STERNBERG'S VIEW

Predicts the Fever will Extend Beyond Phoebus

OUARENTINE STRINGENT

Mail Communication Between Norfolk and Newport News and Old Point Goes via Pichmond.

Washington, Aug. 2.-Surgeon General Sternberg predicts that yellow fever will extend beyond Phoebus, but he is in doubt whether it will reach Norfolk and the Northern cities.

Some difficulty is found in removing the troops from Fortress Monroe. None of the steamship companies will take them and just now no government transports are available.

Norfolk threatens to quarantine the Pennsylvani boat five days if she is used to carry troops from Fortress Monroe to Cape Charles.

The War Department says that the request of Governor Tyler of Virginia that enough troops will be left at Fortress Monroe to act as a quarantine guard cannot be granted, there being no authority to use troops for that pura

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 2.-No yellow fever cases and no suspicious cases cases have been discovered outside of the soldiers home and the village of Phosbus, which surrounds the home.

Exodus from this city continues, boats and trains are crowded with refugees. All sorts of rumors of fever points, other than Hampton, are in circulation, but are absolutely foundationless.

The quarantine against Hampton, Old Point and Newport News is stricter than ever. The mails now come via Hichmond.

BATHING SUIT TOO LOUD

Fair Maiden Startled the Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31.-When the history of the season is written and the annals of summer are told, let the name of a life guard be heralded there in letters of purest gold! Not for saying a life from the ocean, a task worse than this he had-it was asking a woman to leave the beach because she was loudly clad!

This life guard was indeed a here He has plunged through the surf many times and fished half drowned people out and thought nothing of it. But when, in obedience to the Mayor's recent edict that a too conspicuously loud bathing costume would not be allowed on the beach, he felt constrained to approach a feminine promenader this morning, his knees smote together; he turned pale under the brown of his tan: and this life saver, this man who has shown that he does not fear death, actually stammered. The Woman in the case made her appearance for the first time this season, too, at about 11 o'clock, when the beach was crowded. Her bathing suit was decolette at the top, even as a ball room gown, narrow straps passing over very white shoulders. She was blonde and she was plump, and her nother members were encased in black. openwork lisle thread as far as half way to the hips, where the skirt began, And the skirt, it was transparent; and the crowd in the wake of this vision, it was large; and the life guard, perforce, stepped up and said: "Excuse me, miss, but orders are that these sort of suits don't go. Just please, as a favor, you know, sort of slide up to the bath house, and-and, eh-that is j-just piece it out a little, won't you?" "Pah! Trash!" said the vision-but she "slid." Then the crowd got back to the surf, and enjoyed the fine weather and the warm bathing, while the life guard sat down and fanned himself.

DISEASE CAN'T EXIST HERE

No Danger of Yellow Fever Coming to Raleigh-Mr. John Brown Makes a Practical Suggestion for Refugees.

The outbreak of yellow fever at Hampton did not cause the slightest scare in Raleigh and even should the disease break out in Norfolk there would be no necessity for Raleigh establishing a quarantine against Norfolk. As Col. F. A. Olds said this morning: "Raleigh is not in the danger district, as yellow fever simply cannot exist here. This was proven years ago, when there were enidemics at Norfolk and Wilmington. Many scores of persons refuged here and there were no deaths. This highrolling country offers no foothold for the fever."

If no cases appeared here in 1855 when the epidemic swept Norfolk and Wilmington there is no danger of the disease ever making its appearance in this Parties who came in this morning and last evening from Norfolk and vicinity state that people are leaving by the thousands. The hotels and resorts at Virginia Beach and Ocean View are almost deserted.

A gentleman said today, "The Seaboard Air Line and Southern Railway have about all the passenger traffic not cumping within two and a half miles of Norfolk and many persons bound for Washington, Baltimore and other points are coming as far south as Weldon in order to take trains for their homes." Science has made such gigantic strides in restraining the disease and quarantine regulations have been so perfected that that there is a general belief that the disease will be confined within the Soldiers' Home at Hampton and that it certainly will not spread to Norfolk and Portsmouth. What the people who are leaving Norfolk now fear is no so much vellow fever as being quarantined there. Mr. John W. Brown takes a very philosophical view of the situation, as he does on all other public questions, He thus soliloquized to a reporter this morning, "Well, I hear that everybody is leaving Ocean View and Virginia Rough and those fellows gunning there are about broke up.

"This scare will ruin both resorts for the rest of this senson and will hurt them for several years to come. However, the people are fortunate in that Mr. Ellis is ready to open his hotel at Fuquay Springs and all who leave Old Point Comfort, Virginia Beach and Ocean View can now find a delightful resort at Fuonay, President Mills should but on a special Saturday rate to carry down the crowds to spent Sundays."

Revival of the Plan to Connect at Georgetown. Richmond, Va., July 31 .- A conference was held between Messrs. John Skelton Williams, president, and E. St. John, vice-president of the Seaboard Air Line, and Capt. Joseph Willard in Portsmouth. Iti is understood that it was in relation o the construction of the proposed line to connect that road with the Baltimore and Ohio, above Georgetown D. C. This connecting line will probably start from or near Quantico and pass through Fairfax Court House, following the route surveyed and adopted by the Baltimore and Ohio some years ago. This plan was decided upon some time ago and a part of the connecting link was built and the rest surveyed. The Baltimore and Ohio obtained the charter of the Washington and Cumberland road. which along the banks of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal gave them a line all the way through Geogetown to Rock Creek. The purchase of the canal by the railroad would facilitate the plan to have a freigh depot in Georgetown. It is said that heretofore there has been trouble in getting a bill through Congress to permit the railroad to cross the Washington aqueduct, but if that difficulty did exist it probably does no longer, This is an important movement and if accomplished will mean a great deal. / Faro Jim was deputed by the other gamblers of Pansy Gulch to compose the inscription to go on the tombstone of a departed member of the fraternity. It was brief, to the point, and read as follows: "He done his damdest. Angels could do no more."
