THE STAGE.

The old stage of the past is gone, driven out by the march of improvements. The live horse has been supplanted by the iron horse, the picturesque driver by the jolly engineer. Notwithstanding this fact there are thousands of people still anxious to go "on the stage." Why, oh why, don't somebody write a new farce comedy for the stage, one that won't be a rehash of all the ones that have gone before, one that will have a new song that has not been sung to death, or a new dance that has never been danced before? Why don't somebody in this day and generation that has run realism to death, this time when real snow, real rain, real horses, real cars, real water tanks, real piledrivers and real pugilists are on the stage, why don't somebody write a new Hamlet and use real ham? Speaking of stages, there are several stages used in getting to the front in business. First, the experimental stage; second, the stage of uncertainty; third, the successful stage. We're already riding on the third stage, up on the front seat with the driver, permitted to crack the whip ourselves occasionally. In one short year we passed the experimental and the uncertain stages, and today there's no guesswork about our business success. What has been the means of our rapid transit? Straight work, hard work—work all the time. In one year men and women have learned to believe in us, to know that we always give value—good, big value for every nickel that goes into our money drawer—and we don't do it for one day or on any one line of goods, but we do it every day and on every line of goods we sell. We are showing some emphatic values at the furnishing counters this week, values that are crowding the wide aisles full of customers. We have already done a good winter's business in underwear and we are prepared for a good deal more. Remember, we are selling underwear—fifty cent values at 30c., sixty-five cent values for 40c.; seventy-five cent values for 50c.; ninety cent values for 60c.; dollar twenty-five values for 80c.—and the values are not fictitious; it wouldn't pay, at this stage of the game and the same good values can be found in the dress goods department; values entirely worth your time to see. And in carpets same principles hold good. This is what makes our store so popular right now in the face of low price cotton. Respectfully,

D. T. SWINDELL.

Gov. Carr will open the colored state fair November 13.

The death of Mr. Louis O. Lougee causes great regret here.

A convict from Jones county arrived at the penitentiary today.

Col. Julian S. Carr brought several fine horses at the sale here yesterday.

The senior class at the state university has voted to wear caps and gowns.

Rev. Mr. Ramsey, who is to assist in the revival at Central M. E. church, arrived this morning.

Mrs. Henry J. Brown fell from her door yesterday afternoon and broke her left arm just above the wrist.

It is said that U. S. attorney general Olney is beginning to find cabinet duties distasteful and may retire.

Mr. J. G. Steed has been taken from Rex hospital to the home of Dr. James McGee, Jr., and is now able to sit up in bed.

Mr. Thomas H. Briggs, as commissioner announces that the sale of "Oakdale" property will be held December 10.

The foot ball teams of the university of North Carolina and Richmond college played a match game at Greensboro today.

Two negroes, Stonewall Jackson and Harris, were sent to jail by mayor Badger for stealing a hog from Jacob Jones, colored, in Bledsoe's field.

The Noss Jollity company ought to have a fine house. The company is a capital one and the performance full of fun.

The receipts at the chrysanthemum show, held by the Ministering circle of the King's Daughters were $175. The net result will be about $100.

Travel on the street cars has been extremely light last week and this week. This is rather depressing to the management. Patronize the cars.

The committee has not accepted the work on the market. It is said there are cracks in the new concrete floor and some scaling. Some days ago the inspection was made.

There were ninety-seven horses sold at Capt. Williamson's annual sale which ended here yesterday. They brought $8,250, making the average price $85.

There will be a called meeting of Raleigh typographical union tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to steps regarding the death of Mr. L. O. Lougee. All are members requested to be present.

The chattel property and $40,000 stock of the national bank of Raleigh are bequeathed to Mrs. Reade, and the rest of the estate is divided among the nephews and nieces of judge Reade.

Judge Jesse F. Graves, of the superior court for the ninth judicial district, died yesterday at his home at Mt. Airy. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning. Gov. Carr appoints William N. Mebane, Esq., of Rockingham county, to succeed judge Graves. Judge Graves was a grandson of Jesse Franklin, one of the early governors of the state, and was a good man and a just judge.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Populist Chairman Marion Butler Gives Some Figures.

Marion Butler arrived here last night and was interviewed by a reporter. He adheres to his estimate of 30,000 fusion majority and says the chances in the third district are in Thompson's favor, and that the official count is necessary to decide. He concedes Lockhart's election by four to six hundred. He states that the fusion majority in the senate will most probably be 12 to 13 and a majority of 30 is certain in the house—perhaps 34. There are, he added, about 7 more populists than republicans in the legislature.

The official returns are not all in but it appears certain that Richmond Pearson is elected to congress in the 9th district.

It is said that in Chatham and perhaps other counties it is proposed to make a fight on the ticket for state treasurer, claiming that the fusion tickets bore the words "for state treasurer, W. H. Worth," when only "for treasurer" should have been used.

The populists claim with a considerable degree of positiveness that they elect Cyrus Thompson to congress in the third district. John G. Shaw telegraphed last evening that he was elected beyond doubt.

As to United States senator it is conceded that Mr. Butler will get the long term. Who will get the other?

Upon the basis of the returns in the U. S. house of representatives the fifty-fourth congress will consist of 245 republicans, 91 democrats and 20 populists.

As to the legislature it may be quite positively said that of the fusionists the populists are the most numerous. In the division of offices when nominations were made the republicans in more cases took the county offices, while the populists were named for the legislature.

A. E. Holton, chairman of the state republican executive committee, is now spoken of as a candidate for the U. S. senate, to succeed Mr. Jarvis.

Democratic state-chairman Poutney packed up his effects at headquarters, and left for his home at Smithfield. He did extremely hard work during the canvass. The result of the campaign was a great surprise to him. He says that the whole vote in the state was light and that absenteeism on the part of the democrats was a great cause of defeat.

Mr. R. Z. Linney, who defeated Mr. Bower for congress, says his majority is 3,000 in the 8th district.

The Charlotte Observer of today says editorially: "There is no need to hold back for the official returns from North Carolina nor to withhold the exact truth about the result of the election a moment longer than is necessary to ascertain it. The result has now passed out of the region of doubt if there was ever any doubt about it. We have lost the state and judicial tickets, the legislature and nearly all of our candidates for congress and solicitor. Counties which have never before in their history done so have gone republican. It appears to be the most decisive victory for the republicans that has been won in the state by either party since the war. There is no occasion for concealments; it is a defeat which amounts almost to a rout."

The Richmond Dispatch today says editorially: "Our democratic friends in North Carolina seem to have been caught napping. Years ago we in Virginia had the same experience. But our people have been fairly wide-awake ever since. So it will be hereafter with the North Carolinians."

A Preacher in Trouble.

A committee to hear charges against Rev. Mr. Yarborough, pastor of B street chapel in Charlotte has been appointed by Rev. Dr. Brooks, presiding elder of the Charlotte district. The trial before the committee will be held next week. The specific charge is that Mr. Yarborough tried to lead astray a young female member of his congregation. Mr. Yarborough is a young man and has never yet been through conference. A good deal of feeling has been excited against him in the community and especially among the members of his congregation, the Charlotte News says.

WAKE'S TREASURER;

Mr. L. O. Lougee, Died this Morning.

At 5 o'clock this morning Mr. Louis O. Lougee, for six years Wake's treasurer, died at his home, corner East Davis and South Person streets. He was one of the most popular men in this city and county, and his death is deeply deplored. He was at the polls all day Tuesday and there caught cold. Wednesday morning he was far from well. Thursday he was very sick, and had a severe chill. Pleurisy set in. Last night congestion of the lungs followed.

Mr. Lougee was the son of the late Mr. W. J. Lougee. He was born here and was 47 years of age. He was a practical printer and was for years financial secretary of the Raleigh typographical union. He was a Mason and Odd Fellow, treasurer of the Raleigh Baptist association and of two building and loan associations.

Mr. Lougee was twice married; the first time to Miss Anna Hicks of Raleigh, and six months ago to Miss Katie E. Rogers, of Durham county. He leaves four children.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Baptist tabernacle, of which Mr. Lougee was a deacon. The deacons will be pallbearers. The county officers will attend in a body, as will also the typographical union. The Masons and Odd Fellows will have charge of the funeral.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Monday Evening the Jollity Company and Monday the Minstrels.

The Noss Jollity company appears here next Monday evening at the academy of music. It hardly needs an introduction to the theatergoers as it is so well and favorably known. "The Kodak," the new comedy, as presented is a bright and mirth provoking entertainment. Nothing old but fun of the bright, crisp order is favorably introduced. This is strictly a city organization and "up to date" in everything, each and every member being a special feature. The performance is to be commended for its entire freedom from coarseness and vulgarity which have become altogether too common among comedy organizations of late.

The Georgia colored minstrels appear at the academy Wednesday evening. An exchange says: "Billy Kersands alone is worth the price of admission and James White and the Crescent City quartet get a big share of applause. The first part is filled to the brim with good music, dancing and comicalities. The olio introduces J. J. Wilson, the premier juggler; the four old sports, Moore, Hillman, Vernon and White; Gauze, the female impersonator; the Crescent City quartet, and a cake-walk that is simply too funny to describe."

A & M. College Notes.

The chapel at the college was filled last evening by an audience assembled to hear the annual oratorical contest of the Pullen literary society. The orators were Chas. H. Griffith, Kenansville, subject "The development of the South;" John Howard, Tarboro, subject "Looking Forward;" C. W. Gold, Wilson, subject "Silent Influences;" V. V. Privott, Rocky Hill, subject, "Hostility to Truth" The judges, Rev. Bennett Smedes, Prof. James Dinwiddie and Dr. H. B. Battle, awarded the medal to Mr. Gold.

Appointed Delegates.

Governor Carr today appointed delegates to represent this state at the cotton growers' convention at Montgomery, Alabama. Cotton growers are appointed. The convention will consider the cotton situation and take action for the protection of cotton from illegitimate causes. The delegates are George W. Norwood of Wake, J. W. Myatt of Polenta, M. T. Leach of Raleigh, J. Sol. Reid of Massey's, J. W. McGregor of Lilesville.

Attention, Masons.

A special meeting of William G. Hill lodge, No. 218, A. F. & A. M. will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock to make arrangements for the funeral of our late brother L. O. Lougee. Sister lodges cordially invited to attend.

One result of the election, worth 100 cents in the dollar and 10 per cent additional in two years time, it makes no difference which party wins. One thing is certain it does not effect the standing of stock in the Southern. Democrats, republicans, populists and mugwumps can rest assured that their money and the country is safe if they have stock in the Raleigh branch of the southern. Call on C. C. McDonald.
