TYPE-SETTING MACHINERY.

News of Great Improvements Come From Abroad.

A revolution in type-setting machinery is announced, says London Invention. The machine, which is an English invention, will, it is claimed, increase the speed of composition six-fold. In dealing with ordinary type, it is said to have none of the disadvantages inherent in the machines now on the market for the same purpose, as it affords the usual facilities for correction and alteration of matter. Another machine, which is expected to revolutionize type-setting, is described by M. Mazereau.

According to the inventor, the Rev. Pere Caldoni, a Sicilian Dominican, it can compose 50,900 letters per hour, a task equal to the labor of 36 compositors. The difference in speed, as compared with the existing machines, lies in the fact that instead of each letter being made to fall separately into the composing stick, entire words can be composed in an instant by the simultaneous application of the fingers of both hands. M. Mazereau states that he has himself manipulated the instrument on a small scale with complete success.

Made Him Sleep in the Barn.

DULUTH, Minn., March 26.—Jesse Weidman, an aged and wealthy resident of Hartford, Conn., is convinced that a marriage between May and December is not the correct thing. He is 70 years old, and a short time ago led to the altar Miss Frances Skinner, a young miss of 16. Their happiness lasted only one week, and now Mr. Weidman is suing for a divorce. The wedding was a swell event, for the groom was the wealthiest man in the county, and held mortgages on a vast amount of the farming property that his neighbors occupied.

On Saturday last the whole county was excited by the announcement that all was over between the couple, and that a legal separation would follow. It is alleged that a few days after the ceremony Frances brought a man to the house, made her husband sleep in the barn, and that a plan was formed to force the old man to make over all of his property to the girl.
