NO. 69.

A Story of the War.
A very romantic, but nevertheless true, story is briefly recorded in the roster of North Carolina troops of a woman who, to be with her husband, masqueraded as a man and served several months in the army. Her name was Mrs. L. M. Blaylock and when her husband enlisted, April 20th, 1862, she also enlisted after having disguised herself as a man. So perfectly did she play her part that her sex was unknown until her husband was discharged, when she made known the fact that she was a woman and received her own discharge.

Just two weeks from next Tuesday is the big excursion to Asheville, and the cheapest—four dollars. See posters for full particulars.

Superintendent Leazar and Dr. McGee, of the penitentiary, are at the Roanoke farms, where Dr. McGee will make the usual careful sanitary inspection. At the two last visits seven and five convicts, respectively, were found in bed in the hospitals. This is a fine showing out of a prison population of some 1,200. Mr. Leazar was asked whether he would be able to carry the penitentiary through this year without calling on the state for aid and said in reply: "I hope to be able to say to the next legislature that we have supported the penitentiary and do not owe anybody."

THE STATE FAIR.
The Date Changed to October 23-26.

Every day now the prospects for a great state fair brighten, and the prediction made some days ago that it would be a "record breaker" will be verified. The date of the fair was at first October 16-19, but a change has been made to the following week in order that fine stock, horses and side show attractions which are billed for Richmond may come here. The novelties this year will exceed in number and interest any collection ever seen here. Secretary Ayer has engaged the services of a special agent in New York who will look after the most attractive features of this schedule that the genius of the times has been able to devise. Among other things being arranged for is a miniature Ferris wheel about 40 feet high, which is now at Coney island.

The agricultural exhibit will equal that of some expositions this year. It has already been announced that Mr. George Vanderbilt will make a fine exhibit from his magnificent estate at Baltimore, near Asheville, and the advance information from Mr. McNamee, the manager, indicates that the display will be superb.

Some new features not common at the fair will be comprehensive displays of the peanut and rice industries in North Carolina. Particulars and plans for these displays have already been advanced by experienced men, and they will be interesting. Letters are on file from leading agriculturists in eastern North Carolina stating that the east will be well represented, and everybody in the central section is taking an interest in the fair never heretofore known. The premium list is one of the handsomest and most complete publications of the kind ever issued. Send for one.

All the streams which empty into Walnut creek were also inspected. These examinations are made two or three times a year by Dr. McKee, and oftener by Capt. Englehard.

NOTES FROM CARALEIGH.
The Sickness There Now Said to be Abating.

The sickness at Caraleigh is now abating and there are at present only six cases of fever in the little settlement. All the other cases are now convalescing. Several of the families have moved into the city and one has left here. The kindness of the public, which has liberally given everything needful for the comfort of the unfortunate sick, cannot be too greatly commended. The King's Daughters, too, have been untiring in their attention to the sufferers. It is to be noted with great regret that two of the faithful night nurses who have been employed at the mills have been taken sick and it is feared that typhoid fever will develop.

A prominent physician, speaking of Caraleigh today, mentioned the fact that what made the sickness there so prevalent and so hard to stop was because when several people were sick in the same house or when a death occurred it was impossible to properly disinfect the house. A gentleman suggested in this connection that every mill or factory should have an infirmary. This seems an excellent idea, as thus an epidemic of sickness, such as is now prevailing at Caraleigh, would be very improbable, or if it did occur, by the removal of the sick to a large and well ventilated infirmary it would not only be of the greatest benefit to them but would also give a chance to thoroughly disinfect the houses in which there had been sickness. It would thus be of service in stamping out the epidemic. A building suitable for an infirmary could be erected at comparatively small cost; very small, in fact, as compared with the good that would result, and it would be an excellent idea for all the mills here which have settlements of their employees to take steps in this direction.

Dr. R. H. Lewis, of the state board of health, and Dr. James McKee, county superintendent of health, on Saturday visited Caraleigh and placed water from the lower well and from the spring (from which most of the water is taken) in sterilized bottles. These they sealed and sent to Washington, D. C., in order that a careful biological examination can be made. The spring is most unattractively located, quite near the old brickyard.

Raleigh Electric Company.

A meeting of Dr. J. H. McAden and his associates, purchasers of the property and franchises of the Raleigh street railway, was held today at the office of Maj. R. S. Tucker. The deed from R. T. Gray, commissioner of the United States circuit court, to John H. McAden, trustee of the Raleigh electric company (the name selected for the new corporation) was delivered, and the organization agreed upon is as follows: President, Alf. A. Thompson; vice-president, Dr. V. E. Turner; secretary and treasurer, T. H. Briggs; attorney, R. T. Gray; surgeon, Dr. James McKee. Directors, A. A. Thompson, J. H. McAden, Julian S. Carr, V. E. Turner, J. H. Cutler, A. B. Andrews, Julius Lewis, Rev. B. Smedes and J. A. Jones. The capital stock will be $25,000. The questions of routes, extensions and electric lighting will be conducted at future meetings.

The I. O. O. F. Orphanage.

Grand master W. C. Douglas, I. O. O. F., and Mr. C. B. Edwards left here this afternoon for Goldsboro, where they will be joined by Messrs. N. Jacobi, of Wilmington, and W. T. Dorth, of Goldsboro. These compose the executive committee of the Odd Fellows' orphanage, which is in the suburbs of Goldsboro. Tomorrow they will meet there and will accept the plan of a main building and award the contract for its erection. They have in hand now about $7,000 and the building is to cost something like $12,000. There are now twenty-eight children in the orphanage, all of whom attend the Goldsboro graded school.
