Kismet.

Somewhere in the world, some day in the year—
What year? No matter; sometime—
'tis planned,
A word will be spoken for me to hear,
And never another will understand.
Somewhere—and the world is small of girth;
Somewhere—and life is a finger-snap;
However stretches the wide, wide earth;
However the years on long years lap.
If I land I have traversed or land unknown,
Through time grown weary or time blown fast;
There waiteth that wonderful undertone
To strike on my hearing, sometime, somewhere.

The Boston museum of art has received a legacy of $50,000 for the purchase of modern American paintings. Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds, Sims Bros., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the season in which this remedy is held where it has been sold for years and a well known. Mothers have learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures the ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. Hal Bobbitt, Druggist.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they know. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over at my house and said they were so bad that he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured them up in a grade. 50c. bottles for sale by J. DESPERATE FIGHTING.

The British Troops Have Their Hands Full in Northern India.

A British army of 14,000 men, under command of Gen. Low, is capturing the country of Chitral, in northern India. To get into this wild region the troops made a rapid march to the Malakand pass. The advance guard had only gone a little way into the pass when the natives were found swarming behind stone breastworks, which they had erected at every suitable corner. The pass is in many places only wide enough for two bullocks to pass each other. The British worked their way on, step by step, their mountain and machine guns gradually shelling the natives out of their defenses. The natives fought pluckily enough, encouraged by their priests waving flags, but their white garments made them an easy target.

Then the Gordon Highlanders, the Scottish Borderers and the 37th Dogras charged up the hill in the face of a heavy fire. It was a tough job with the bayonet, as the natives fought hand to hand, but when the guides executed a flank movement the day was won and the tribesmen fled, leaving the pass in British hands.

The first brigade went on beyond the pass into Swat, where they soon encountered 5,000 tribesmen blocking the road. Another engagement followed.

The country which the troops have had to traverse is of extraordinary difficulty. Snow-capped mountains of dry brown rock, 15,000 feet high, bare not a green thing on them. The troops of the invaders, commanded as they were from the all but inaccessible slopes, took their lives in their hands, for the protection of flanking parties was almost out of the question. Nor was gun fire all they had to fear.

The mountaineers have raised rock throwing to a science. Their forts are protected by immense collections of rocks, which are sent hurling down the single slopes with terrific force. All night at intervals, if the men dread being surprised, these rocks are kept crashing down. It is wonderful how effective this simple means of defense and offense is.

Strange as it may seem, where nineteenth century troops are concerned, nothing is more terrifying than these falling rocks. The effects are shocking in the extreme.

WHY HE STOPPED HIS SERMON

Preacher Brooks and His Congregation Capture a Thief.

At Jersey City Sunday night, while Rev. Mr. Brooks was preaching, someone rushed into the church and cried out that burglars were in the preacher's house. Mr. Brooks stopped his sermon and left the church without a parting benediction. He was followed by a stampede of the congregation, the male members leading. The women and girls became frightened and tried to prevent their husbands and sweethearts from joining in the chase after the burglar, but in a few minutes the entire congregation, even women and children, was marching at a double-quick rate to the parsonage, Rev. Mr. Brooks at the head of the procession.

By the time the parsonage was reached the crowd had swelled to several hundred. The men surrounded the house so as to prevent the escape of the burglar, while the women and children crowded the street, and with bated breath looked out for developments. The pastor unlocked the front door and several volunteers accompanied him on a tour through the house. They were armed with revolvers and clubs. The burglar was found crouching in the coal-bin in the cellar. He had in his possession three pairs of gloves, a pocketbook with $17 belonging to Mrs. Brooks, the pastor's overcoat and other articles. The rooms showed they had been thoroughly ransacked.

Honorable Ignatius Donnelly

As the victorious champion of the people against the Minnesota Coal Combine, Ignatius Donnelly evinced a robust, practical good sense, rather at variance with the speculative spirit shown in "The Great Cryptogram."

Mr. Donnelly is a man of the most versatile talents; his successes in medical science, at the bar, and in the field of letters, are many and unique. Those familiar with his writings (and who is not?) are always impressed with the readiness with which

He Quotes Authority

To support a proposition. One is thus led to believe that he possesses a remarkably retentive mind. But those who know him say this is a mistaken idea; that his memory is poor, but he is a tireless investigator, and has a well selected library, with reference books of every sort, which enable him to turn at volition to any desired information or reference. The work which he values above all others is THE ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA, of which he possesses two sets—one at his residence and one at his office. He knows that its authority is never questioned anywhere, and is said to have won several cases in court upon evidence taken from Britannica.

In your BRITANNICA note the fine articles on Bacon and Shakespeare, and for your own satisfaction, endeavor to trace in the writings of Shakespeare the alleged cipher of Bacon. Such comparisons are entertaining and instructive. If you do not own THE ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA you had better procure it while the new edition is being sold at introductory prices. Address

THE MORNING HERALD

FOR 1895.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that "The Morning Herald" has recently been enlarged from four to eight pages, and that while the price remains at one cent per copy, or 48 per year for 100 subscribers, each edition contains as much news and more general reading matter than is printed by the Baltimore two-cent dailies. The Telegraphic Service of "The Morning Herald" is unequalled by any other daily paper. Its News Service, the counties is thorough and reliable. Its Market Reports are full, complete and accurate. Its illustrated woman's page is a feature that will not be found in any other Baltimore daily. A verbatim report of the sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage—the celebrated Brooklyn preacher—appears in Monday morning's edition. "The Morning Herald" will continue to be an independent newspaper—fair and impartial in its statements and fearless in the expression of its opinions.

"THE SUNDAY HERALD."

of 24 pages, is the best Sunday paper in Baltimore, and is sold at 3c per copy, or $1.50 for a year.

"THE WEEKLY HERALD"

is the cheapest and best eight-page weekly newspaper published in the United States, the annual subscription being 50c.

A Word to Those who Do Not Believe in Advertising.

If you are in business and want it to be known you should advertise. Advertising pays. Look at the Tuckers. Look at Swindell. Look at Berwanger. Look at Williams & Co. Look at Ball. Look at Miss Maggie Reese. Look at Sherwood. Look at Briggs. Look at Rosenthal. Look at Woolcott. Look at the Lyon Racket. Look at Dugh. Look at the Johnson's. Look at the many others. They believe in printer's ink. Advertise in the Visitor. Stop paying $1.50 a thousand for dodgers. They benefit nothing. The same money will put you a nice card in the Visitor for one week which will be seen by 3,000 people daily.

The Visitor circulates all over Raleigh. There are but few houses here that it does not go to. The Visitor circulates in all portions of Wake county. It goes to 15 postoffices. It reaches the very class of people you are after. You want trade. The Visitor will help you get your trade. Don't hide your light. Let it be seen. Advertise—Advertise in the most popular paper in Raleigh. The Visitor has age, is read daily by hundreds who take no other paper.

To Non-Subscribers.

If you are not already a subscriber send us your address and 25 cts. and try it a month. If you are already a subscriber tell your neighbor about the paper. It's only 25 cents a month. Delivered everywhere in the city. Commence now.
