HOSIER URGES PEOPLE TO MAKE HIGHWAYS IN U. S. SAFER PLACE

Co-operation of Municipal and State highway traffic experts in making the highways of America more safe was urged today by Walter Y. Hosier, Special Agent for the State of North Carolina for the National Committee for the Conservation of Manpower in War Industries who was a visitor in Cherryville Tuesday.

"Great stress is being laid on prevention of on-the-job accidents, but it is equally important to protect the workman after hours from disabling accidents," he said.

"Plans are being made to develop traffic control systems around factories engaged in WAR production, particularly at the time when one shift of workers is leaving for the day and another shift is going on. It is at this time when one group of workers are anxious to get home, and the other group are anxious to get to work that many of these accidents occur."

"Conditions around construction sites, yards and large industrial plants have been particularly bad. In many instances the workers have a considerable distance and, as the highways around these plants and construction jobs have not been constructed for heavy traffic, congestion inevitably follows. Workers not only become injured, but become less efficient through long delays in traffic snarls. They are more apt to take chances in an attempt to 'get to and from work promptly.'"

This condition does not exist around Cherryville and in Gaston County where a great deal of activity in the war effort is going along, but, while traffic is restricted because of gasoline shortages and tire rationing, there are still entirely too many traffic accidents that involve those men and women who are so badly needed in war work. While we have had a big reduction in highway accidents in the nation, it has not been reduced in comparison with the reduction of traffic, therefore, we are not getting very far with our problem of traffic."

Mr. Hosier pointed out that the African Campaign cost us in killed, wounded and missing in action 200 men for each day of the campaign, in the same time over twenty six thousand persons per day were being killed and injured by accidents in America. For every 200 who are killed and injured on the fighting front over there, over 26,000 are killed and injured on the home front over here. We cannot produce goods for the fighting men over there if we are being killed and injured over here.

Mr. Hosier is no stranger to Cherryville, he has spoken here in our Schools on two occasions and has given safety demonstrations on our streets which brought excellent results with our children and people. We are glad that Mr. Hosier is doing his part in winning this war by serving the National Committee for the Conservation of Manpower in War Industries.

EAKER'S DAIRY VICTIM OF STORM SUNDAY NIGHT

Eaker's Dairy felt the keen damaging effect of lightning's freak and treacherous disaster Sunday night. Striking a wire running from the top of the barn to the top of the silo it freakishly melted the wire and ran its course to the silo knocking the silo to the ground. In the near by lot where two fresh milk cows were mottling a group of young calves, the lightning struck one of the finest Jersey cows in the Eaker herd. The cow (deceased) was said by the dairy to have been valued at $200.00.

Damage to the silo was not available at this time but it can be safely said that the total damage of one streak of lightning has cost Eaker's Dairy in the neighborhood of $1200.00.

Mr. Kenneth E. Putnam, chairman of the Salvage Committee, ask all housewives to please prepare their tin cans and place them on the sidewalks in front of their home on Tuesday morning, June 15th, rain or shine. Tuesday afternoon Mr. Putnam will see that a truck gathers up all the tin cans from every home in town and he is hoping to have many truck loads. This committee is trying for a solid carload to be shipped from Cherryville in the near future.

There is still urgent need for tin, a considerable percentage of the supply coming by way of the salvaging of that item from ordinary tin cans. Tin is a much needed war material and Mr. Putnam has secured the aid of some of his committee and volunteer workers to join in the hunt for tin cans Tuesday afternoon.

PREPARATION OF THE CANS

These cans must be cleaned when opened and the top and bottom taken out, the can pressed together, and kept in a dry place so they will not rust. Cans that are not prepared in this manner cannot be accepted, so when you open your cans prepare them immediately and it takes only a second if it is done when first opened. Previous articles in preparation of these cans for shipment have been printed and we feel sure all housewives know how to prepare their cans and will be glad to cooperate in getting their cans out on the sidewalk Tuesday afternoon for the committee when they call.

If for any reason your cans are not packed up, please call the Eagle Office and they will report the call to the committee who will pick up your cans immediately.

Buy more War Bonds and Stamps. Let's get it over with.
