THAT DEAD HORSE.

Mr. McPheeters Says he was Reburied at Midnight.

Monday the VISITOR gave the facts in the case of the dead horse which was in the limits of the water shed from which Raleigh's water supply comes. What a stir those facts caused everybody in this town knows.

This morning a man came in town and said the horse was still in the same place. The VISITOR at once asked Mr. McPheeters, superintendent of the water works if this were so. Mr. McPheeters said: "Last night about midnight Mr. McMackin and myself and eight convicts dug up that horse, put the carcass in a wagon, hauled it to a field which I think is a mile away, and reburied it at a point which Dr. McKee designated. We found the horse in a hole seven feet deep and there was lime on it. We filled up the hole with dry earth and it is this which caused the statement that the carcass had not yet been removed. The place where the carcass was reburied is not in the water shed. We found the carcass but little decayed and pulled it out with ropes."

People say that Mr. McPheeters made a great mistake in not going to the place and removing the carcass Saturday morning just as soon as he was notified of its presence on the water shed. They also say that Mr. McMackin ought to be prosecuted under the act of 1887 for placing the carcass where he did.

Dr. McKee says the city water is kept remarkably pure and that only three times since the water works were put in operation have any dead animals been found in the water shed. It is quite safe to say that there will not again be such a case as this one, which has angered and annoyed the people here so greatly since Monday, for next time there will be no such unreasonable and unexplainable delay.

It is now stated that as soon as Mr. McPheeters heard of the dead animal's being where it was on Saturday he applied to Dr. Hines, as county superintendent of health, for its removal, and was informed by Dr. Hines that he had no authority to act in the matter and that he would have to apply to Dr. McKee, city superintendent of health, and Mr. McPheeters did this.

THE WEATHER.

The Conditions and the Forecast.

For North Carolina: Fair, slightly cooler tonight.

Local forecast for Raleigh and vicinity: Thunderstorm Thursday afternoon, followed by fair, cooler weather.

Local data for 24 hours ending 8 a. m.: Maximum temperature, 93; minimum temperature, 68; rainfall trace.

The center of low pressure is over the northern lake region, the lowest reported being 29.74 inches at Marquette. The "low" extends over the Ohio valley and central Mississippi valley. The pressure has risen over New England and over the west and northwest. An area of high pressure is apparently central over Nebraska and Kansas. The temperature is slightly higher over the middle states and cooler over the western states. Very slight changes have occurred over the southern states, the temperature remaining nearly stationary. The conditions are favorable for thunderstorms in North Carolina on Thursday. A thunderstorm may be expected Thursday afternoon, followed by a shift of the wind and cooler weather for several days.

Lord Chief Justice Campbell.

As was stated yesterday the distinguished chairman of the Arrington committee drew $99.40. Today he had that warrant cashed by the state treasurer. It was said last night that the lord chief justice would leave on an early train this morning for his beloved Cherokee county. But his lordship did not get off and at 10 o'clock was heard entertaining some of his friends with accounts of his great labors during the session of the legislature. He said: "In Cherokee county people do not drink whiskey, for the water and buttermilk are too good. But here we have to hit the corn juice." Thus said his lordship with an unctuous smile. He had evidently just had some of the juice.

THE CITY DEATH RATE.

A Remarkably Fine Showing is Made.

The report of this city's health department for the fiscal years ending Feb. 28, 1894, and 1895, was issued today. Dr. McKee, president of the board of health, says the report for 1894 shows a death rate for the two races of 19.46 per 1,000. The death rate among the colored race was 24 to the 1,000. That year there were 168 deaths of colored, and of these 26 died of consumption, 8 of pneumonia, 3 of typhoid fever, 15 of intestinal diseases.

There were that year 134 deaths of whites, of which seventeen were of pneumonia, fourteen of consumption, 6 of typhoid fever, 6 of acute dysentery. The 9 deaths of typhoid out of the total of 292 deaths during the year, or a little over 3 per cent is said by Dr. McKee to be below the average. He says: "This low rate is attributable to the careful surveillance exercised over the water supply to the city, and from pumps and wells. Whenever the water from pumps and wells is suspected of being polluted it is examined immediately, and if found contaminated, is condemned and not allowed to be used. Nine people dying out of 15,500, of typhoid fever, is considerably less than 1 to the 1,000."

During the year there were 330 births; 150 white, 180 colored; 28 more births than deaths.

The report for the year ending Feb. 28, 1895 says the total number of deaths was 269, or 23 less than in the year preceding, the rate being 17.76 to 1,000. Of these 127 were white, and 142 colored. Among the whites 15 died of pneumonia, 16 of consumption 18 deaths were of gastro-intestinal disease. Of the colored 21 died of intestinal disease, 16 of tubercular diseases. It is noticeable that not a death is reported from typhoid fever and it is also noticed that this disease is diminishing among the colored people; Dr. McKee thinks the credit for its diminution is due in great part to the colored physicians, who, in making their visits, not only insist upon the carrying out of sanitary rules, but see that they are strictly observed. During the year there were 343 births; 74 more more births than deaths.

In Oakwood cemetery there were 69 interments, in the city cemetery 41, in Mt. Hope 90, elsewhere 60. Of the dead 69 were married, 41 single, 31 widows, 92 children, 9 widowers, 21 not stated. There were 30 stillbirths. Of the dead 231 were attended by a physician. More deaths occur in June than in any other month. Two persons over 90 years died, 15 over 80, 22 over 70. As to the wards the death rate is far heaviest in the southern ones. In these there were 175 deaths, and in the others 94.

DEATH OF MRS. BURWELL.

Her Funeral Services Held this Afternoon.

Mrs. John B. Burwell died late yesterday afternoon at her home, corner North Blount and Peace streets, of paralysis, following locomotor ataxia. She was a lady of remarkable strength of character and unusual intelligence. She was twice married. Her first husband was Mr. Omega Foster of Franklin county, N. C. To them were born two sons—Messrs. Omega H. and Robert P. Foster. Just prior to her marriage to Capt. Burwell she had charge of the primary department at Peace institute. After her marriage she was lady superintendent of the school for several years. Prior to her second marriage she was a member of the Episcopal church. She afterward connected herself with the Presbyterian church. Capt. Burwell being an elder and one of the most prominent members of that church in Raleigh. She was a sister of Armistead Jones, Esq., and came to this city in 1878. Her illness was of over a year's duration. The funeral was held at 10 this afternoon from the Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Eugene Daniel conducting it. The pallbearers were Messrs. B. R. Harding, W. S. Primrose, W. C. Stronach, S. W. Whiting, R. T. Gray, Thos. S. Kennan, V. E. Turner and C. M. Hawkins.

Mr. George W. Grady, formerly an operative in the Raleigh hosiery and yarn mills, has taken a position with G. S. Tucker & Co., furniture dealers.

The city authorities ought at once to require all houses to be numbered. There are scores of unnumbered houses. It is eleven years since the city was numbered. This matter ought to be given attention.

The city reports up to March 1, 1894, are prepared. The reports for the year ending March 1, 1895, are not yet complete. It is hoped that they will be ready by July 1. The balance sheets for both years are to be posted as soon as possible.

It may be and most probably will be several days before the will of the late Mr. R. S. Pullen is probated, if indeed he left a will. It is said that his safe has not yet been opened. His relatives are uncertain whether he made a will or not. From other sources it is learned that about 1887 he made one.

Jake Egerton, colored, is no longer the commodore of the baggage wagon. He declined to pay one half the damages of the breaking of the baggage wagon yesterday. It will be remembered that he carelessly drove the wagon across a track just in front of a car.

During the summer months the prayer meetings on Wednesday evening at Central Methodist church are held in the Sunday school room. At present the pastor is delivering a series of interesting and spiritual talks on the 23-d Psalm. Services continue one hour. Public invited.

A great deal of mail is placed in the box at the union station, so much in fact that a larger box is made necessary. It is at the station, awaiting the pleasure of the railway people to be put in place. It is a big red box a double ender, so the letter carriers can take from one of the doors the letters for Raleigh which are so frequently dropped in the box.

A Fire Today.

At 11 45 o'clock today a fire alarm was sent in from box 15. This the Rescue, the Victor and the hook and ladder answered. The fire was on North Swain street in a small one-story house occupied by Sonnie Jeffreys, colored, and owned by the Moore estate. The fire was caused by an ironing stove. The people in the house tried to put out the fire instead of sending in an alarm, and as a result by the time the firemen got there the fire had good headway. The rafters were burned and the roof fell in. The damage is perhaps $50.
