Leach, on behalf of the Assistant Marshals presented Chief Marshal Drewry with a handsome gold watch. Chief Marshal Drewry's beautiful sash was presented to the no less lovely Miss Lizzie Morehead, of Durham, and some of the most beautiful women in the State wore the regalia of the assistant marshals.

The Chief Marshal also presented to each of the lady maids-of-honor to the marshals a beautifully designed hatpin, with these words engraved thereon: "Marshals' Ball, State Fair, 1898." After this, probably the most enjoyable period of the evening, dancing proper began and continued until the wee sma' hours of this morning, indulged in by over an hundred of Raleigh's most charming society people and not a few from other towns of the State and other States.

The regalia worn by Chief Marshal Drewry was the most beautiful ever seen in Raleigh if not in the State. The regalia was designed and made to order by Messrs. Sherwood Higgs & Co.

FATALLY INJURED.

A Negro Brakeman Struck by a Bridge Today.

The negro's name is William Edwards, and his home is said to be in Wake county. He was a brakeman on freight train No. 1, and it seems that he was struck in the forehead by a bridge under which the train was passing.

He arrived from Havana with the distillate prospect for the negro's recovery.

Less than two weeks ago a brakeman named Marsh was struck by a bridge in the same way. He was brought here and died in about three days.

A BEAUTIFUL PICTURE.

Among the many beautiful living pictures presented by the Wilbur Opera Company, one particularly received unbounded admiration and warm applause. It was entitled "Our Heroes," in which one of the handsome chorus ladies represented Columbia standing beside a granite monument upon which were engraved the first heroes of the Spanish-American war, at the head of which was the name WORTH BAGLEY, and the six seamen whose lives were sacrificed at Carleton upon the opredo boat Winslow. It was a beautiful picture, admirably designed and full of meaning to the audience, many of whom were the personal friends of the lamented Bagley.

THE PERUCHI-BELDENI CO.

Tonight this exceedingly popular repertoire company will close a week's engagement at Metropolitan Opera House. The company has presented first-class bills each night, opening with "A Western Judge," and closing tonight with "A Black Mark." This is an exceptionally strong company, every name in the casts are fine artists of the profession. Mr. James G. Morton the leading gentleman and Miss Elsie Graham leading lady have won a host of admirers during their stay in Raleigh, both on and off the stage. Mr. Thos. P. Jackson, while a great actor, was at home in Raleigh, for he is a Raleigh boy. The Carleton Sisters, soprano and mezzo soprano, are by Raleigh talent. The Carleton Sisters, in character as specialists are great, they are two charming little ladies and well merit the hearty applause they have received. The whole company are good, but for real downright side-splitting comicality Chelso D. Peruchi, the proprietor and manager is a whole night's entertainment by himself. Mrs. Peruchi, who just recovered from serious illness did not appear in Raleigh, though she is here. She is a pleasant, charming lady, and is an important character in many of the best plays this company present. The company go from here to Durham, to whose good people the Times-Visitor commends them.

The Wilbur Opera Company. This pleasant, popular and entertaining organization presented the great opera "Carmen" at the Academy of Music last night to another crowded house. This afternoon was given a matinee for ladies and children in which was presented "La Mascotte." Tonight the opera will be the "Two Yagabonds," the crowning feature of the week's engagement. Last night in "Carmen," Miss Susie Kirwin was at her very best, and if possible added new jewels to her already sparkling crown of great success. Mr. Harold Gordon, Mr. E. A. Clark, Mr. C. A. Fuller and Mr. George Muzzy who have appeared each night were as bright as usual. Mr. J. C. Harvey did not have a chance last night to turn himself loose, though he was in the cast and made fun. In "Carmen" Miss Vera Belmont made her first appearance in the cast. She is a charming, and shows that she should more frequently be added in special character work. The costuming last night was grand. The chorus was at its very best. The Wilbur Pictures were grand and the whole show a success. Tonight closes the weeks engagement and none will regret it so much as the people of Raleigh who wish they could keep Miss Kirwin and the Wilbur Company here all the time, and when in the future they may choose to visit the City of Oaks they may be assured of full houses.

MR. THOS. R. JACKSON.

With the Peruchi-Beldeni Company playing this week at Metropolitan Opera House is Mr. Thos. P. Jackson, a Raleigh boy. He is the son of the late W. E. V. Jackson, who for a number of years lived in Raleigh and conducted the large livery, sale and exchange stables on Wilmington street. Mr. Jackson's many friends, who knew him as a boy welcome him to Raleigh in the role of an artist in the profession he has chosen, and wish him unbounded success wherever he goes. Raleigh boys will succeed in whatever field they enter.

Mr. A. D. Hays, of Oxford is in the city.

ODD FELLOW'S ITENS

Picked Up Here and There.

There were quite a goodly number in the city during this week.

One of our callers, whom we were glad to see, was Bro. C. H. Doughty, now of Danville, Va., formerly of Greensboro, N. C.

We confidently expected to have some of the residents at the Orphan Home with us this week but were disappointed.

We deeply sympathize with Bro. J. M. Fletcher, of East Bend Lodge, who recently came here with his family; his little daughter has been, and is yet, seriously ill.

Our Grand Secretary was made to feel happy the other day by receiving an express package, which upon being opened, was found to contain a Past Grand Master's Jewel, a present from a friend in another State.

Bro. L. C. Hensell, president of the Fraternity Publishing Co., of Boston, Mass., in a private letter, acknowledging the receipt of a copy of the last proceedings of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina says to the Grand Secretary: "I was particularly pleased with the splendid acknowledgment given you by the Grand Master on page 467."

If ever there was a time when men ought to remember their obligations it is now. The political excitement is becoming so intense that fears are entertained for the peace and safety of the country. This is to be deplored, and we beg of every man who has ever taken an obligation to be fraternal, at any time or anywhere, to remember it now and be faithful to it. Do not be led off by the excitement of the hour into anything for which you may feel sorry in the future. Think before you announce that the prospects for the speak.

Our Grand Secretary, who has been laboring in season and out of season, for the upbuilding of Odd Fellowship in North Carolina for very nearly a quarter of a century, is active and busily engaged on the "bit" under the present condition of affairs. This need not surprise any one who will give the matter a thought. He had not a few weeks ago, continued growth and prosperity of the Order was much better than they had been for several years. The general apathy was fast being overcome and new life and prosperity was fast taking its place. But now the political excitement seems to have scattered all his bright hopes to the four winds of the earth.

Is it to be wondered at that he is restive?

An item reaches us from Clayton Lodge that certainly is worth recording. Not long since a young man from a distance accepted a situation in Clayton and was doing well. He was taken sick and was very ill, but being a stranger had very little attention. A member of Clayton Lodge found it out and called the attention of the Lodge to it. They immediately went to his aid, and nursed him back to health, or fear enough to be sent to his home. He was not a member of any society, but he was human and Odd Fellowship found him. The members of Clayton Lodge have learned well the sublime lessons of humanity as taught by the Order, and are putting these lessons into practice. It is easy now to tell whom an "neighbor" to the suffering young man. All hail to Clayton's Odd Fellowship; may it inspire others to "go and do thou likewise."

In reading an address delivered by Rev. B. H. Hart, of Jersey Shore, who was one of the speakers at the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, we were forcibly struck with some of his reasons for being an Odd Fellow. His subject was "Why I am an Odd Fellow." He starts out by saying, "to give you an my reasons for being an Odd Fellow would be impossible. I therefore reduce the whole to three simple statements:

First. Because I believe in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He fully elaborates this idea and says: "After an experience of ten years in Odd Fellowship, and twelve years in the Gospel ministry, I want to assert that I have reached men in my associations in the Lodge, and brought them to an understanding of their relations to God, and who are today active workers in the Christian church, whom I never could have reached in any other way." His third reason was: "I believe in Odd Fellowship because it affords me the best opportunity for the mutual and unselfish assistance of the unfortunate."

Among other burning words he said: "But in connection with the last-named reason I have one eternal, unswerving reason for my interest in the work of an Odd Fellow's Lodge. May my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth should I ever find it in my heart to speak ill of her. Twenty-seven years ago I walked up to see my father die. He had been sick alone while I can never forget the tenderness, the love, and concern manifested by his brother Odd Fellows in performing the last sad functions of their office. I was but a little boy of seven years, but I can see them now as they stood by the side of his open grave. I can hear the words they read from the ritual. I still hear the ode they sang—all meaningless to me then, but now with a world of revelation." And gives a full description of their kindly offices to his widowed mother with six orphan children. He found an asylum in an Odd Fellow's orphan home.

DIVORCE DECIDED.

By Telegraph to the Times-Visitor. BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—The sensational divorce trial of Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Cruikshank, she naming a member of E. Lyman Abbott's choir and he naming her lawyer as correspondents was decided today. The jury was out thirty-six hours and returned a verdict which exonerated both parties.

JOHN NICHOLS, Sec.

AN ELEPHANT STORY.

Forepaugh and Sells Brothers have an elephant with a most remarkable and "picturesque" past. He is known now as Othello and became of the eight Philadelphia-named pachyderms that have created such a future by their quadrille-dancing specialty in the big "big show." Othello's companions in the novel Philadelphia performance are John, Joseph, Richard III, Hamlet, Cleopatra, Rosalind, Ophelia and Desdemona.

As the "Light of Asia" the sacred white elephant of Siam, surrounded by a group of university-trained Hindu priests, Othello was at once the dominant feature of the Forepaugh show for the season of '94. Thousands of dollars were spent in advertising the animal. Barnum and Bailey had a white elephant that season, and a money war, indeed, was waged by the great circus chieftains—Brother Forepaugh against Brother Barnum and Bailey.

At the close of the season of '94 the white elephant "Othello" being played out, it became necessary to dispose of the white elephant. Immediately after the circus went into winter quarters at Philadelphia in November, the Forepaugh people made a pathetic announcement to the effect that the "Light of Asia" had succumbed to the dreaded destroyer, pneumonia, and had quietly "faded away" one Sunday night.

The knowing ones about the Forepaugh camp, however, assert that the white elephant "Othello" was not a victim of pneumonia, but that he had a cessation of dying. At all times the first white elephant to appear in his reappearance with the Forepaugh show in '95 as the pathetic pachyderm "John L. Sullivan." He had been taught to box with his trainer, big, black "Eph" Thompson. A boxing glove was attached to the end of the animal's trunk, and a really clever, fast and furious set-to was furnished by the huge Senegambian and his four-legged protegee.

"John L." had a brilliant career as an elephantine apostle of the manly art until, finally, after a career of four years he became too big and strong for a human antagonist to cope with. He was then made a member of the quadrille-dancing contingent and received the cognomen of "Othello." He is now twenty-one years old and enjoys the distinction of being the best advertised elephant in the world. Barnum and Bailey's sacred pachyderm was burned to death in the Bridgeport fire of '87.

WHAT THE WEATHER MAN SAYS.

For Raleigh and vicinity, showers tonight and Sunday.

A second moderate storm is central over Wisconsin, with considerable areas of high barometer on each side of it. The weather this morning is clear only on the Rocky mountain slopes and in the lower Mississippi valley slightly higher this morning except in the extreme northwest.

MAYOR'S COURT.

Several Offenders Against the Law Punished.

The Mayor's court has been a very tame affair during this festive week. However, Mayor pro tem Powell today besides a few simple drunks who were dismissed, fined Bud Morgan, colored, for cursing on the street $5 and cost, and made Will Hester and Trim Walton pay $3 and $1 and costs, respectively, for swearing in a restaurant.

The condition of Mr. E. G. Rogers 412 South Blount street is very critical. Worse today than at any time during his long sickness. Any kindness shown him by his friends will be greatly appreciated.
