CENSURE OF GEN. MILES.

By direction of the President, who approves the findings, Acting Secretary of War McKeljohn Sunday made public the report of the military court appointed to investigate the charges made by Major-General Miles, commanding the army, that the beef supplied to the army during the war with Spain was unfit for the use of the troops.

The court finds that General Miles' allegations that the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals were not established; that his allegations concerning the canned fresh or canned roast beef were sustained as to its unsuitability for food as used on the transports and as a long-continued field ration.

General Miles is censured for "error" in failing to promptly notify the Secretary of War when he first formed the opinion that the food was unfit. General Eagan, formerly commissary general, is censured for too extensive purchases of the canned beef as an entree ration. Colonel Maus, of General Miles' staff, is also censured.

The court finds that the packers were not at fault; that the meats supplied to the army were of the same quality as those supplied to the trade generally, and recommends that no further proceedings be taken in the premises.

From this report it appears that Gen. Miles was correct in his view that the beef was unfit for a continuous diet, but he was wrong in his conclusions as to why it was not wholesome and he also committed an error in not "kicking" when he swallowed the first dose of the nauseating diet. Indeed it seems to us that the findings of the court are correct on this point for if the food made the soldiers sick as Gen. Miles charges, then it was certainly as little as he could have done to notify the commissary general of the fact. The only thing suspicious about the report to us is that it jumps on old Eagan for buying too much of the beef. Well if Miles did not complain Eagan evidently thought that he was feeding him on the fat of the land and just continued to pile up the orders for this stuff, which Miles afterwards called "embalmed beef." The most refreshing thing about the report is that the whole affair ends now.

CONFEDERATES.

Today the Confederate veterans from all over the southland gather at Charleston to participate in the annual reunion. Year by year their ranks are growing thinner and as the once mighty host diminishes to a mere handful, these reunions grow all the more sacred. The presence of the United States cruiser Raleigh at Charleston this week, during the Confederate Veterans Reunion, is one of the visible evidences of the fading away of sectional differences in this country, and the government at Washington is greatly to be commended for honoring the occasion in this manner. It is perhaps the most conspicuous act of this sort since the civil war.

But while the veterans of the sixties gather at Charleston the noble women at home, as in the days that tried their souls and tested their patriotism, are not unmindful of the blessed right which is their, as the guardians of the hallowed clay which wraps the mortal remains of the most glorious soldiers the world ever saw. So today the ladies of the memorial association strew the graves of the dear departed with the offerings of spring and, while they drop a tear for their loss and for the soldiers' hardships, they offer a prayer of thanksgiving to God for such examples of heroism.

It is regretted that a memorial exercises could not be held today but nothing could prevent some of the faithful women from fulfilling their duty of love.

During the next three years the government will build a mammoth printing office in Washington, which will cost $2,000,000 and will be the most complete printing establishment in the world.

THIS PREACHER A FIGHTER.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 6.—Rev. Warren H. Wilson is pastor of the Baptist church of Pawling, Dutchess county. Pawling has gone no license for several years, and all the liquor dealers have been driven out of business. The Pawling Club, however, flourishes, and prominent men belong to it.

Two weeks ago he characterized the club as a "rum hole where grand jurors are selected to sit in excise cases." A few weeks ago while the minister addressed the law and Order League at Quaker Hill his horse was taken from the shed, its mane and tail cut off and the wagon scratched and damaged. Borrowing a conveyance Rev. Mr. Wilson started to drive home. In a lonely place, ten or twelve masked men sprang from the bushes. They remained that he leave town.

"I wards," cried the minister, "seizing his whip and leaping out of the wagon. 'I'm not afraid of the whole pack of you.'" He struck out with his whip and his assailants fled.

SALE OF A CONFEDERATE HOME
At Atlanta, Ga., Tuesday last, the Confederate Soldiers' Home was sold at public outcry, and was bought for $8,000 by Joel Hurt. The bidding was light and there was only one other who made a proffer for the property. The price paid was a disappointment, not only to the trustees, but to the large number of veterans and citizens who were present to learn what price the home would bring. In the tract of land there is about 119 1/3 acres, and the handsome building of seventy-five rooms, which has never been occupied. The result of the sale will be reported to the court in the next few days, and Judge Lumpkin will take official action. It is thought he will refuse to confirm the sale.
