BAPTIST MASS MEETING

Special Exercises at Baptist Tabernacle Tomorrow.

TABERNACLE, 6 kind., 6., 6., 6.
The services announced for tonight have been called in, and there will be no meeting tonight. Dr. Nelson will preach tomorrow night.
The Sunday school is to observe "Rally Day" tomorrow morning, and an invitation is extended to all parents and friends to be present.
At 10:15 a. m. the superintendent, Mr. N. B. Broughton, will give a brief history of the organization and progress of the school.
At 10 a. m. R. N. Simms, Esq., is to speak on "The Sunday School as an Agency of Power in Church Work."
Rev. Dr. Williams, of Washington City, is to preach at 11 a. m.
At 3 p. m. a mass meeting of the Baptists of the city is to be held at the Tabernacle, and short addresses made by the following:
Dr. A. W. Carter,
Mr. T. H. Briggs,
Mr. John E. Ray,
J. C. Marcom, Esq.,
W. N. Jones, Esq.,
Mr. W. H. Dodd,
Mr. John T. Pullen.
The services last night at the Tabernacle were full of interest. Rev. Dr. W. R. Gwaltney spoke on church doctrines and Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Skinner spoke on early Baptist history in Raleigh.
Dr. Skinner's address was replete with striking incidents about the early history of the Baptist church here. The first contribution for the church was made by the father of the late William Boylan.

COLORED LYCEUM

Their Organization for Their Intellectual Improvement.

The colored people of Raleigh have an excellent institution which should be encouraged. It is called the "Oak City Lyceum" and its object is the intellectual improvement of their race. Frank Dehman is president, Leggan vice-president, Branch treasurer and Annie Alston secretary. Meetings are held every Monday night in the chapel of the Congregational church, next to the Washington public school. The colored people meet there each Monday night. Only one cent admission is charged in order to defray the expense of lights and heat. A committee on programme prepares for the exercises, and various speakers, white and colored, are invited to address them on special subjects literary, legal and theological.
Last Monday night a debate was held participated in by J. E. Sheppard, J. W. Leggan, James Sanford and Mrs. Hamlin. Lawyers Johnson and Branch also spoke. The Lyceum was organized in September last.

Some white ministers and educators have been asked to speak on various subjects, and have consented. This is an excellent plan and the colored people should be encouraged in it.

CARD PARTY.

Wednesday evening last Miss May Bryan gave a delightful progressive card party at her home on North Person street, complimentary to her guest, Miss Myers, of Philadelphia. Miss Hal Morrison won the lady's prize and Dr. J. M. Ayer the gentleman's, while the consolation was given to Miss Hoke and Mr. Leigh Skinner. Delightful refreshments were served.

"The evidence," said the judge, "shows that you threw a stone at this man."
"Sure," replied Mrs. O'Hoolihan, "an' the looks of the man shows that that, yer honor. It shows that O' hit him."—Chicago News.

BUBONIC PLAGUE

Infected Steamer Reaches New York City

ONE DEATH EN ROUTE

Ship is in Quarantine—It is Feared that the Captain and Cook, Who Nursed the Deceased, May Already Have the Disease.

New York, Nov. 18.—The British steamer "J. W. Taylor," of Santos, is detained in quarantine on suspicion of having the Bubonic plague among the crew. One man died en route, November 7th, with very suspicious symptoms. Capt. Waters, and the ship's cook are both ill, showing indications of Bubonic swellings. The sick were transferred to Swine Island. All the crew were sent to Hoffman Island.
Hope, the Englishman who died at sea had been in the hospital at Santos a fortnight suffering from an eruption thought to be cholera, but he returned to duty before the steamer sailed. Capt. Waters and the cook had been in constant attendance on the sick man.
The captain and the cook while waiting on Hope thought he had malarial fever, and took no precautions. When three days from this port the captain began to experience the symptoms of what Hope complained, and the next day the cook had the same feelings. When the steamer arrived at quarantine both were exhausted and sent to bed. Nobody else in the ship is ill, but Dr. Duty fears that the sickness may spread to the cook, while nursing Hope, also discharged duties in the galley. The ship is being thoroughly disinfected.

LATE PHIL THEIM

Odd Fellows Pay Tribute to Their Deceased Brother.

There was a good attendance of Odd Fellows and the general public at the memorial service last evening at Seaton Gales Lodge I. O. O. F., last evening in honor of the memory of the late Phil Theim.
The exercises though simple, were eminently proper, and the tributes to the memory of the deceased by those who spoke were beautiful and of the highest character, attracting the great attention in which Mr. Theim was held by the members of the order and by the public generally.
Prof. James Dinwiddie, a prominent member of Seaton Gales Lodge, was the orator of the occasion.
The services were opened by a selection by Wright's Cornet Band, which kindly rendered their services for the occasion.

William Dinwiddie said we come to commemorate the virtues of an old member, a charter member of this lodge, who through all the various changes of life, through sunshine and shadow, remained faithful to the end. We deem it a high privilege to come here tonight to mingle our sorrows with the family and friends of this faithful man.

Rev. J. L. Burns then offered a prayer.
Another selection was rendered by the band.
Grand Secretary R. H. Woodell then spoke of the deceased in the highest terms. Speaking of the strong friendship which existed between the two and of the many strong and noble attributes of the lamented brother, Grand Secretary Woodell then read the memorial which the lodge committee had prepared.

Mr. C. M. Bishop, of Mantoo Lodge, then made a short address, reciting the noble characteristics for which the deceased was noted. It is a melancholy pleasure, he said, to attend this special service of Seaton Gales Lodge and to unite with these brothers in these memorial exercises. We become members of Mantoo Lodge at the same time, Bro. Theim had been an Odd Fellow for 20 years, but I never before that time. We labored together to build up the lodge—but it was a labor of love. I felt from that day to the day of his death that I had a friend in whom I could rely. In all of my lodge life I have never known a man who more absolutely and constantly illustrated the virtues of the order. There are no more sublime truths illustrated by any other order, and so far as I know no lesson the order taught he failed to keep. I never saw a man more faithful to duty—in business, in his family and in fraternal things. He was a man who did his duty without a break. Another strong characteristic was his strong friendship. No man was better to his friends in the order and to humanity at large.

I do not think we ought to mourn for him. He is better off. His spirit still lives among us, and it always will abide in the lodge where he lived and labored so many years. His memory will ever remain green in Seaton Gales Lodge, and his influence will ever remain a guide to those who will direct the future destiny of Seaton Gales Lodge.

Mr. M. N. Anis made a few remarks endorsing what had been said.
The Rev. W. C. Norman, the deceased's pastor, next spoke. I cannot, he said, not expecting to be called upon, but to be among those to join in hearty sympathy in rendering a tribute of respect to the memory of our departed brother and friend. These testimonials which I have heard confirmed the impressions which I myself had formed. In him was found a friend the embodiment of truth. He is gone, but he rests well. May his noble example linger and speak, although he is gone. May we thank God as we have hope in his death.

Chairman Dinwiddie made a few appropriate remarks. Rev. J. L. Burns offered prayer, the long metre doxology was sung and the assembly dismissed with benediction by Rev. W. C. Norman.

PISTOLS AND AXE WERE USED

Terrible, Mid-Night Row in Barton's Creek

FOUR MEN ATTACK THREE

Bat Lowry Shot and Cut at a Tenant's House on J. D. Allen's Plantation—John Butler, the Leader, Escaped.

News reached the city today of a terrible affair which occurred in Barton's Creek township one night this week in which pistols and an axe were freely used, and one man was shot in the arm, another cut with an axe on both arms and in the breast and a third struck twice in the back with an axe. Whiskey seems to have been at the bottom of the trouble.

The tragedy was enacted at the house of a man named Johnson, a tenant on the plantation of Mr. J. D. Allen, in Barton's Creek. Johnson's son went over to the Falls of Neuse and there met a young white man, John Butler. They had some trouble and Butler whipped Johnson, and when the latter left Butler informed him that he would come over that night and whip the whole Johnson family.

Shortly after dark John Butler, to gether with three young companions, Ben Lowry, Ben Warren and Bridgman, appeared at the old man Johnson's house. Johnson said that the young fellows intended to make trouble and ordered them away. They refused to go at first, and Johnson got his pistol and shot at Butler. The young man then withdrew.

About eleven o'clock that night Johnson and his two sons were aroused by a noise outside the house. Butler had returned with his three friends, Lowry, Warren and Bridgman. They were drinking freely. Johnson refused to admit them into the house, whereupon they broke the door down and poured an entrance. Johnson's older son then seized a pistol and fired, wounding Lowry in the arm. Lowry then made for the bay and he got out of the way while the father seized his axe and sought to intercept Lowry. He struck him three times with the axe, cutting him on both arms and scuffling him in the chest. Lowry sank to the floor and cried for mercy. The father then and saw that Warren had thrown his weight on to the door and he cut him in the forehead. Johnson fastened to his son's rescue, and lifting the axe as high as he could dealt Warren two blows in the back with the axe. Johnson's excitement and the low pitch of the moon was all that saved Warren's life. The father in his excitement raised his axe so high that it buried itself in the ceiling, and thus weakened the descending blows. While this fight was going on in the house Butler and Bridgman were chasing Johnson's first son through the back door by means of which he had sought to escape from them.

However, when they heard Lowry's screams and cries for mercy they deserted their intended victim and returned to the house. Johnson then allowed them to pick up Lowry and carry him to a neighbor's. Warren, strange to say, was able to walk in spite of his wounds.

A warrant was issued the next day by Justice of the Peace Dudley Peed, and Butler, Lowry, Warren and Bridgman were arrested. Relatives and friends of Lowry, Warren and Bridgman readily went on their bonds for their appearance at the next term of the court. Butler said that he could give bond, too, if he was allowed time. Upon this statement the constable left Butler in his custody instead of bringing him on to Raleigh, and yesterday Butler, going into his house on some pretext, ran out of the back door and took to his heels. He yelled to the constable that if he caught him he would have to use lizzard wings. Butler made good his escape and has not been recaptured.

Johnson and his two sons were simple tenants on Mr. Allen's place, and nothing is known against them. Butler, who seems to be the originator of the trouble, is said to have a rather bad reputation and is said to be a reckless sort of fellow. Lowry, the young man who was so badly wounded, will, it is thought, recover. He is popular among the people of his section and is said to bear a good reputation. His weakness is strong drink, and to this is attributed his participation in the frightful affair. Warren's wounds are not serious. Warren and Bridgman both live near the river in New Light township, and little is known of them. They are all said to be well connected and their kinspeople have property.

None of the Johnsons were badly hurt. The affair has created much interest in Barton's Creek township, and is greatly regretted.

The facts as above stated were brought to this city by a gentleman from Barton's Creek today.

BALL GAME.

PARSON HAS STRANGE IDEAS.

Has Decided to Marry His Foster Mother.

Railway, N. J., Nov. 16. The Rev. Professor C. Mooney, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, of Railway, N. J., is about to take a step that threatens to tangle up the usual statistics beyond that town. He is going to marry his adopted mother today, she being fifty-two years and he thirty-four. After their honeymoon they will return to Railway and the First Methodist Episcopal church about December 10th.

The minister, when five years of age, was adopted by Hugh Mooney, a lumber dealer of Hoboken. Mr. Mooney and his wife educated the lad, and tried to start him in the lumber business, but he soon failed. He wanted to be a minister, and they at last took him to Hackensack town, N. J., and placed him in the Drew Theological Seminary.

Professor Whitney was head of the school and his wife was head of a female seminary in the same town. Their blood young Mooney and with the consent of the Hoboken Mooneys they adopted him.

Frederic Mooney has retained the name of his Hoboken foster parents, graduated and became a minister. Six years ago Professor Whitney died, leaving a tall, gray-haired, well preserved widow. She kept track of her adopted son, and when he was given charge of the church in Railway, more than a year ago, was one of the first to visit and congratulate him.

The people of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Railway do not know just what to think of the step the young minister is taking.

If children lose the father, Mrs. Mooney will enjoy the distinction of being both grandmother and mother of her own offspring. The father of the child being the son of their mother, and this would put the child of the minister under the painful necessity of choosing whether to call him "father" or "grandfather." Being the first-born of the grand mother of his own children, he would have to call her grandmother, and this triple relation would lead to other complications which would be too weary to name out. Being the father of his own children, on the other hand, he has to call her grandmother, he must be his own grandmother.

In the meantime those of his friends of the young pastor who are not stunned by the news of his approaching marriage are extending hearty congratulations.

ODD FELLOWS ITEMS.

Educate the members.
Do not forget the new members. The difference between the old and new members is that the old member will always have a large number of the hundred dollar note.

Capital's second club goes beyond twenty, making its membership nearly equal to its former membership. All done within a month.

Charities, No. 88, will celebrate its anniversary on Wednesday evening next, at which time the boys will have a large number of the hundred dollar note.

Star Lodge, No. 814, will have entertainments for the benefit of the Orphan Home Saturday night, December 2nd, and on Sunday morning a sermon on the first degree and Sunday night a sermon on the second degree. They are trying to get a lecture at 2:30 p. m. Sunday also.

We understand that Rible Rebekah Lodge has planned for another entertainment for the purpose of augmenting their fund, which is to be applied to the purchasing of new beds for the Orphan Home. This is a very commendable undertaking, and we wish it abundant success.

There is also an understanding that Martha Rebekah Lodge, at Tarboro, will hold a bazaar very soon, the proceeds of which is to be applied to the same object, at least to the benefit of the Orphan Home. We are hoping they may exceed their expectations, and let us have a good account of it.

Mr. Charles P. Lumsden, of Capital Lodge delivered an eloquent address, part of it is as follows:
"Generous deeds and unselfish purposes are the strongest bonds of man. In his high estate, no man liveth to himself."
"If the great order of Odd Fellows has ever accomplished anything it is has ever given to a selfish world a great and valuable service outside of its care for the sick and distressed, that it has been in the influence of its million members who are trying to convert the world that mankind is one vast brotherhood, having one common parent, and that no man can fill the full measure of his usefulness and his obligations who is not willing to share this life.

"Possessing such a life, and also recognizing in the ideal of the life a true Odd Fellow, we say tonight that the service is held, in the truest sense of the word, was an Odd Fellow in spirit and in truth. A warmer or a younger heart never beat in the breast of man. Ever cheerful and kind to all, he cast sunshine and good fellowship wherever he went.

"In his family he was the joy and comfort of all his household, where each vied with each other in doing him homage and obedience.
"Tonight we can truly say that were we called upon to offer one short eulogy to the memory of our departed brother, we would say, 'Write him as one who loved his fellow man.'"

MARRIAGE OF MR. GEO. A. HOLDBERNESS ANNOUNCED.

A number of friends in this city of Mr. Geo. A. Holderness received the following invitation yesterday:
Mr. and Mrs. George Howard request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Hattie, to
Mr. George A. Holderness.
Tuesday evening, November the twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, at half-past eight o'clock. Presbyterian Church, Tarboro, North Carolina.

THE BOER WAR

Report that Joubert Was Ill But is Better

MESSAGE FROM KIMBERLY

Lyddite Shells Used but with Little Effect—Reinforcements for Kimberly and Ladysmith—Boer Report that White is Ill.

Kimberly, Nov. 17. A rumor arrived here from Ladysmith bearing despatches to General White, who reports that all is well there, and adds that the Boer shells have no effect. A recent sortie drove the Boers from their guns of position. The British did not lose a man. The town is healthy. It is reported that the Boers occupied the village of Westville.

BOER BETTER.

Ladysmith, Nov. 18. Related despatches from a correspondent with the Boers at Ladysmith, says that November 17th eight Lyddite shells were used into Transvaal's central artillery position with no damage. Commandant Wellbourn captured a man who reported that General White was wounded, and had gone to Pietermaritzburg, leaving General Buller in command. This does not tally with Transvaal information. The Boers also reported British firing in underground chambers to avoid the shells, with about a thousand wounded in the hospitals. Gen. Buller has been ill for a week.

REINFORCEMENTS.

Capetown, Nov. 18. Lord Methuen and his staff arrived at Orange river in presence of his preparations to reduce the garrison at Kimberley. Two transport companies bringing reinforcements of over twenty-five thousand. Nearly eight thousand have already embarked for Durban.

BOERS CLOSING IN.

Estimate, Nov. 18. Two Boer prisoners report that the Boers have a large force near Ficksburg. Several bodies of Boers, previously sighted to the eastward, are reported as being in upon the town. No news has been received from Campbell's Hill since their capture.

ESTABLISHED ESTOUCHE.

Ladysmith, Nov. 18. It seems certain that the Boers are now doing their best to surround Ladysmith. Despite the successful relief here from Durban and the British column, destined for the relief of Ladysmith, was about to advance, but the Boers' confidence is felt that it is strong enough to venture upon this move with much prospect of success. The retreat of the British to Westport or Mod River is openly discussed as about first conclusion.

BRIDGES DESTROYED.

Ladysmith, Nov. 18. Official despatches to the Veldt report the great bridge at Colenso completely destroyed on November 15th.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BLFDSEO

The funeral of the late Mrs. Annie M. Blfdseo was held this afternoon at half-past three from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. John S. Penson, corner of Person and Peace streets. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. M. M. Marshall, of Christ church. The interment was in Oakwood cemetery.

The pallbearers were as follows: Mr. J. T. Pullen, Mr. George Cooper, Dr. A. W. Knott, Mr. T. H. Briggs, Dr. Hubert Haywood, Dr. V. E. Turner, Mr. Charles McKinnon and Mr. J. T. Penson.

FAIR SUNDAY

Fair, Raleigh and vicinity: Fair, warmer tonight and Sunday.
The storm central which was over Mississippi yesterday has moved eastward north of the Lake region. Another depression has formed over Texas, where rain is reported with the largest fall, 1.52 inches, at Oklahoma. An area of cloudy weather extends from Texas to the Lake region and eastward to the north Atlantic coast. It is also cloudy along the south Atlantic coast. The temperature has risen in the Ohio valley.
