The Prince of Wales Reviews the Procession

By telegraph to The Times. London, Oct. 29.—The demonstra-tion in honor of the return of the London Imperial volunteers, which was postponed on Saturday because of the non-arrival of the troops, is in prog-ress today, the enthusiasm undimin-ished by the delay. Hundreds of thousands of people are jammed in along the route of the parade, which started as soon as the volunteers arrived. Buildings, public and private are swathed in flags and bunting and the streets in a hundred places are Business has principally closed and street traffic has been suspended. REVIEWED BY THE PRINCE.

The Prince of Wales arrived in London this morning and reviewed the returning troops from Marlborough House.

MT. AIRY CASE,

Appointments of Simmons and Mrs. Bryan Says Her Husband is Wanted to Put His Illegitimate Vote of Presbyteries in the Northern Church. Does Not Affect Southern Church

By telegraph to The Times.

BALTIMORE, MD., October 29.—

Presbyterian leaders of this city now admit that the action of many of the Presbyteries have been heard from on the question of revision of the creed of the church has been so decisive that the special committee which propounds the questions will be compelled to report to the General Assembly that it ought to take up the matter of revision. Reports which have been made to Dr. W. H. Roberts, secretary of the General Assembly's special committee, indicates a greater victory for the advocates of revision than the most sanguine had hoped. Of Presbyteries, which voted on the sub-ject, 87 favor some sort of revision. while 35 per cent want the question of revision dismissed. Four Presbyteies are indecisive in the replies.

WILL NOE AFFECT THE SOUTH,

The votes for revision referred to are in the Northern Presbyterian Church, and not in the South. Southern church is very conservative, and the revision of the creed is stronuously opposed in this section. Most of the Southern ministers have already expressed themselves as opposed to tampering with the Westminster convention in any way whatever, The agitation for revision may spread from the North to the South, but as yet it has made little headway in this

Church. From Plany

Pulpits

Rev. Dr. I. McK. Pittinger at the Church of the Good Shepherd yester-day morning instead of his usual sermon, delivered an address o athe meeting of the Missionary Council of the church in Louisville last week, which he attended. It was the ablest religious congress gathered in the country, he said, and the meeting in its enthusiasm and inspiration worthy of the term "Pentecostal." It is a fact that the cause of missions n general has reached a crisis, and the Episcopal church fully recognizes its responsibility. The opening service of the council was held in Christ Church Cathedral and the sermon was preached by Dr. Hartridge, Bishop of Kyoto, Japan. Dr. Pittinger said it was beyond comparison the finest mis-sionary sermon he ever heard. He announced that he had secured Bishop Hartridge's promise to preach in Raieigh on the 16th of November. The Bishop will meet the ladies' societies in the afternoon and will preach at night. The word "expansion" was the keynote of the convention, and the church has no idea of retrenchment or repeat in its mission work. council will recommend to the General Convention that a missionary bishop be elected for each of the islands re-cently brought under the dominion of the United States. It was resolved to drop the words "Foreign" and "Domestic" and simply leave the name "The Missionary Society." Rev. Dr. M. M. Marshall in Christ Church yesterday morning, gave a fine discourse on the simple subject, "A Servant of Jesus Christ." In his introduction Dr. Marshall placed special emphasis of the word servant and its meaning, and discussed the now la-mentable idea that serving is a dis-grace. In the ante-bellum days the naster could pay the faithful negro no higher compliment than to that he was a good servant. Man's repugnance to serving is responsible for much of the labor troubles and other outbreaks that occur. is dependent on others, and Dr. Mar-shall said that while we should render the best work and service to our employers in this life a much higher obligation exists for being servants of Jesus Christ. He pictured the faith-ful service to be rendered Christ and

Rev. J. O. Atkinson, president of Elon College, preached for Rev. M. W. Butler in the Christian Church last night, and he gave a fine discourse on the theme, "Choose ye this day whom ye will Serve." Dr. Atkinson handled this familiar text in a charming way. In the first place he pointed out that making a choice was obligatory on every one, no man could escape the responsibility of choosing his master. He then emphasized the fact that the demand and necessity for serving right were never so strong ns today. The extremes have met, the boy of eighteen is now as replete in information as the man of thirty was formerly.
