Many mixtures, made in imitation of baking powders, are upon the market. They are sold cheap, but are dear at any price, be-cause they contain alum, a corrosive poison.

AS A MAN AND POLITICIAN. Goebel One of The Most Novel Figures

In His State.
Though a Kentucky politician, William Goebel is free from many of the charac-teristics which are commonly attributed to menof that class. He does not drink.

He does not smoke or use tobacco in any form.

He does not play cards for anoney. He is said to be a woman hater. His most marked characteristics are his coolness and determination. Opponwhile the mass of politicians at gather-ings in Kentucky have been indulging in fervid oratory and appeals to sentiment, he has sat still without a trace of emotion on his pale face, coolly calculating the chances for getting the most votes.

Born in Sullivan county, Pennsylvania, 42 years ago, Goebel when a boy was taken by his perents to Covington, Ky., which has been his home ever since. In early life, it is said, he was a bootblack. After receiving a good education through his own energies he made the friendship of Governor John W. Stephenson, who took the young man into his law office. In a few years he had shown such ability that Governor Stephenson took him as a law partner. Upon Governor Stephenson's death Mr. Goebel was made his executor without bond.

Gosbel's ability as a lawyer attarcted the attention of John G. Cartisle, and for several years he was the partner of that great Kentucky lawyer. Twelve pears ago he was elected to the State Senate to represent Kenton county. He has served continuously as such ever since, and is now a hold-over Senator. since, and is now a holo-over Scanter.
That is the only public office he has ever held, except that he was a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Convention. He was a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals in the district now represented by Judge T. H. Paynter, and it was he who finally threw the nomination of Indee Paynter. tion to Judge Paynter.

He has a law pratice which, it is said, pays him at least $25,000 a year, and by hard work, economy and the exercise of his marked legal ability, he has accumulated the same of the same lated a fortune said to reach probably a quarter of a million dollars. Ex-Gov. John Young Brown recently said of him: "Mr. Goebel can put more in a 20-line law brief than almost any other lawyer in Restucky can express in three pages of foolscap. His power of concentrating much thought end information into a few brief words has been one of the eccrets of his remarkable success as a law-As a member of the State Senate Goe

GIBSON-FUELD.

Romantic Marriage of the Daughter of Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page. The marriage of Miss Minna Field, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page of Washington, to Mr. Preston Gibson, a student at Princeton, which took place Saturday, has created a sensation in Washington and Chicago society.

They met in New York on Saturday afternoon, and a telegram sent to the bride's mother yesterday morning announced their marriage. Where or by whom the marriage ceremony was performed is still a secret, the contracting parties merely announcing the event and intimating that they would be pleased to receive a remittance to enable them to continue their honeymoon.

Mrs. Gibson is just 17, but has been the heroine of several romantic attachments, and promised to be one of the bells of the next few years. She was to have made her debut next season. She spent the Christmas nolidays in Washington. She is the daughter of the late Henry Field, a brother of Marshall Field, a millionaire merchant of Chicago. For many years he was a partner with his brother in the dry goods business and amassed a large fortune, estimated at $5,000,000. Mr. Gibson also spent the Christman

Mr. Gibson also spent the Christman holidays in Washington, where he makes his home with his uncle, Justice White, of the United States Supreme Court. He is not quite 21 years old, and is the son of the late United States Senator from Louisians. He is an orphan and inherited an ample fortune from his mother, who was before her marriage, a Miss Montgomery, of New Orleans, belonging to one of the old aristocratic familles of that city. He is a good looking, athletic young fellow. It is expected that Mrs. Page will join her daughter in New York in a few days, and that the young people later will be welcomed home.—Baltimore News.

THE SPINNING HEEL

There's sweetness in the perfume, and there's music in the song, But sweeter and more precious are the memories that throng. When dreaming of the past I hear soft, gentle murmurs sound Of music that I used to love—the old-time spinning wheel.

The humming of the spinning wheel! it tells of love and care— A mother's kiss, and children's play, and of a father's prayer— The lullaby so often sung is wafted back again. And tenderly, as mother always sang the soothing strain: Sleep, baby, sleep, my darling!

For more than words cas tell Thy mother loves thee, precious one,
May angels guard thee well!
Sleep, baby, sleep!

The broad, old-fashioned kitchen-it was the happiest spot, For it was mother's throne room, and will never be forgot.

The cradle in the corner, and the wheel

beside the door,
Just where the rose vine shadows threw upon the sunny floor.

And singing, softly singing, as with gentle step and slow

She backward moved and forward, spinning wool as white as snow.

Then gathered off the fleecy yarn in skeins upon the reel,

And once again her song resumed, beside the spinning wheel:

"Hush, my dear, lie still and alumber, Holy angels guard thy bed, Heavenly blessings without number Gently falling round thy head."

All through the cold, dark winter months, when fields were bleak and drear, Within 'twas like the summer time, so full of warmth and cheer.

The evening hour was merriest of all the happy day-It seemed as though the spinning wheel took pleasure in our play; And when the spinner's task was done, around her easy chair We gathered in a reverent group, and said our evening prayer.

O! happy are the thoughts that come, and sweet the joy I feel,
Whene'er I think of home and of the eldtime spinning wheel. Now I lay me down to sleep, O'er me God his watch will keep, If I die before daybreak,
