A DOUBLE HANGING.

THE COLEY BROTHERS PAY THE PENALTY OF THEIR CRIME.

The Execution Was Private and Their Necks Were Brbken.

Louisburg, N. C., July 13 .- Special -From midnight last night to a late hour this morning large crowds began to arrive here from all sections of the country to witness the execution of the Coley brothers, and by 10 a. m. fully 3,000 people had assembled around the jail. Sheriff Kearney had anticipated the rush and stretched a rope to keep them back. The Franklin Rifles were detailed as a guard, and had no trouble in keeping order.

The prisoners rested well last night and this morning ate a hearty breakfast. At 8 o'clock Rev. Mr. Morton read a chapter from the Bible and talked about their salvation. They expressed their faith in Christ and said they knew they would be saved. They sent a message to their father, asking him to lead a better life and meet them in heaven. At 11:30 they were told to prepare to dress, and after being shaved they were neatly dressed. At 11:15 the sheriff read the Finest sugar cured hams, breakfast judgment of the court. Cal Coley was asked questions about the blowing up of his father's house, but he denied the crime. He said he knew nothing of it and that he did not circulate a report about his father's killing a Jewish peddler some 12 years years ago (such a report having been current here, for the past few days). Tom Coley was asked the same questions, and also denied knowing any The tan Russia leather and grain blu- thing about it. It had been reported that they said their father had set them an example and they had follow- skull and producing unconsciousness, ed in his footsteps. and they ascended the steps leading to the gallows. The prisoners were accompanied by Rev. Mr. Morton and by Drs. E. S. Foster, J. E. Malone, J. H. Harris and J. R. Wheeler.

Rev. Mr. Morton made a brief talk. He said for the past six months he had visited them and had learned that they had never been to Sunday school or to church. They said they had no education and that neither could read

On the scaffold Calvin Coley was asked if he had anything to say. His only request was that Mr. Burwell would preach their funeral sermon to morrow. Calvin Coley said he had heard that judge Bynum said that this case could be found one of murder in the second degree if he could get a new trial. He had nothing more to say. Tom refused to talk.

Rev. Mr. Morton read a chapter in the Bible and offered a touching

The murderers then shook hands with Mr. Morton and the sheriff. The latter placed them on the trap, and placed the nooses around their necks. Calvin loosened the rope which was drawn quite tight around his neck. Tom prayed that the Lord might be with him and take him to a better world. Calvin made a short prayer.

Their last words were a call on the Lord. The trap fell at 1:18. Calvin Coley died instantly. His neck was broken. Tom's neck was also broken and he was pronounced dead in five minutes.

After the bodies were cut down they were placed in coffins, turned over to their father and taken to Griffin townsship, Nash county, where they will be buried in their family burying ground beside their brother who was murdered some years ago.

On the night in question they all ate supper together and after this all sat down in front of the house, while Cal played the banjo, on which he was a very expert performer. About 10 o'clock, after Tucker had been lying across the bed with his coat off, (it was a very warm evening) he got up to get some water, and while just outside the door the Coleys seized him, overpowered and threw him down, and while Tom held him down on the ground Cal got an axe and struck him on the back of the head, fracturing the though not instant death. They burned the clothes, pack and such things as they did not want, and took the other things, ineluding $169 and his pistol (which was in Tucker's coat pocket) and packed them in trunks, and on the morning thereafter (July 2), went to Louisburg and thence to Norfolk, Va. Here Cal. and Pinkey lived as husband and wife, as did also Tom and Lucy. The latter two remained only about two months, when all Tucker's money being spent, they came back near where they had gone from. Tucker's business taking him here, there and everywhere, his absence was not noticed, and nothing was known about the foul murder which had been committed until the Christmas holidays of last year. On Saturday before Christmas two men hunting tur keys found the skeleton, and even then it was not suspected who had been murdered, but the neighbors talked the matter over and at last concluded that Tom (who had returned and was living near them) had killed Cal and hid him in the woods. When Lucy Wilkins heard this she said she knew this was not so, as she had had a letterionlya few days before from Cal who was in Norfolk, and after this she told some one about the murder. As soon as this was known Tom took to the woods, but was captured on the last day of the year, and brought to Louisburg to jail, together with Lucy.
