COURTESY ON THE TELEPHONE

Do you want to make a good impression over the telephone? The New York Telephone Company furnishes some helpful hints. Follow them if you want to develop your telephone personality.

"Over the telephone it's more important to speak without haste and distinctly—than when facing your listener. This is because he receives no aid from watching your face, and seeing your gestures.

"People once thought they had to talk fast over the telephone or their time would be up before they were through. When talking at an ordinary rate a person averages about 378 words in three minutes, or 126 words a minute. If you try to talk a "blue streak" the chances are you won't make yourself nearly as well understood, and will have to use up valuable time saying things over again.

"Telephone speech should be neither too fast nor too slow. If too fast, words are jumbled, parts of words are lost to the ear, and bad sounding forms creep in—"wadjado," for "what did you do," etc. If too slow, the words sound disconnected, and they lose meaning and interest for the listener.

"Ordinarily, the very act of speaking clearly will tend to prevent your talking too fast."

Here are some specific and useful hints:

1. Answer all calls promptly. Nothing is more irritating to the other fellow than having to wait for you to answer.
2. Use an identifying name—the firm or department name, and your own. Cut out the time-wasting "Hello."
3. Speak distinctly and about as loud as in ordinary conversation. Don't mumble—don't whisper—don't shout. Don't try to talk with a cigar, pipe or pencil in your mouth.
4. Don't transfer a call to someone else if you can take care of it. The other fellow won't want to go over the same ground twice.
5. Keep a pad and pencil near. It makes a bad impression when you say—"Wait a minute, I want to get some paper and make a note of that."
6. Be courteous. Don't interrupt, argue or show impatience! Show your interest by your responses and a pleasant tone of voice. Get his viewpoint. Remember, when you're talking to a customer his impression of you is what YOU make it.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Medicine like with its heavy and wrong irregular habits, improper sitting and detaching—the risk of exposure and infection—shows heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, swelling, puffing, tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. An occasional Doan's will keep you everlastingly healthy. Ask your neighbor!

ANOTHER 'FLAMING YOUTH ERA'—1943-44 Schools At War Program

Do we have to have a Jazz Age following the War? Nobody wants one, least of all those who as young people, lived through the last one. Since these very jazz-agers are the mothers and fathers of today, isn't there something they can do, as parents, to avert another "flaming youth era? We believe there can. To begin with, even the young people of today aren't looking forward to a fling after the war is over. They are girding themselves their minds and their hearts for the tremendous task of carrying on the plans for a better world which their elders walked out on after the last war. A New York Herald-Tribune writer, Emmett Crozier, recently reported in his paper the opinion of an assorted group on the likelihood of there being another "lost generation" after this war. The professional trend judge on Mr. Crozier's list considered such a post-war moral letdown inevitable. But the young people interviewed felt differently. One Wesley graduate even characterized her generation with the terms "stability and steadiness." She felt that the job ahead was big enough to consume their energies and ambitions so that they would have little opportunity to feel disinherited.

All this would be extremely reassuring if we could shut our memories of Youth's similar spirit of dedication from 1917 to 1919. No one planned the Jazz Age of the 1920s. As a rule the young people who went in for the wildest times were the ones who had believed most wholeheartedly that their mission was to make over the world in democracy's image.

That is why we say that the 1920 "lost generation" many of whom are the parents of the youths now on the fighting front should carefully evaluate their own experiences and see that the young people who return from the war today are not confronted with the same situations.

The failure of the United States to join the League of Nations, and Prohibition, are usually blamed for the disillusionment of youth after the last war. But there was a third reason which comes closer to the subject matter of this column—and that was the lack of understanding on the part of parents of that day of changed conditions confronting their children, and of their children's correspondingly changed mentality. For the home itself was little affected by the last war and the parents on the home front even less. Consequently the cleavage which exists to a certain extent between each generation was often a complete breakdown in the 1920s. In many families the complaining and the head shaking and the dire prophecies went on from morning to far, far into the night.

That lack of any common ground of values for parents and children is the situation today's parents, having experienced it themselves, can be most on the lookout for. If thousands of individual parents determine to make their homes pleasanter to their sons and daughters to come home to than they were when they left, and if after the young people return parents will respect their hard-won experience as worth uniting with their own more mature knowledge, we will have the generations working together more harmoniously than ever before in history. The marvels which might be accomplished with human energy unhampered by bickerings and misunderstandings would almost make it possible for us to write our own ticket for the millennium!

The festival schedule will be launched Monday night, October 11, with a preview of George A. Hamid's "Victory Revue," to which newspaper and radio people of Charlotte and surrounding territory will receive invitations. They will be entertained at a Press party following the grandstand show.

Two Children's Days have been scheduled for Tuesday, October 11, and Friday, Oct. 15, when special juvenile features are planned. Children will be admitted free on those days.

state fair, includes a mammoth new 1943 stage extravaganza, the "Victory Revue," the World of Mirth Shows carnival midway, spectacular aerial and circus acts and races, patriotic displays and other events.

Victory Festival Week At Charlotte October 11th

CHARLOTTE, Sept. 22.—A wartime thrill circus, boasting auto stunt pilots who drive cars that roll on wooden wheels, has been added to the array of features booked for the "Victory Festival Week" to be held at the Southern States Fair grounds here, October 11 to 16.

The auto daredevils, said V. F. W. sponsors of the gala celebration event today, are scheduled to appear on Tuesday, October 16, in matinee programs billed as a "Cavalade of Thrills." They will perform feats similar to those enacted by the late Lucky Teter. The automobile used in the show will be powered by synthetic gasoline.

The engagement of the automotive stuntsters virtually completes the attractions program for the festival, said R. B. Hood, chairman of the V. F. W. committee directing preparations. Other features, as varied as a
