THE A. & M. COLLEGE.

THE EXERCISES OF COMMENCEMENT DAY.

The Speakers and the Winners of Prizes and Honors.

The chapel at the agricultural and mechanical college was comfortably filled today, a good many young ladies being present. Col. Holladay, president of the college, opened the exercises with a few interesting introductory remarks, expressing his pleasure at the great success of the institution up to the present time. He quoted statistics to the effect that of the 44 agricultural and mechanical colleges in the United States not one of the same age had attained so high a standard of college work and that but one, at the same era of its existence, had equalled it in numbers.

He then introduced Rev. A. M. Simms, who offered an earnest appeal to God for the future prosperity and success of the institution and its graduates.

On the rostrum were Gov. Carr, president Holladay, president W. S. Primrose, of the board, Rev. Eugene Daniel, and Rev. A. M. Simms. There are eight graduates, C. E. Corpenning, David Cox, Jr., R. D. Patterson, Chas. Pearson, Z. G. Rogers, J. H. Saunders, B. F. Walton and J. M. Wilson.

After the prayer the exercises were continued with orations by five members of the senior class. The first speaker was Mr. Z. G. Rogers, of Person county, who treated his subject, "Brains versus Mechanics," in a clear and masterly manner. He showed how necessary education is to a successful mechanic, in mathematics, physics, chemistry, modern languages and, in fact, more necessary to a mechanic than to followers of any other profession. He contrasted the common practical mechanic and the educated mechanical engineer.

Mr. David Cox, Jr., of Perquimans, made an excellent speech and showed much study of his subject, "Optimism and Pessimism." He depicted the manifold advantages of optimism in a very clear manner and supported the optimistic view of life by drawing a marked contrast between this and former ages.

Mr. J. H. Saunders, of Pitt, took as his subject "Electricity." His address indicated careful study of the properties of electricity, means of generation, etc. He also showed its wonderful and manifold uses and possibilities. In closing his speech he drew on his imagination and gave an amusing account of the world's fair of the future which, he said will undoubtedly be called the "Edison Exhibition," and where a future generation will see and wonder at the domestic animals and the inventions of today, then extinct, and prominent among them that domestic bugaboo, the cook.

"There is Life in the Old Land Yet" was the subject of Mr. B. F. Walton, of Wake, and he treated it well and opposed the exodus of southern farmers to the west, and showed that hard and intelligent work in the south, along with its other advantages as a home, will make it as advantageous to farmers as any section. He advised variety of crops and quoted statistics, and showed in his whole speech a thorough knowledge of agriculture. The close of his speech was taken up with a description of the model farmer and a picture of the farm of the future.

The closing address was made by Mr. Charles Pearson, of Polk county. His subject was, "The Effect the Engineer has on Civilization," and his speech brought out his subject in a forcible manner. The civil engineer and the architect have the greatest effect on civilization and to them is due credit not generally given. He referred to the present as the electric age and prophesied that a no distant day works now deemed subjects for the wildest fiction will be realized.

Gov. Carr presented the prizes to the three successful students. The winners of prizes were: Mr. O. G. Kennedy, gold medal for excellence in agriculture; Mr. C. E. Clark, $10 for the largest amount of money earned on the college farm; Mr. R. F. Buffalo, $5 for the next largest amount thus earned. Col. Holladay announced that there were some medals to be presented which were not on the program; that the professor of agriculture and the professor of horticulture presented prizes for the best essays by a member of the freshman and sophomore classes respectively; and the agricultural society gave a medal for the best essay by a member of the junior class. Mr. B. F. Kilgore presented these medals. The winners were: freshman class, E. J. Ingram; sophomore class, W. C. Jackson; junior class, A. H. Prince.

Col. Holladay read the honor roll which gave the names of students who averaged 90 on all studies during the year. He also read the distinctions, which were: First distinction in mechanics, Charles Pearson; second distinction, J. G. Rogers; first distinction in agriculture, B. F. Walton; second, R. D. Patterson. Mr. W. S. Primrose presented the diplomas and the Rev. Eugene Daniel closed the exercises with the benediction. A string band furnished music for the occasion. There will be a reception at 8 o'clock this evening.

Two Accomplished People.

In speaking of the approaching marriage of Prof. E. McK. Goodwin to Miss Maude F. Broadway, at Greensboro, the Record says: "Miss Broadway was a member of the first graduating class of the state normal and industrial school and was for the past year a member of the faculty of the same institution. The department of gymnastics was under her supervision and she made a most successful teacher. Mr. Goodwin is well known throughout the state as a gentleman of fine talent and ability, and is one of the trustees of the state normal. After the wedding ceremony a reception will be given the bridal party at the residence of Prof. C. D. Melver. Mr. David Blair, of High Point, will be the groom's best man, and Miss Sadie Hirschinger, of Greensboro, maid of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin will make their home in Morganton."

The church of the Good Shepherd it is said will become the "cathedral church" of this Episcopal diocese. The diocese has bought the residence of the late bishop Lyman for use as the permanent "see house," and there bishop Cheshire will reside. The use of the property of the church of the Good Shepherd was offered as the site for a cathedral. The congregation has decided to pay off the debt of $8,900 by next Easter, and last week pledged the required amount. It is the plan to build a grand church. In this work the entire diocese will join. It will be the Lyman memorial church and it is said the wealthy relatives and friends of bishop Lyman will make contributions to it.
