DOTS AND DASHES

MADE ABOUT TODAY'S HAPPENINGS.

Interesting Items Gathered in and Around the City.

The list takers are anxious for all persons to come forward and list their property and polls. They have the books in their room opposite the Sheriff's office.

We learn that on yesterday, as the fast train on the S. A. L. was pulling under its shed in Weldon, a wheel under the front truck of the engine broke down. Workmen from the shops here made the necessary repairs.

If you are not a subscriber and get a copy of the Visitor this evening, read it and see how you like it. Give the carrier your name and try it for a month. You will be proud to have it. The Visitor has all the local news up to the hour of going to press, and its news and miscellaneous departments are of the best. "The Visitor leads, never follows."

The progressive and wide awake firm of Messrs. H. F. Smith & Co., will soon add a railroad ticket brokerage agency to their already popular and successful cigar and tobacco business. Their "Key" scheme is taking the cake. Call and make a 25 cent purchase and get a key and maybe the $20 in gold.

There is on exhibition at the museum, the smoke-stack of the old Confederate ram, "The Albemarle." This iron clad vessel was built near Scotland Neck, on the Roanoke river, by Peter E. Smith. After many engagements it was finally blown up by Lieut. Cushing with a star torpedo. The stack is perforated with holes made by cannon balls.

Died.
BLEDSOE.—Last night at 9:30 o'clock, at the residence of his father, Mr. M. A. Bledsoe, Mr. John Eaton Bledsoe died of heart trouble. He had been sick only a short while. Mr. Bledsoe was a member of the Raleigh bar.

Raleigh Should Have One.
Petersburg, Va., is to have a belt railroad. The road is being constructed by the Atlantic Coast Line and will cost between $300,000 and $300,000. It will be about 6 miles long and include a bridge across the Appomattox river. It will connect with the Petersburg and Weldon railroad beyond Butterworth's bridge.

Pansy Club.
There will be a meeting of the young ladies Pansy club, Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. B. H. Lacy on Peace street. Every member of the organization is earnestly requested to be present as some very important matters will come up for consideration.

The New Car Shops.
The furnace for melting the iron and the ladles for handling the metal has arrived. The building is about completed, and the finishing touches are being added. It will be a big help to Raleigh. Success to the gentlemen interested. We would be glad to see a dozen of the same kind here.

The Excursionists.
A large crowd went on this excursion this morning. The R. & D. train carried eleven cars and the S. A. L. six. All of them were well loaded. We wish each and every one a pleasant trip and safe return.

From telegrams received here we learn that the R. & D. arrived at Wilmington at 10:30 a. m., making the run in four hours and fifteen minutes. They were due there at 10:10 o'clock, but were twenty minutes late. The Seaboard Air Line, due to arrive at 10:45, did not reach Wilmington until 11:45, a. m., just one hour late. It is stated they had to make four stops between Hamlet and Wilmington on account of hot boxes. It is considerably farther by the S. A. L. Both trains did good running.

Sam Small is shelling Lynchburg, Va., at present.

A MEAN TRICK.

It Was Played on a Wake County Citizen.

Correspondence of the VISITOR.
LEESVILLE, June 4.
Some one has played a good one on "Bug" Jones of this place, and the story is so good that I must tell it, even if it does "rile him."

It seems "Bug" went to Raleigh the other day and bought him a new hat. As usual he met up with some of his jolly friends. "Boys," he said, "I have just bought me a new hat. Let's go into Smith's and take something on the strength of it."

Of course they all went in. They all took beer, and passed the hat around so all could see it. One of the men in the crowd went to the bartender and had a thin slice of limberg cheese cut off, and while the party were draining their glasses, the joker slipped the cheese under the sweat leather of the hat, and handed it back to "Bug," who put it on. "Bug" is of a nervous disposition and very often imagines he is sick and thinks some dreadful disease is going to take him off. He excused himself and went off to attend to some business. While in a grocery store on Wilmington street he detected a smell of the cheese, but thought it was the beer he had been drinking.

"I smell something fearful around here," remarked a bystander.
The clerk said it was evident that somebody's feet needed washing.

"Bug" felt like he had fever and he said he believe he'd go home.

He met a man on the sidewalk and he remarked that "people must have been using rough on rats around here." "Bug" felt so bad he thought he'd try a bowl of soup. He went into Manda's restaurant and sat down at the table. The man next to him got up and left. Another asked him if he worked at the phosphate mills. Another wondered if small pox hadn't broken out in Raleigh. The cold perspiration stood out on "Bug's" forehead, and as he reached and took his handkerchief from his hat the piece of cheese seemed to breathe. He got the full benefit of it and came near fainting away.

He drove home as fast as he could go. After putting up his horse he started in the house and met the cook at the door.
"Oh, Mr. 'Bug,' what is the matter with you? You look so pale" and she reached up and took his hat off his head. And she got a whiff of the cheese.

"Where in the world did you get into it," she asked.

"Get into what? I have not got into anything, but some deadly disease has got into me, and I am a sick man; I shall not live long."

She told him a disease that smelt like that was terrible, and he certainly could not live.

She got his clothes off, soaked his feet in mustard water and put him to bed. He slept.

The hat was lying on a table and some of the neighbor's children went in and saw it. They got a scent of the cheese. Then they looked at each other and then at "Bug" and silently stole out to play.

"Bug" slept and dreamed that the small pox had broken out at his house and that a flag was up.

The cook sent for a doctor. She told how "Bug" looked when he came home. The doctor looked grave as "Bug" was breathing very hard. He said he would call in another physician as he was not equal to the emergency. He too had smelled the cheese. After an examination had been made one of the doctors picked up the hat and found the cheese.

They woke "Bug," and to carry out the joke, asked him if his worldly affairs were all right. He said they were; that he had always tried to live an upright life, and tried to treat everybody right; that he had no ill will against any one, and was ready to die, but if he could live he would try to find some woman and make her his wife and in future live different.

Then the doctor showed him the hat and cheese. "Bug" pinched himself to see if he was alive and jumped out of bed and called for his revolver; said he was going to Raleigh and find out who put that cheese in his hat if it took all his summer.

If Sam Smith's bartender tells on the joker there will be trouble in the land. ZACK ADAMS.

PYTHIAN CONVENTION.

The Thirtieth Year to be Celebrated by 18,000 Uniformed Knights.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The biennial convention of the Supreme Lodge, and the biennial encampment of the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will convene at Washington August 27. The popular features of the event will be the sessions of the Supreme Lodge, the street parade and review by President Cleveland of the Uniform Rank, the dress parade, a competitive drill between about forty-five infantry and cavalry divisions, and a ball and reception. Excursions to various points about the city have also been arranged.

The executive committee has announced that the encampment fund must be $50,000, and a large percentage of this sum has been subscribed. It is estimated that 18,000 uniformed knights will visit Washington, and that the number of other visitors will be between 150,000 and 200,000. It is understood that the railroads will reduce their fare one-half. The Washington members of the order are enthusiastic over the prospects, and the citizens feel a lively interest in the affair.

The camp will occupy thirty acres, and will form a square around the Washington monument. Tents will be provided for 18,000 men. The camp streets will be named after the states, and military rules of camp life will prevail. Col. John M. Willson, commissioner of public buildings and grounds, has ordered that signs and insignia of the order be wrought in flowers and plants in the parks of the city.

Hundreds of letters are being received daily from branches of the Knights of Pythias throughout the country. Washington is the birth city of the order, the first lodge having been organized here in February, 1864. The strength of the Knights of Pythias in the District of Columbia is 1,400, and in the United States over 500,000. The Uniform Rank has an enrollment of over 40,000.

HAD TO LEAVE

A Despicable Character at Laurinburg Ordered to Leave.

A special to the Charlotte Observer from Laurinburg says:

At last December term of Richmond county superior court Joe Jordan was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary for incendiarism in this town. His testimony and confession implicated as co-principal James H. Barefoot, but at the final pinch he broke down under Barefoot's influence, which was remarkable. The poor boy seemed to be thoroughly controlled by Barefoot. Recently Jordan was returned to Raleigh from the penitentiary farms, and on his bed of sickness has related many things, all proved heretofore to the satisfaction of the people, but not legally proved, and for which reasons Barefoot was released. Since Barefoot's release he has lurked about town, becoming by degrees bolder and bolder in making his rounds on the streets.

Saturday afternoon 40 of the most conservative citizens of Laurinburg, representing every avocation except the ministry, met and proceeded to where Barefoot was at work and through their spokesman, said to him that for reasons well known to himself, his presence was a menace to the interests of their town and a source of terror to some of the citizens, so much so that they had come in a quiet and orderly manner to advise him that they did not think it safe for him to remain but that it would be well for him to take leave and carry his family with him, for if he be found at the going down of the sun on the third day thereafter they feared there would be imminent peril for him; certainly they would not hold themselves responsible for his safety, which is becoming more imperilled each day.

By an agreement of counsel, Patrick Eugene Prendergast, the slayer of Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, will not be tried until the September term of court, when his sanity or insanity will be determined.
