BERTILLION'S FOLLY

Three Hours Trying to Show Dreyfus Wrote Bordereaux

THE AUDIENCE ROARED

Took Five Men to Bring in Bertillion's Charts—Rowland Strong on the Stand—de Ciam Unable to Attend.

Reno, Aug. 25.—De Ciam did not testify at Dreyfus court martial. The certificates of two doctors were presented stating that it was impossible for him to appear.

Labori wished for two well known doctors to examine his condition. Jonast refused this.

Rowland Strong, the Paris correspondent of the London Observer, testified that he paid twenty-five hundred dollars for Esterhazy's confession.

Mr. Gobert, a handwriting expert, swore that Esterhazy, not Dreyfus, wrote the bordereaux.

Bertillion, an expert, took three hours in trying to explain his system for infallibly determining that Dreyfus wrote the bordereaux, but he failed to make it clear to anybody. He then undertook to make a copy after his rules. The result caused Jonast to shrug his shoulders. Bertillion apologized for his failure, and said that he was badly placed.

Bertillion's paraphernalia was very portentous. The audience roared as a sergeant and four soldiers staggered in with his diagrams, maps, charts and satchels.

Correspondent Strong swore that Esterhazy confessed to him that he wrote the bordereaux.

A MOUNTAIN NO BARRIER.

Lovers, Pursued by Armed Relatives. Drive 46 Miles. After an all-night drive of 46 miles over the Raccoon Mountains from Guntersville, Ala., pursued by father and brothers, James H. Cryer and Miss Willie Roden, of that town, arrived in Chattanooga and were married in haste. The girl is but 16 years old and pretty. On account of her youth her parents objected to her marriage. After attending church last night the couple eloped, starting for Chattanooga in a buggy. Riding all night, they arrived at noon. Two miles out of town their buggy broke down and the couple walked through the dusty roads to Chattanooga.

After their departure from Guntersville the father and brothers of the bride started on horseback to overtake the couple. They reached here this afternoon armed with shotguns, but the couple had married and returned home.

It is said that 500 hands are wanted by the Seaboard Air Line to work on the Ridgeway branch of this system. Work is being pushed on this connecting link very rapidly.
