrons to come and see you. The great advertisers of the country never cease reminding the people of their names, location and nature of business.

The U. S. senate is especially interested at the present time in the power of the suppress.

The quantity of work that the various "industrial armies" have marched away from would have kept them employed for an ordinary lifetime.

People can fret and do as they please. And cry out aloud for shame!

In accepting a nomination for congress Gen. Weaver shows a desire to maintain his reputation as a runner for more things than he doesn't get than any other man of the present age.

The winds may blow and roosters crow. And people live without fame, But when the evenings roll around The Visitor is there all the same.

If Col. Breckinridge has equipped himself with as many new resolutions as those opposed to him have drawn up there will be comparatively small cause to worry about his future career.

The Baltimore Sun suggests that congress should be paid by the piece. It is proposed to pay a congressman $5,000 if a session ends in three months, $4,000 if it extends to four months, and nothing at all if six months are exceeded.

The view of the immigrant which prevailed in and out of congress until about 1880 took into account nothing but the value of his muscle and the money he brought in his pocket.

FOUND IN AN OLD BIBLE.

How a Young Woman Discovered Her Marriage Certificate.

New York, June 3.—When the old New York hotel was closed there was a free distribution of old Bibles placed in guests' rooms years before by the Bible society. It occurred then to Johnnie Farrell, who managed the cafe for ten years, that it would be a graceful act to have the staff of the hotel put their autographs in the books and present them to the old-time patrons and guests as souvenirs.

Johnnie took one of the Bibles home with him, and his wife in examining the book discovered in a pocket in the back of the cover a marriage certificate, which stated that on a certain day in March, 1890, Anna Gorunan, of Danville, Va., was married to Ralph Preston, of Richmond, Va., by the Rev. Dr. Deems, of this city.

The romantic incident had made an impression on the hotel people, and Farrell determined to write to Ralph Preston and tell him of his find. This he did, but received no reply. Last summer one of the New York dailies referred in a paragraph to the giving away of the Bibles as a piece of sacrilege.

By some strange fate a copy of this paper recently reached the notice of Mrs. Preston. She, in a thoughtless moment, while a bride at the hotel, had placed her certificate of marriage in the Bible in her room and had forgotten all about it.

Some difference arose between her and her young husband while on their European tour and they separated. While at a small village in Switzerland he was seized with a fatal illness, and in a few months the young bride found herself a widow. She returned to Richmond, only to find that the Preston family would not recognize the marriage. She had no proof, as both her husband and the clergyman were dead, and had borne this humiliation silently ever since.

When she saw the paragraph about the Bibles the remembrance came like a flash of the disposition she had made of the certificate, and with the double hope of finding it she came to New York and called on John Farrell and was put in possession of the precious document, which not only insures her proper participation in her husband's large estate, but restores her honorable position in society.
