SUFFRAGE AMENDMENTS PASSED THE SENATE

PUBLIC PRINTING BILL.

The House Refused to Protect Organized Labor and Cut the Committee's Printing Bill to Pieces—Bureau of Labor Statistics and Printing Established.

Bill Passed to Give Wake Two Additional County Commissioners—Mecklenburg Dispensary Bill Passed the House

SENATE.

The Senate met at 10 o'clock, and prayer was offered by Rev. Eugene Daniel.

Bills introduced: By Cooke, to work convicts on roads in Franklin county. Bills passed 3rd reading: To amend charter of Gastonia; to incorporate N. and S. Carolina Railway; to incorporate Hoffman; to fund indebtedness of Murfreesboro township; to incorporate the Black Diamond Railroad Company; to incorporate the Ohio River and Franklin Railway; to amend charter of Winston; to amend charter of Goldsboro.

The bill to ratify the Madison county bond issue of 1887 was after discussion, made special order for Monday.

The time for the special order for the consideration of the Constitutional amendment had now arrived.

Senator Goodwin offered an amendment to the constitutional amendment, that should the amendment be adopted by popular vote, then all persons who may thereby be deprived of the right of suffrage shall be exempt from all civil and military duties and from poll-tax. The roll call vote on the amendment of Goodwin's good eyes 6, noes 42, and it was therefore lost.

Senator Fuller spoke against the amendment. He said the Senators were the brainiest men in the State—too great to stubble their consciences by an unjust act. The conditions here did not resemble those in South Carolina and Louisiana. The Democratic party only lost power during the past four years because it failed to fulfill its pledges. Special privileges to none; fairness to all—that should be the white man's motto. The negro is made the object of attack, the innocent victim of enmity when he is merely the harmless tool in the hands of those who work the great harm. He believed the amendment unconstitutional, apart from its being impracticable and impolitic from an economic standpoint. Fuller's speech was heavily interspersed with quotations, ranging from Garfield's addresses to a rendition of a passage from Victor Hugo, but his address was closely listened to. He closed his argument by a glowing eulogy of the Anglo-Saxon and a protest that the cry of "negro, negro" was even as Aesop made his shepherd lad shriek "wolf, wolf."

Senator Campbell said that during the last campaign the Democrats in his county (Alexander) had pledged themselves against them, that if they had done otherwise they could not have carried a corporal's guard. If the great Voters were here he would oppose the measure, and may do so here but Campbell is a poor cat his vote for disfranchising anyone.

Senator Travis thought it unwise to submit the amendment to the people at this time, but he yielded his words to those of his friends and voted aye.

Senator Hicks did not think his section needed the amendment, but for the best interests of his country voted aye.

Senator Travis was opposed to the bill, and voted no.

Senator McInyre thought the abstract principle of disfranchisement was wrong, but he knew the negro and the evils of the last "red shirt" campaign, and voted aye.

Sensors Robinson and Hicks made short earnest speeches and voted aye.

Senator Wilson said, "My name is the last on the roll and the last on the roll of honor. 'Tis the proudest moment of my life, and I vote aye."

Harris, Populist, from Northampton, voted aye, and was loudly applauded. The vote stood 42 ayes and 6 noes, those voting in the negative being Campbell, Crisp, Franks, Fuller, Goodwin and Newsum.

The chair then announced that the amendment had passed by three-fourths majority and the bill would now be enrolled for ratification.

Senate then adjourned.

HOUSE.

The House met at 10 o'clock and Rev. J. W. Lee offered prayer. Bills introduced: By Patterson, of Caldwell, to prohibit the killing of deer in Caldwell; also to allow Caldwell to build a jail. By Currie, of Moore, to change line between Oakland and Cape Fear townships in Chatham. By Leak, to incorporate Bank of Wadesboro. By Tharp, to regulate liquor licenses in North Wilkesboro. By Leak, to prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons by soldiers. By Wilson, to amend the charter of Brevard. By Kountze, to amend chapter 194, acts 1883, as to New Hanover and Pender, regarding ferry over North-east river; also to amend section 194 of the Code, in regard to the refusal of railways to receive and forward freight. By Council, to exempt bids of floatable and other navigable streams from entry. By Robinson, to provide for working Cumberland's roads by taxation. By Redding, to charter the Farmers' Bank of Randolph. By McIntosh, to amend the law regarding hunting of birds in Alexander. By Harrisell, to allow Concord to issue bonds; to amend Concord's charter; to amend the charter of the Concord graded school. By Welch, to allow Edenton to build a bridge. By Boushall, to allow Wake county to have 2 additional county commissioners under a suspension of the rules this passed. Boushall presented petitions for a reformatory with 1,100 signatures.

Bills passed to incorporate the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company of Winston, with capital not to exceed $12,000,000; to incorporate the Presbyterian church at Yanceyville.

PUBLIC PRINTING.

At 10 o'clock the House took up as a special order the public printing bill. Thompson, of Onslow, offered an amendment reducing the cost of binding, which Hoey, who was in charge of the bill accepted. Justice, of McDowell, offered an amendment to give the printing to the lowest bidder in North Carolina. Boushall opposed this amendment and defended the bill, saying that the experiment of letting printing to the lowest bidder had proved a failure. He said the bill reduced the price as fixed by the Code, because the firm a year of seven times the printing had cost the State more than $200,000 more than under Democratic rule. Justice said that all over the State, Justice said he was for Edwards and Boushall. He asked Boushall if the latter did not have a favorite. Boushall said he did. Justice said he had none. Boushall said he was not making it the business of skilled labor and that he had proof of it in all his examinations in the State against the unfair treatment of organized labor. Boushall said he had in mind a Raleigh man who would do the work right. Stevens said that while preference ought to be given to a North Carolinian, yet he did not want to bind it down to North Carolina. Boushall asked Stevens if he was willing to go outside the State. Stevens replied yes if the people of North Carolina said so, and that he was speaking in the interest of the tax payers. He was in favor of disorganized rather than organized labor, and opposed paying a bonus to organized labor. He favored Justice's amendment and wanted to have another amendment so the work should be done by the cheapest bidder no matter whether in the State or out of it. Council said that he was told that the printing bill of 1893 gave a lower rate than under the present bill. He said in 1893 binding cost 17 cents per volume and under the bill under discussion 23 cents. He urged the adoption of Justice's amendment. Hoey said in support of the bill that the committee did not desire to make a contract. Council said the legislature should not entangle itself in any controversy as to who should have the public printing. Justice had his amendment again read, which provides that the cost of freight, &c., is to be taken into consideration, and that the printing is to be done by the man or firm which delivers it here in Raleigh at the lowest price. Boushall said he spoke for skilled labor which would not sell itself at less than it was worth. Justice said the bill provided for paying 16 2-3 percent more than was necessary. He said the taxpayers were not interested in paying a fancy price for organized labor. Justice said his amendment put the burden upon the committee. Winston offered an amendment to Justice's amendment adding that in every contract regard is to be had to the character of the work and the quality of the material in awarding the public printing, and in passing on the bidder's responsibility. Justice accepted this. Foushee said that H. E. Soaman, practical printer, of Durham, assured him that the giving of the public printing to the lowest bidder was a delusion and a snare and that there ought to be a public printer.

Members had been distributed by Nash Bros., of Goldsboro, offering to do the printing for 16 2-3 per cent less than under the bill. There were several allusions to this in the speeches. Patterson wanted to know whether Justice's amendment confined the bidders to North Carolina. Justice said he thought the bill provided for that and called on Hoey to say. Council said the bill was silent as to that matter. Justice sent up an amendment requiring that the work be done in the State. Hoey told the committee's idea was to get the printing done at the lowest possible figure. Boushall asked if Nash Bros. had come before the committee. Hoey said yes. He said that the printing ought to be done in the State. He said that the committee had deemed it best not to award the contract to Nash Bros. He said it was following a Democratic precedent to decline to award the printing to the lowest bidder. He declared that there was no "bonus" in the bill; that the rate was lower than in any other State and lower than any this State has ever had. He asked Justice how the committee could tell what was the lowest responsible bidder, and said the committee could not ascertain who was responsible. He said the purpose was that the ransom should pass upon the person who was to have the contract, as to responsibility, &c. He protested upon imposing this burden upon the committee.

Justice demanded the ayes and noes upon his amendment, that the work should be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, and he confined to North Carolina. The amendment was adopted, yeas 81, noes 18. The bill as thus amended passed its readings.

LABOR STATISTICS.

The next bill taken up was the one to establish a bureau of labor and printing, under the charge of a commissioner, with an assistant, who is a practical printer. This was a pendant to the bill just disposed of. The Democratic caucus will select the commissioner (with $1,500 salary) and the assistant (salary $900). Actual traveling expenses are allowed, in the absence of statistics, &c. William, of Fredricksford an amendment, which was adopted, providing the salaries to $1,200 and $700 respectively. One man offered an amendment striking out the provision allowing the employment of an assistant collector statistics. He said the bill carried $1,500 for expenses. His amendment was adopted. He then made a motion to reduce the $1,500 appropriation to $200. This was adopted, which offered an amendment providing for the establishment of 1901 by the people of the country, yeas 119, noes 141, amendment was adopted. It also gave the way from the general fund of making the report. The bill passed.

On motion of Council, the bill was made special order for Wednesday. The bill was made special order for Wednesday.

stoner, but not the placing of that duty upon the railway commission. Carroll wanted delay so that the caucus could discuss the matter. The Speaker said he did not know of any railway commission bill in the House. Finally the bill was made special order for Monday at noon.

By leave Boushall introduced bills to allow the N. C. Investment Co. and the Carolina Warehouse Company further time to organize.

LOCAL OPTION.

Bill was taken up to allow the holding of local option elections in towns and counties at any time of the year, but not oftener than once in two years and not in the year in which a general election is held. Robinson opposed the bill, saying a referendum against it was going over State starting up this matter. He said local prohibition was a humbug. Carroll said that this bill had been before the Senate and that Senator Glum had withdrawn it. Now the committee had amended it so as to make it satisfactory. He said prohibition was conducive to morality. Amendments were sent in exempting Transylvania, and that no election be held in Person until after 1901. The bill was referred to the Finance Committee, excepting Transylvania, Guilford, Washington, Edgecombe, Polk and Rowan. At this stage Carroll asked Council to withdraw the bill. It met therefore the same fate as in the Senate.

Bills passed to establish a dispensary at Clayton, to allow Tarboro to establish water works and sewerage; also bill to allow it to establish electric lights ($30,000 for the former and $10,000 for the latter). Gilliam was asked if this matter was now in litigation. Speaker Council, calling Council to the chair, said he could not see how the House take cognizance of any trouble between the town of Tarboro and the contractors. Council said the contract could not be carried into effect because it had never been submitted to the people.

Bill to give Mecklenburg a dispensary was taken up with a unanimously favorable report. Ransom said he favored the bill and hoped the House would unanimously pass the bill. Clarkson said he heartily concurred in what Ransom said and that a majority of 200 of the white citizens of Mecklenburg demanded the passage of the bill. Stevens said he doubted the wisdom of the measure, particularly at this time, but he deferred to the wishes of the people of Mecklenburg. The bill passed 1st and 3rd readings by a unanimous vote.

FAIR AND WARM SUNDAY.

The forecast of the weather bureau for Raleigh and vicinity says: Threatening winter tonight, with probably very light showers. Fair and warmer Sunday.

The storm persists north of the Lake region and the area of cloudy threatening weather extends throughout the entire Mississippi valley and eastward. Rain is falling this morning as far south as Florida and, in the interior, up to the Lake region. The showers have been slight and are probably chiefly caused by the cooling of moist air in the cold, snow covered ground.

Fair, cooler weather prevails west of the Mississippi with a moderately high barometer. The temperature has risen slightly, reading 20 above zero at Memphis.
