in Wake count Stokes Crump is perhaps the most docile. He is now laboring in Mr. McMackin's road improvement gang where most of his time is spent. Yesterday he being a trusty, was sent to Raleigh to get some medicine he fell in with friends who administered two doses of fire water. This was sufficient for Stokes and when he started back he dropped the medicine and broke it. His condition rendered pream bulation impossible so he accepted a lift in a wagon. He soon feel asleep and the driver forgot to put him out at the camp but carried him miles beyond. When Stokes same to himself he beat a hasty retreat for the camp and with tears in his eyes begged forgiveness.

With Fatal Results to a Fice.

Col. Tobias Marshall killed the first dog since the tax for 1899 became due to-day. The ownership of this unfortunate lop-eared fice was disputed, both of his alleged master indignantly denying that they possessed the canine. Col. Marshall, with his usual wisdom, sought to settle the question in truly Solomonian style and as neither master interferred with the execution of the threatened calamity the crack of a pistol ended the career of an innocent fice, who had unconsciously necessitated the annihilation of a cartridge because he belonged to no one.

C. Mr. Helper was born in 1822 and in 1850 went to Washington unler the Filmore Administration to work in the Navy Department. In 1855 he was appointed clerk of the Superior Court of Rowan County, North Carolina. He belonged to a stanch Whig family, and his brother, Hinton Rowan Helper, was the author of "The Impending Crisis." which appeared in 1857, being a strong indictment against slave holding. This book caused considerable political and citement and was brought out in New York after a Baltimore publisher refused to issue it. Involuntary expatriation for the Helper family followed the issuance of this book and Hardie Hogan Helper went to Illinois to live. When the civil way broke out he volunteered in the Eigth Illinois Cavalry under Colonel John T. Farnsworth. In February, 1861, he was mustered out of that regiment with the rank of Major, and sent by Secretary Stanton to join the staff of General Burnside, In March, 1862, under orders from General Burnside, he attempted to destroy the railroad bridge over the Trent river at Newberne, within the Confederate line. From General Burnside's staff he was transferred to the Quartermaster's Department, under General Sexton, in Florida. After the war was Assessor of the Third District of North Carolina, receiving his appointment from President Johnson. During reconstruction times he was called upon by President_Johnson to submit a plan for organizing the Confederate States under the Federal Constitution. He then presented the following: "Permit North Carolina to reconstruct under the old Constitution of 1835, save and except negro slavery.

NO ODDS TO THE DISPENSARY.

He Knew There was one Here and had Prepared for it in Advance. (Greensboro Record.)

You can't fool an old stager. They inve traveled. They have been all over the world, more or less, and they have an eye open to business.

For instance, Gill. Robinson, second on of the old showman, John Robinson, was here the other day with the circus Mr. Robinson has been in North Caro lina almost every year since he boy and in Greensboro as often, so that he has a number of friends here.

Last week when he dropped down here with the big show he soon found them. After an exchange of greetings one gentleman remarked that there had een several changes since he was here, among them a dispensary, and then he ommenced twitting Gill, over the fact that he could not get a drink without going to the place where it is dispensed in quantities not smaller than a half

"Don't you fret about me." said the showman; "I knew you had a dispen-sary here-heard of it long ago, and cnow all about it. We go down ! Carolina and it is all dispensary down that way, so I always go prepared. Just step in here, will you?" he asked, and party dropped into a store where soda water, etc., is dispensed. Mr. Robinson carried in his hand a neat walking cane, but no one thought of its onstruction. Lining up at the construction. Lining up at the counter Gill. gave a twist on the head of the ane, took off the handle in a fiffy, t up and out came a neat little vial, and was a very fair drink of whiskey. tilted it again and out came another. A third tilt and there were three drinks, and the party took a "nip."

The cane was hollow, lined with felt, and was capable of holding about sin or eight drinks. Carried along in one's hand it was never noticed, for it was after all nothing but a walking cane -in appearance-but inside of it the fluid that cheets and always inshelfs nough is taken, found a safe and com soling place. "I 'load' my cane when I know I am approaching a dispensary or dry town," said Mr. Robinson, "and I never so into one of the State or municipal gin mills." It is said an even gross of these canes
